West May Take Counter-Action In Berlin Fight

Allies Say They're Not Bound To Submit To Soviet Measures

PARIS, Dec. 1. (AP)—The Western Powers declared today that they were not bound to submit to successive Soviet measures intensifying the Berlin crisis and were free to take their own counter steps.

The notice was given in a joint note to Juan Bramgulia, of Argentina, spokesman for the neutrals of the United Nations Security Council who only last night set up the machinery for a committee of economic experts to propose a solution in 30 days. The note gave no clue as to what action might be taken.

At the same time a highly-placed French source declared "something new" was needed if the Berlin case is to be solved by the Security Council neutrals.

The official pointed out that even if agreement should be reached now on a currency for Berlin and a lifting of the blockade, the division of the city would still exist. It would be necessary to heal that split to administer any four-power currency scheme, he pointed out.

Solution Made More Difficult

A high State Department official in Washington said creation of a separate Communist city government in Berlin had made a solution more difficult, if not impossible. Added to this, Undersecretary of State Lovett told a Washington news conference the Russians were mistaken if they feel "that this action on their part alters our determination not to be driven out of Berlin by force."

American sources here said the three Western Powers will shortly send an informal note to Bramuglia's Financial Committee recapitulating the events which have ruptured Berlin's administration.

Bramuglia's original draft of instructions to the six-nation Financial Committee told it to base its efforts on the agreement in principle which was reached in Moscow on August 30. This provided for a Soviet mark to be introduced in all Berlin under four-power control and for lifting the blockade. Negotiators never were able to agree, however, on details of four-power control of the currency.

Following receipt of the Western note, Gramuglia revised his instructions to permit the committee to take into account happenings after August 30.

Perhaps significantly, Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, accepted the revised draft without dissent, French sources said. Moscow long has made it one of her prime points that a settlement must be based on the August 30 accord.

West Reserves Its Position

The three-power note to Bramuglia said the West reserves its position completely concerning any proposal that the committee of financial experts may bring forth. It then added:

"The Soviet Union, during the period since October 25, has consistently and continuously resorted to further measures directed against the city administration which have brought about an increasing split in the city.

"The three Western Powers cannot agree that they should be bound to submit to all Soviet measures which add to and intensify the Soviet blockade or which interfere with the city administration while the Soviet remains wholly uncommitted to any restraint.

"The three governments therefore repeat the reservation of their right, declared to the Security Council when the Berlin question was submitted to that body, 'to take such measures as may be necessary to maintain in these circumstances their position in Berlin.'"

Equipment For Europe Is Urged

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Forrestal said tonight the United States must supply "a generous measure of equipment"—presumably military—to Western European nations.

He did not state specifically that he meant military equipment but he used the word equipment in connection with "common defense" of the European nations.

Forrestal, in an address prepared for the annual dinner of the English-Speaking Union, said the United States must supply this equipment to give meaning to the Brussels treaty.

"Just as the Brussels treaty proclaims to the world that freedom in Western Europe is indivisible, so does it build a sturdy rampart against aggression with the forces and resources of its signatory nations."

He said objectives of the treaty are being translated into plans for concerted action for the common defense of the nations involved, and added:

"To make these plans meaningful, however, a generous measure of equipment will have to be given to Western Europe, for these peoples cannot prosper while they live in fear of their lives.

"It will avail us nothing to nourish trust in their ability to defend themselves."

Thin New Defense Line Is Set Up 100 Miles From Nanking

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(AP)—Madame Chiang Kai-Shek reached the capital today to set off an urgent new campaign by the Chinese Nationalists for firmer American backing against their Communist foes.

China's First Lady was tight-lipped on her own immediate plans. But Ambassador Wellington Koo, shortly after a hurried conference with her, voiced a plea for help before it is "too late."

With the Communists sweeping almost to Nanking, Koo declared in a speech in New York that all Asia as well as China was in peril of falling behind the iron curtain. He said this might increase a "hundredfold" the burden on the United States "as the leader of freedom's crusade."

Without spelling out what help the Nationalists require, he said they were ready to accept "corruption proof" American control of any new aid spending. Koo flew to New York for the address before the China Institute and arranged to return to the capital tonight.

Madame Chiang, smiling but silent, stepped from her plane and went immediately to the nearby Leesburg, Va., home of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Marshall.

Poses For Newsreels

Some hours later, she posed for newsreels on the lawn of the Marshall home, and said:

"I wish to express my appreciation for the interest and sympathy shown to my country—China—by our American friends.

"As I have been flying continuous since Sunday morning I still feel dizzy, even on terra firma. I know you will understand and give me a little time to recoup my equilibrium.

"I am happy to be here in the historic and hospitable home of my good friends, General and Mrs. Marshall."

The White House and State Department professed to have no word of how the General's wife proposed to press her eleventh-hour plea for help. Ambassador Wellington Koo and Dr. H. H. Kung, former Nanking prime minister, motored to Leesburg to confer with her.

Top officials of the administration, apparently cool to her dramatic unofficial mission, were missing when Madame Chiang stepped from President Truman's former personal plane, "The Sacred Cow," at the end of a three-day flight from Shanghai.

NANKING, Dec. 1—(AP)—With 350,000 government troops trapped on the Suchow front, a thin new defense line was thrown up today only 100 miles from shaken Nanking.

Red Hecklers Ejected From Mass Meeting

Communists Lock Regular Mayor Out Of City Hall Office

BERLIN, Dec. 1 (AP)—Communist hecklers precipitated a violent fist fight in Western Berlin tonight when they tried to break up a political rally.

It was the first outbreak since a Communist-called meeting in the Soviet sector yesterday declared the regular city government out of office and elected a new Red regime by a show of hands.

An audience of several hundred in Neukolln was being urged tonight by Social Democrat speakers to turn out a big vote against Communism in next Sunday's elections when Communist hecklers interrupted.

A dozen men began throwing punches. German police, with the help of Social Democrats, threw the rowdies out of the hall. Outside they sang the "Internationale."

Ten Communists were arrested, among them an editor of the Soviet-licensed newspaper Berliner Zeitung. This indicated that at least some of the Communists came from the Soviet sector of Berlin. Berliners are free to circulate from one section to another.

Police said some of the Communists were armed with iron rods.

Scores of similar rallies aimed at bringing out the non-Communist vote are scheduled for the remainder of this week in all parts of Berlin. West German police have been alerted to keep order.

Mayor Is Locked Out

The Western military governments announced tonight that no member of the police can engage in any political activity beyond mere party membership.

Meanwhile, Communists began entrenching themselves in the City Hall in Eastern Berlin.

They locked the regular mayor out of his office in the Soviet sector, piled his furniture in the corridor, tore his name off the door and prepared to install the Red regime chosen by a show of hands at their mass meeting yesterday.

The freely-elected City Council countered by declaring guilty of treason any of its executive officers who participated in naming the rival Communist government. Meeting in the British sector, the council demanded the resignation of such officials who are members of the Social Unity (Communist-dominated) Party. The resolution, which was understood to be aimed at a deputy mayor and a leading assemblyman, also took away most of the party rights of Social Unity members of the City Council.

The division of Berlin along East-West lines was thus solidified following the action of the Communists yesterday in setting up a new city administration headed by Friedrich Ebert.

"Election" Is Denounced

Western Allied military governors continued to label the "election" an illegal putsch and a mockery of democratic process. West Berliners went ahead with plans to hold a free election of a new government Sunday, though it can rule only in West Berlin.

The hand-picked Communist officials sought to get inferential recognition from the West. They declared the continued presence of Western Allied liaison officers in the City Hall constituted such recognition.

Col. William Babcock, United States deputy commandant, scoffed. "Just because one visits a prison

Authorities Say Plant Raids May Have "Red Tinge"

Equipment Smashed And Workers Beaten

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Dec. 1—(AP)—A band of 300 raiders invaded two struck factories early today, overturned and burned vehicles, beat up workmen and smashed equipment.

Michigan's top-ranking police officer said the speed and precision with which the military-style foray was carried out hinted of "a possible Communist tinge."

After a flying trip to the scene with Gov. Kim Sigler, State Police Commissioner Donald S. Leonard told newsmen the possible Communist angle would not be overlooked in a widespread investigation.

"Union Goons" Blamed

Law enforcement agencies in Michigan and neighboring states threw all their resources into the hunt for members of the autoborne raiding party which struck and disappeared shortly after dawn.

Gov. Sigler, other state officials and Kalamazoo Police Chief Howard Hoyt blamed "union goods" for the sudden, forceful assault. Sigler demanded a one-man grand jury to investigate the invasion. Arrangements were rushed so that such a jury could start its inquiry tomorrow.

There was no direct comment from the CIO United Steel Workers, who have been on strike at the two plants of the Shakespeare Companies since September 7 in a demand for contract changes.

Seven Persons Injured

However, Glenn E. Sigman, the union's international representative directing the strike, accused the company of "importing outside strikebreakers." He declined comment on Commissioner Leonard's statements.

He did not indicate, however, whether the raid was in retaliation for the alleged strike-breaking maneuver.

The raiders hurled bricks through windows, smashed parked cars, set a milk truck afire and swarmed into the factories to wreck equipment.

Then, with commando-like precision, they re-formed a 40-car motor caravan and fled the city in the gloom of early dawn.

Seven persons, including a police sergeant struck by a brick, were injured. None was reported seriously hurt, however.

Scientists Hope To Bounce Phone Signals Off Moon

BELMAR, N. J., Dec. 1—(AP)—Scientists are planning to use the moon as a reflector for trans-oceanic telephone and television signals, S. Davis Page, New Jersey Bell Telephone Company researcher, said today.

In the very near future, he said, the first experiment will be made in directing television and radio-telephone signals at the moon in the hope that they will be reflected back to the earth and picked up in Europe.

Three years ago at nearby Wall Township, the Army Signal Corps laboratory at Camp Evans made the first successful experiment in bouncing radar off the moon.

Plan For Health Insurance Firm Rejected By AMA

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1 (AP) — The American Medical Association's house of delegates today turned thumbs down on a resolution favoring establishment of a national health insurance company.

The delegates, controlling body in organized medicine, approved instead a national enrollment agency, which would cooperate in coordinating all prepaid health insurance plans.

The national health insurance plan was proposed by Blue Cross, hospital insurance group, and the Blue Shield, which is medical care insurance of varying degrees, the amount of care depending on state and local branches of Blue Shield. The rejected plan was for a Blue Cross-Blue Shield Health Service, Inc.

Reason given for the rejection was the possibility of Department of Justice action against a national company.

The house reaffirmed its opposition to compulsory medical insurance.

Another resolution pledged moral support of the American Medical Association to every state medical society in starting medical service plans. Medical service plan means an organization of a group of people to reduce their medical expenses and get more comprehensive care by regular payments.

The house adopted a resolution opposing acceptance or giving of rebates by doctors and recommending investigation of any doctor charged with rebate practices. Rebates are kickbacks of money which a doctor may pay to a medical or other firm for medical supplies.

Pilotless Navy Plane Disappears

SALISBURY, Md., Dec. 1—(AP)—A pilotless Navy target plane got away today from another which controlled it by radio and disappeared.

The Navy said it apparently crashed into the sea or one of the extensive marshes on the lower part of the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia peninsula.

The "drone" plane, a converted Hellcat fighter, took off with its control craft from the Navy's nearby Chincoteague Air Station just after 11 o'clock (EST) this morning.

It was set to climb at full throttle and somehow got beyond the range of the control signals from the low-altitude mother plane.

At 11:20 the Civil Aeronautics Authority sent out an alarm on its airways teletype network reporting the plane circling out of control at 22,000 feet over Salisbury.

Maryland State Police got the alarm 10 minutes later. Volunteer fire companies were asked to stand by.

Capt. W. V. R. Vieweg, commanding officer of the air station, expressed a belief the plane would crash quickly. But there were no reports of it coming down within the next five hours. Capt. Vieweg said at 1:30 p. m. that its fuel should have given out by that time and apparently it landed on water or in the marshes.

He called off the aerial search. A high altitude control plane had been sent up in an attempt to intercept the stray and bring it back.

The drone was used for aerial target practice and its mission today was routine. It carried no explosives.

Phone Companies Ask $240,000,000 In Rate Increases

Postwar Boosts Now Total $170,000,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP) — The American Telephone and Telegraph Company disclosed today that its Bell System subsidiaries have applications pending for a total of $240,000,000 a year in new rate increases.

Rate increases already granted to Bell companies since the war, company officials said, now total $170,000,000 a year.

The pending applications, covering 29 states, include second and third round boosts in some states.

The rate boosts thus far approved by state regulatory commissions and municipalities, A. T. and T. spokesmen said in an interview, represent an increase averaging about 14 per cent of the gross total of customers' bills for local service and to toll calls to points within their own states.

If the full amounts of the pending applications should be granted, they said, the average would be 22 per cent. If you include interstate long distance service which has not gone up, it would be only 17 per cent, they added.

Increases Called Modest

Company officials called these increases modest in relation to their own higher costs and to price increases in general since the war. They added that of the $170,000,000 a year already granted, Bell companies would receive about $100,000,000 after taxes, and the same proportion would apply to future grants.

The percentages were applied to the overall telephone bill of all Bell System customers. Because of the varying charges for different types of service and the diffreing rates of increases asked in various states, the individual customer might find his own bill had gone up slightly or considerably.

They gave hope that the present round of increases—including some not yet filed—may be the last and that in future years rates may be brought down by technological advances, but they hedged this possibility with qualifications.

Huge Expansion Program

First, company spokesmen emphasized that some subsidiary companies still must apply for additional increases to compensate for recent wage boosts and other higher costs for which their present rates are inadequate. They would not indicate in which states these requests would be made.

Second, a stabilizing of telephone rates after the current adjustments are completed will depend on a stabilizing of the general price and wage picture, or, more specifically, the companies' own costs.

Aside from the Bell System's operating costs, it has carried out a postwar expansion program unprecedented in size for private enterprise. The expansion has been paid for at postwar prices largely on new capital that has to be integrated into the system's financial and rate structure.

Tragedy Marks Robeson Concert In Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 1 (AP) — Tragedy marked the turnout of 50,000 persons for an open air concert here last night by Paul Robeson, American negro singer.

One person was killed and 25 were injured when a small building overloaded with spectators collapsed at the Kingston race course, scene of the concert. Seven of the injured were taken to a hospital.

Threatening Life Of Truman Lands Youth In Prison

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1—(AP)—Dennis E. Porter, 20, charged with threatening the life of President Truman in a letter to the White House, drew three years in federal prison today.

Porter, of Mount Hermon, La., pleaded guilty and then told United States District Judge Herbert Christenberry he "still intends" to carry out his threat.

Assistant United States District Attorney Thomas Brahney said the letter was written while Porter was in jail at Franklinton, La., serving a sentence for defamation of character.

"I feel that President Truman is not adequate to supervise the people of the United States," Porter told the court.

Judd Says Russia Winning Asia Due To U. S. 'Blunder'

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP) — Rep. Judd (R-Minn) said today Russia "has all but won the war in the Pacific" through American "blunder and default."

Judd, speaking at the National Association of Manufacturers' 53rd annual congress of American industry, said if Russia wins China and other rich parts of East Asia, "the men of Asiatic temperament who run Russia may very well just sit it out for a few years or decades until the Western World, including the United States, has bled itself to death."

After defeating Japan, Judd said, "we have by a combination of blunder and default succeeded in delivering much of East Asia into the hands of another totalitarian dictatorship, the Kremlin's, infinitely more dangerous because commanding greater resources and manpower, and more clever.

"That can only mean that whereas we defeated Japan, Russia has a" but won the war in the Pacific. We refused to believe in time that the Communist conspiracy in China is the same as it is everywhere else — the worst possible alternative. By refusing to give effective support to those opposing it, we actually intervened in favor of it."

Australia Loses Fight To Advance Israel's U. N. Bid

Any Decision Today By Council Unlikely

PARIS, Dec. 1 (AP)—Australia gave up tonight a hard fight to obtain preliminary United Nations approval of Israel's application for membership.

The United Nations Security Council will meet tomorrow to consider the application. There was doubt among council delegates that any decision would be reached.

Faris El Houri, of Syria, told a reporter "there is no question" but that admission of Israel into the United Nations would mean a revision of the Arab states' position in the world organization. He said the six Arab nations—Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, Yemen, Saudi Arabia and Iraq—would "reconsider their membership" in the United Nations.

Political Committee Action

The Australian action took place in the 58-member Political Committee of the General Assembly after the United States, Canada, Britain, and several other nations said the committee was not the place now to consider Israel's application.

Dean Rusk, of the United States, stressed that the United States strongly favors Israel's application, but drew attention to the fact that the question will come up tomorrow in the Security Council.

The Australian proposal called upon the committee to request the Security Council to give sympathetic consideration to Israel's bid.

It was contained in an amendment to a revised British proposal for setting up a conciliation commission for the Holy Land.

The committee also voted down four sections of the Australian amendment designed to make the November 29, 1947, partition plan the keystone of any final settlement in Palestine.

British Revised Plan

The British had revised their plan to meet American objections. As it stands now the British resolution would have a conciliation commission consider both the 1947 partition plan and recommendations of the late Count Folke Bernadotte in attempting to reach a settlement.

The partition plan would give the Negev to the Jews, who now hold

Modern Santa And Press Agent Arrive In Capital

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1— (AP) — Santa Claus arrived in Washington today. And it may be a significant sign of the times that he was accompanied by a press agent.

Santa who held a news conference promptly on arrival, turned out to be a lean, bespectacled individual named Harry H. Heim.

A former bicycle repair man, store window decorator and Christmas tree hawker, Heim got into the Christmas ornament business about the time the war started.

This proved to be a excellent time to get into the Christmas ornament business. For the previous supply had come chiefly from Japan and Europe.

His company grew, he said, until he now sells $2,500,000 worth of the trinkets a year, and does three-fifths of the nation's trinket business.

Heim said he had his wonderful idea right at the start:

Why not have a sure enough Christmas town, all fixed up for the kids, where the Christmas ornaments are made?

In August of this year the dream began to take form. For $400,000 he bought the town of Savage, Md., about 20 miles from here. It had been owned by a cotton mill concern which had decided to concentrate in the south.

The town, sure enough, has gone Christmasy. Eight reindeers in the park. An animated circus, with life-sized stuffed animals. Plans for a swiss village. Plans for a crazy town, with the roofs on crooked, as in nursery rhymes.

Even the post office has got into the spirit of the thing. At a big celebration Saturday it will become Santa Heim, Md.

A word of reassurance:

Work On 48,000-Ton Liner Due To Start Soon

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Maritime Commission tonight planned to start construction early in 1949 on the largest ocean liner ever built in the United States—a 48,000 ton queen of the American merhant fleet.

Costing more than $67,000,000, the super-ship may come from the ways of the Newport News Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Corporation, Newport News, Va. If so, the merchant queen would be built side-by-side with the Navy's new 65,000-ton aircraft carrier.

This company and Bethlehem Steel Company, Quincy, Massachusetts, entered bids, opened today by the commission, to build the new 980-foot passenger vessel. The Newport News shipyard bid $67,350,000 against $75,649,000 by Bethlehem.

A contract has not yet been awarded, a government official said, but he added: "From all indications, the job will be done by Newport News barring unforseen obstacles."

He said the Maritime Commission, the Navy Department, and the proposed commercial operator of the ship must now get together on various questions pertaining to the amount of subsidy involved in the construction.

The ship, as yet without a name, would fly the colors of the United States Lines and ply the North Atlantic sealanes between this country and Europe. The United States Lines also operates the America, currently the largest United States liner afloat with passenger space for 1,219 persons and a gross tonnage of 26,454.

It is estimated that Uncle Sam will put up about $30,000,000—or approximately 45 per cent—in subsidy payments into construction of the new ship as a contribution to the nation's merchant marine program and national defense.

The new vessel is designed to provide luxurious peacetime facilities for 2,000 passengers. As a troop transport it could haul 12,000 men and equipment.

Speed Formation Of Church Council

CINCINNATI, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America today took steps to speed formation of a co-operative agency embracing virtually every Protestant denomination.

If the new group—known as the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.—is formed, the Federal Council will lose its identity. National Council members will cooperate on items of common interest and concern.

However, as in the Federal Council, each individual denomination will retain its autonomy.

Other agencies considering affiliation with the National Council are the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, the International Council of Religious Education, Missionary Education Movement of the United States and Canada, National Protestant Council on Higher Education, United Council of Church Women and the United Stewardship Council.

Delegates to the Federal Council's 40th anniversary convention voted the executive council authority to determine how many member denominations must approve the merger before the Federal Council can join the National Council. The convention opened this morning.

So far, 17 of the council's 21 United States members have voted approval of the merger. The 17 denominations have some 24,000,000 communicants, while the other seven have approximately 3,600,000 communicants. The United Lutheran Church, with 1,776,000 members, is the largest denomination among the council members who have not approved the plan.

Mayor Is Locked Out

The Western military governments announced tonight that no member of the police can engage in any political activity beyond mere party membership.

Meanwhile, Communists began entrenching themselves in the City Hall in Eastern Berlin.

They locked the regular mayor out of his office in the Soviet sector, piled his furniture in the corridor, tore his name off the door and prepared to install the Red regime chosen by a show of hands at their mass meeting yesterday.

The freely-elected City Council countered by declaring guilty of treason any of its executive officers who participated in naming the rival Communist government. Meeting in the British sector, the council demanded the resignation of such officials who are members of the Social Unity (Communist-dominated) Party. The resolution, which was understood to be aimed at a deputy mayor and a leading assemblyman, also took away most of the party rights of Social Unity members of the City Council.

The division of Berlin along East-West lines was thus solidified following the action of the Communists yesterday in setting up a new city administration headed by Friedrich Ebert.

"Election" Is Denounced

Western Allied military governors continued to label the "election" an illegal putsch and a mockery of democratic process. West Berliners went ahead with plans to hold a free election of a new government Sunday, though it can rule only in West Berlin.

The hand-picked Communist officials sought to get inferential recognition from the West. They declared the continued presence of Western Allied liaison officers in the City Hall constituted such recognition.

Col. William Babcock, United States deputy commandant, scoffed.

Equipment Smashed And Workers Beaten

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Dec. 1—(AP)—A band of 300 raiders invaded two struck factories early today, overturned and burned vehicles, beat up workmen and smashed equipment.

Michigan's top-ranking police officer said the speed and precision with which the military-style foray was carried out hinted of "a possible Communist tinge."

After a flying trip to the scene with Gov. Kim Sigler, State Police Commissioner Donald S. Leonard told newsmen the possible Communist angle would not be overlooked in a widespread investigation.

"Union Goons" Blamed

Law enforcement agencies in Michigan and neighboring states threw all their resources into the hunt for members of the auto-borne raiding party which struck and disappeared shortly after dawn.

Gov. Sigler, other state officials and Kalamazoo Police Chief Howard Hoyt blamed "union goods" for the sudden, forceful assault. Sigler demanded a one-man grand jury to investigate the invasion. Arrangements were rushed so that such a jury could start its inquiry tomorrow.

There was no direct comment from the CIO United Steel Workers, who have been on strike at the two plants of the Shakespeare Companies since September 7 in a demand for contract changes.

Seven Persons Injured

However, Glenn E. Sigman, the union's international representative directing the strike, accused the company of "importing outside strikebreakers." He declined comment on Commissioner Leonard's statements.

He did not indicate, however, whether the raid was in retaliation for the alleged strike-breaking maneuver.

The raiders hurled bricks through windows, smashed parked cars, set a milk truck afire and swarmed into the factories to wreck equipment.

Then, with commando-like precision, they re-formed a 40-car motor caravan and fled the city in the gloom of early dawn.

Seven persons, including a police sergeant struck by a brick, were injured. None was reported seriously hurt, however.

Scientists Hope To Bounce Phone Signals Off Moon

BELMAR, N. J., Dec. 1—(AP)—Scientists are planning to use the moon as a reflector for trans-oceanic telephone and television signals, S. Davis Page, New Jersey Bell Telephone Company researcher, said today.

In the very near future, he said, the first experiment will be made in directing television and radio-telephone signals at the moon in the hope that they will be reflected back to the earth and picked up in Europe.

Three years ago at nearby Wall Township, the Army Signal Corps laboratory at Camp Evans made the first successful experiment in bouncing radar off the moon.

Plan For Health Insurance Firm Rejected By AMA

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1 (AP) — The American Medical Association's house of delegates today turned thumbs down on a resolution favoring establishment of a national health insurance company.

The delegates, controlling body in organized medicine, approved instead a national enrollment agency, which would cooperate in coordinating all prepaid health insurance plans.

The national health insurance plan was proposed by Blue Cross, hospital insurance group, and the Blue Shield, which is medical care insurance of varying degrees, the amount of care depending on state and local branches of Blue Shield. The rejected plan was for a Blue Cross-Blue Shield Health Service, Inc.

Reason given for the rejection was the possibility of Department of Justice action against a national company.

The house reaffirmed its opposition to compulsory medical insurance.

Another resolution pledged moral support of the American Medical Association to every state medical society in starting medical service plans. Medical service plan means an organization of a group of people to reduce their medical expenses and get more comprehensive care by regular payments.

The house adopted a resolution opposing acceptance or giving of rebates by doctors and recommending investigation of any doctor charged with rebate practices. Rebates are kickbacks of money which a doctor may pay to a medical or other firm for medical supplies.

Pilotless Navy Plane Disappears

SALISBURY, Md., Dec. 1—(AP)—A pilotless Navy target plane got away today from another which controlled it by radio and disappeared.

The Navy said it apparently crashed into the sea or one of the extensive marshes on the lower part of the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia peninsula.

The "drone" plane, a converted Hellcat fighter, took off with its control craft from the Navy's nearby Chincoteague Air Station just after 11 o'clock (EST) this morning.

It was set to climb at full throttle and somehow got beyond the range of the control signals from the low-altitude mother plane.

At 11:20 the Civil Aeronautics Authority sent out an alarm on its airways teletype network reporting the plane circling out of control at 22,000 feet over Salisbury.

Maryland State Police got the alarm 10 minutes later. Volunteer fire companies were asked to stand by.

Capt. W. V. R. Vieweg, commanding officer of the air station, expressed a belief the plane would crash quickly. But there were no reports of it coming down within the next five hours. Capt. Vieweg said at 1:30 p. m. that its fuel should have given out by that time and apparently it landed on water or in the marshes.

He called off the aerial search. A high altitude control plane had been sent up in an attempt to intercept the stray and bring it back.

The drone was used for aerial target practice and its mission today was routine. It carried no explosives.

Phone Companies Ask $240,000,000 In Rate Increases

Postwar Boosts Now Total $170,000,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP) — The American Telephone and Telegraph Company disclosed today that its Bell System subsidiaries have applications pending for a total of $240,000,000 a year in new rate increases.

Rate increases already granted to Bell companies since the war, company officials said, now total $170,000,000 a year.

The pending applications, covering 29 states, include second and third round boosts in some states.

The rate boosts thus far approved by state regulatory commissions and municipalities, A. T. and T. spokesmen said in an interview, represent an increase averaging about 14 per cent of the gross total of customers' bills for local service and to toll calls to points within their own states.

If the full amounts of the pending applications should be granted, they said, the average would be 22 per cent. If you include interstate long distance service which has not gone up, it would be only 17 per cent, they added.

Increases Called Modest

Company officials called these increases modest in relation to their own higher costs and to price increases in general since the war. They added that of the $170,000,000 a year already granted, Bell companies would receive about $100,000,000 after taxes, and the same proportion would apply to future grants.

The percentages were applied to the overall telephone bill of all Bell System customers. Because of the varying charges for different types of service and the diffreing rates of increases asked in various states, the individual customer might find his own bill had gone up slightly or considerably.

They gave hope that the present round of increases—including some not yet filed—may be the last and that in future years rates may be brought down by technological advances, but they hedged this possibility with qualifications.

Huge Expansion Program

First, company spokesmen emphasized that some subsidiary companies still must apply for additional increases to compensate for recent wage boosts and other higher costs for which their present rates are inadequate. They would not indicate in which states these requests would be made.

Second, a stabilizing of telephone rates after the current adjustments are completed will depend on a stabilizing of the general price and wage picture, or, more specifically, the companies' own costs.

Aside from the Bell System's operating costs, it has carried out a postwar expansion program unprecedented in size for private enterprise. The expansion has been paid for at postwar prices largely on new capital that has to be integrated into the system's financial and rate structure.

Tragedy Marks Robeson Concert In Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 1 (AP) — Tragedy marked the turnout of 50,000 persons for an open air concert here last night by Paul Robeson, American negro singer.

One person was killed and 25 were injured when a small building overloaded with spectators collapsed at the Kingston race course, scene of the concert. Seven of the injured were taken to a hospital.

Threatening Life Of Truman Lands Youth In Prison

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1—(AP)—Dennis E. Porter, 20, charged with threatening the life of President Truman in a letter to the White House, drew three years in federal prison today.

Porter, of Mount Hermon, La., pleaded guilty and then told United States District Judge Herbert Christenberry he "still intends" to carry out his threat.

Assistant United States District Attorney Thomas Brahney said the letter was written while Porter was in jail at Franklinton, La., serving a sentence for defamation of character.

"I feel that President Truman is not adequate to supervise the people of the United States," Porter told the court.

Judd Says Russia Winning Asia Due To U. S. 'Blunder'

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP) — Rep. Judd (R-Minn) said today Russia "has all but won the war in the Pacific" through American "blunder and default."

Judd, speaking at the National Association of Manufacturers' 53rd annual congress of American industry, said if Russia wins China and other rich parts of East Asia, "the men of Asiatic temperament who run Russia may very well just sit it out for a few years or decades until the Western World, including the United States, has bled itself to death."

After defeating Japan, Judd said, "we have by a combination of blunder and default succeeded in delivering much of East Asia into the hands of another totalitarian dictatorship, the Kremlin's, infinitely more dangerous because commanding greater resources and manpower, and more clever.

"That can only mean that whereas we defeated Japan, Russia has a" but won the war in the Pacific. We refused to believe in time that the Communist conspiracy in China is the same as it is everywhere else — the worst possible alternative. By refusing to give effective support to those opposing it, we actually intervened in favor of it."

Australia Loses Fight To Advance Israel's U. N. Bid

Any Decision Today By Council Unlikely

PARIS, Dec. 1 (AP)—Australia gave up tonight a hard fight to obtain preliminary United Nations approval of Israel's application for membership.

The United Nations Security Council will meet tomorrow to consider the application. There was doubt among council delegates that any decision would be reached.

Faris El Houri, of Syria, told a reporter "there is no question" but that admission of Israel into the United Nations would mean a revision of the Arab states' position in the world organization. He said the six Arab nations—Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, Yemen, Saudi Arabia and Iraq—would "reconsider their membership" in the United Nations.

Political Committee Action

The Australian action took place in the 58-member Political Committee of the General Assembly after the United States, Canada, Britain, and several other nations said the committee was not the place now to consider Israel's application.

Dean Rusk, of the United States, stressed that the United States strongly favors Israel's application, but drew attention to the fact that the question will come up tomorrow in the Security Council.

The Australian proposal called upon the committee to request the Security Council to give sympathetic consideration to Israel's bid.

It was contained in an amendment to a revised British proposal for setting up a conciliation commission for the Holy Land.

The committee also voted down four sections of the Australian amendment designed to make the November 29, 1947, partition plan the keystone of any final settlement in Palestine.

British Revised Plan

The British had revised their plan to meet American objections. As it stands now the British resolution would have a conciliation commission consider both the 1947 partition plan and recommendations of the late Count Folke Bernadotte in attempting to reach a settlement.

The partition plan would give the Negev to the Jews, who now hold

Speed Formation Of Church Council

CINCINNATI, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America today took steps to speed formation of a cooperative agency embracing virtually every Protestant denomination.

If the new group—known as the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.—is formed, the Federal Council will lose its identity. National Council members will cooperate on items of common interest and concern.

However, as in the Federal Council, each individual denomination will retain its autonomy.

Other agencies considering affiliation with the National Council are the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, the International Council of Religious Education, Missionary Education Movement of the United States and Canada, National Protestant Council on Higher Education, United Council of Church Women and the United Stewardship Council.

Delegates to the Federal Council's 40th anniversary convention voted the executive council authority to determine how many member denominations must approve the merger before the Federal Council can join the National Council. The convention opened this morning.

So far, 17 of the council's 21 United States members have voted approval of the merger. The 17 denominations have some 24,000,000 communicants, while the other seven have approximately 3,600,000 communicants. The United Lutheran Church, with 1,776,000 members, is the largest denomination among the council members who have not approved the plan.

Equipment For Europe Is Urged

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Forrestal said tonight the United States must supply "a generous measure of equipment"—presumably military—to Western European nations.

He did not state specifically that he meant military equipment but he used the word equipment in connection with "common defense" of the European nations.

Forrestal, in an address prepared for the annual dinner of the English-Speaking Union, said the United States must supply this equipment to give meaning to the Brussels treaty.

"Just as the Brussels treaty proclaims to the world that freedom in Western Europe is indivisible, so does it build a sturdy rampart against aggression with the forces and resources of its signatory nations."

He said objectives of the treaty are being translated into plans for concerted action for the common defense of the nations involved, and added:

"To make these plans meaningful, however, a generous measure of equipment will have to be given to Western Europe, for these peoples cannot prosper while they live in fear of their lives.

"It will avail us nothing to nourish trust in their ability to defend themselves."

Modern Santa And Press Agent Arrive In Capital

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1— (AP) — Santa Claus arrived in Washington today. And it may be a significant sign of the times that he was accompanied by a press agent.

Santa who held a news conference promptly on arrival, turned out to be a lean, bespectacled individual named Harry H. Heim.

A former bicycle repair man, store window decorator and Christmas tree hawker, Heim got into the Christmas ornament business about the time the war started.

This proved to be a excellent time to get into the Christmas ornament business. For the previous supply had come chiefly from Japan and Europe.

His company grew, he said, until he now sells $2,500,000 worth of the trinkets a year, and does three-fifths of the nation's trinket business.

Heim said he had his wonderful idea right at the start:

Why not have a sure enough Christmas town, all fixed up for the kids, where the Christmas ornaments are made?

In August of this year the dream began to take form. For $400,000 he bought the town of Savage, Md., about 20 miles from here. It had been owned by a cotton mill concern which had decided to concentrate in the south.

The town, sure enough, has gone Christmasy. Eight reindeers in the park. An animated circus, with life-sized stuffed animals. Plans for a swiss village. Plans for a crazy town, with the roofs on crooked, as in nursery rhymes.

Even the post office has got into the spirit of the thing. At a big celebration Saturday it will become Santa Heim, Md.

A word of reassurance:

Work On 48,000-Ton Liner Due To Start Soon

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Maritime Commission tonight planned to start construction early in 1949 on the largest ocean liner ever built in the United States—a 48,000 ton queen of the American merhant fleet.

Costing more than $67,000,000, the super-ship may come from the ways of the Newport News Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Corporation, Newport News, Va. If so, the merchant queen would be built side-by-side with the Navy's new 65,000-ton aircraft carrier.

This company and Bethlehem Steel Company, Quincy, Massachusetts, entered bids, opened today by the commission, to build the new 980-foot passenger vessel. The Newport News shipyard bid $67,350,000 against $75,649,000 by Bethlehem.

A contract has not yet been awarded, a government official said, but he added: "From all indications, the job will be done by Newport News barring unforseen obstacles."

He said the Maritime Commission, the Navy Department, and the proposed commercial operator of the ship must now get together on various questions pertaining to the amount of subsidy involved in the construction.

The ship, as yet without a name, would fly the colors of the United States Lines and ply the North Atlantic sealanes between this country and Europe. The United States Lines also operates the America, currently the largest United States liner afloat with passenger space for 1,219 persons and a gross tonnage of 26,454

It is estimated that Uncle Sam will put up about $30,000,000—or approximately 45 per cent—in subsidy payments into construction of the new ship as a contribution to the nation's merchant marine program and national defense.

The new vessel is designed to provide luxurious peacetime facilities for 2,000 passengers. As a troop transport it could haul 12,000 men and equipment.

F. B. Noyes, Noted Publisher, Dies

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP)—Frank B. Noyes, former president of the Washington Star and one of the organizers of the present Associated Press, died at his home here early today. He was 85 years old.

His life spanned the Civil War and the atomic bomb. At the age of six, he sold newspaper extras on the occasion of President Grant's first inauguration. He was an active journalist for 60 years, rising to the top of the publishing field in Chicago and Washington.

He was the first president of the Associated Press, when it was organized in its present form in 1900, and served in that position for 38 years. Although his health had been failing, he retained an active position in the management of the Washington Star until last winter, as its president. At the time of his death he was board chairman.

Newspapermen and public officials, including President Truman, paid tribute to the veteran publisher today. Mr. Truman referred to him as "a dominating figure, who had been a power in American journalism from the turn of the century." The President's Cabinet and others from near and far added their eulogies.

Reapportionment Plan Approved By Council

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1 (AP) — A proposal to change the Maryland Constitution to give Baltimore City and the larger counties more representation in the House of Delegates was approved te tonight by the Legislative Council.

The proposed amendment would place an all-time ceiling of 125 on membership in the House — an increase of two over the present total of 123.

Each of the 23 counties and Baltimore City's six legislative districts would be given a minimum of two members. The remaining 68 seats would be alloted on a population basis.

One Hurt In Fire At Eskdale, W. Va.

ESKDALE, W. Va., Dec. 1 (AP) — Fire which swept rapidly through this little Kanawha County coal mining community today destroyed a department store and the post office, Fire Chief E. C. Burke, of nearby Marmet, said.

One fireman was injured in fighting the blaze, which for a time also threatened the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway station. Burke estimated the damage at more than $62,000.

He said the blaze, the origin of which had not been determined, apparently broke out shortly before 6 p. m. in a doctor's office located in the store building. The store was owned by the Wyatt Coal Company.

James W. Noe, 23-year-old volunteer fireman from Marmet, was injured when a kerosene explosion threw him against a wall. He was taken to a Charleston hospital.

Burke said the store, a one-story frame building serving about 2,000 residents of the community, burned rapidly after two large kerosene tanks in the basement exploded. The building was valued at $20,000 and its contents at nearly $50,000 by coal company officials.

hours that the city is no longer safe.

(Chinese official sources in Shanghai said an "auxiliary" capital will be set up at Canton, on the South China coast. They denied, however, that Nanking is being abandoned by the government.)

The new defense line against the Communist offensive is being dug along the south bank of the Hwai River. It will be anchored on Pengpu, about 105 miles up the railway from Nanking.

Reports from the front said the bulk of 80,000 men in the Sixth and Eighth Army Groups man the line. Most of them are recruits, or remnants of veteran armies of the lost Manchurian campaign.

A part of this force is holding a salient 10 miles deep on the north bank opposite Pengpu. This is an exit for any troops that may fight free of the massive trap south of Suchow.

(The Hwai River, if it could be adequately defended, is a great military barrier. At places it is wider than the Yangtze. It is the string of a necklace of lakes on the plains north of Nanking.)

Neutral military observers reported that 100,000 Communist veterans of Gen. Chen Yi's East China armies are sweeping south, hoping to encircle and destroy the two army groups before they can fortify the river line.

Meager reports shroud the fate of the 350,000 first-line troops caught in the Communist net south of Suchow, which is 211 miles northwest of Nanking.

Former Student Guilty In Slaying Of Carhop

SEATTLE, Dec. 1. (AP)—John Russell Gasser, 20-year-old former Seattle university student, was convicted tonight of first degree murder for the mutilation slaying of a pretty, young refreshment stand carhop.

The Superior Court jury, which deliberated three hours, recommended against the death penalty.

Gasser admitted from the stand that he choked 22-year-old Donna Woodcock to death in a stolen car last July 10, then left her partly-nude body face down in a mud puddle in a vacant lot outside the city. He said he became angered when she slapped him.

does not mean he approves of crime," he said.

The liaison officers were permitted by Communist police to enter their offices this morning when Acting Mayor Ferdinand Friedensburg showed up at City Hall. Five policemen at the front door barred Friedensburg, who has been trying to keep up the slight fiction of a unified Berlin administration by going to his office each day, though the City Council and most officials long since have been obliged to meet in the western sectors.

White Man Charged With Raping Young Negro Woman Goes On Trial

WETUMPKA, Ala., Dec. 1 (AP) — Short, stocky John C. Howard, Jr., 30, one of two white men charged with raping two negro women, went on trial in Circuit Court here today. An all-white jury is hearing the case.

Howard is charged with raping Melinda Jackson last spring. A companion, Jack Oliver, faces charges of raping Annie Grayson at the same time.

Mrs. Jackson, 22, testified late today that Howard raped her twice on the seat of a pickup truck after threatening her life.

She and the other negro woman, she said, were riding with their husbands when Howard and Oliver forced their car off the road near here and fired a shot into one of the tires. The white men, she said, robbed the negro men and chased them away.

Then, she said, she and Mrs. Grayson were forced into the white men's truck with Mrs. Grayson sitting on Oliver's lap.

As they drove away and onto a gravel road, she said, Howard laughed and said several times "you are going to get some loving tonight or there's going to be some more shooting."

Later she said he told her if she "didn't do it," she wouldn't see her husband or babies again. She didn't say how many children she has.

Mrs. Jackson said when the car stopped Oliver and Mrs. Grayson got out and that Howard pushed her down on the seat and raped her twice. After the other two returned, she said they drove back here.

The negro woman said a deputy sheriff accompanied by her husband, Willie Jackson, stopped the truck when it came into Wetumpka and took the two men into custody.

U. S. Tells France It Will Go Ahead With Ruhr Plan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP)—The United States has told France that the American government is determined to prevent a rebirth of German military might in the Ruhr.

Undersecretary of State Lovett said today that was the gist of a note sent to the French government yesterday.

The formal United States assurance replied to a vigorous French protest against British-American plans to hand over limited control of the Ruhr's giant coal, steel and iron industries to the Germans.

Lovett told newsmen the note made it clear that the United States has decided to go ahead with the plan, which is calculated to provide an incentive for German recovery. Secretary of State Marshall took a similar stand at his news conference last week.

Double Honor For Lane

DETROIT, Dec. 1 (AP) — Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., of Maryland, was elected today to the dual position of chairman of the National Governors' Conference and president of the Council of State Governments.

F. B. Noyes, Noted Publisher, Dies

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP)—Frank B. Noyes, former president of the Washington Star and one of the organizers of the present Associated Press, died at his home here early today. He was 85 years old.

His life spanned the Civil War and the atomic bomb. At the age of six, he sold newspaper extras on the occasion of President Grant's first inauguration. He was an active journalist for 60 years, rising to the top of the publishing field in Chicago and Washington.

He was the first president of the Associated Press, when it was organized in its present form in 1900, and served in that position for 38 years. Although his health had been failing, he retained an active position in the management of the Washington Star until last winter, as its president. At the time of his death he was board chairman.

Newspapermen and public officials, including President Truman, paid tribute to the veteran publisher today. Mr. Truman referred to him as "a dominating figure, who had been a power in American journalism from the turn of the century." The President's Cabinet and others from near and far added their eulogies.

Reapportionment Plan Approved By Council

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1 (AP) — A proposal to change the Maryland Constitution to give Baltimore City and the larger counties more representation in the House of Delegates was approved late tonight by the Legislative Council.

The proposed amendment would place an all-time ceiling of 125 on membership in the House — an increase of two over the present total of 123.

Each of the 23 counties and Baltimore City's six legislative districts would be given a minimum of two members. The remaining 68 seats would be alloted on a population basis.

Bigger Production Goals

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(AP)—The government asked farmers to produce more of some foods including milk. It forecast "continued high consumers demands"—a standard barometer of prosperity.

This year's record-breaking farm output gave Americans 14 per cent more food than they had in the pre war years of 1935-39.

Rita Hayworth Cuts Last Legal Ties To Welles

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 1 (AP) — Rita Hayworth cut her last legal ties to Orson Welles today.

The film beauty, now interested in wealthy Aly Khan, India scion, obtained her final divorce decree after signing an affidavit required by California law that she and Welles had not been reconciled in the year since their interlocutory divorce November 10, 1947.

gram, Robert L. Garner, vice president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, said the European recovery program should be continued only as long as it serves the well-being of the American people.

Garner said that "in my opinion, ERP is a measure of intelligent self-interest, and no one should expect this country to continue to bear the heavy burdens involved in foreign aid except as the people believe that it protects and promotes their own well-being — their economic and financial interests and their security."

The United States, Russia, the Ukraine, Argentina, Canada and Colombia seemed certain to vote for Israel's admission into the United Nations. Britain, Belgium and China probably will abstain, and Syria will oppose. Seven votes are needed for admission.

President Of Costa Rica Abolishes Standing Army

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Dec. 1. (AP)—The Costa Rican army was abolished today.

Jose Figueres, president of the revolutionary government, took the action and said the tiny Central American country will have only a national police force. He said Costa Rica loves peace and there is no need for keeping a standing army, although a call to arms will be made if danger threatens.

He handed over the Bella Vista barracks, the army headquarters, to the Education Ministry for a museum. Defenses of the barracks will be destroyed.

One Hurt In Fire At Eskdale, W. Va.

ESKDALE, W. Va., Dec. 1 (AP) — Fire which swept rapidly through this little Kanawha County coal mining community today destroyed a department store and the post office, Fire Chief E. C. Burke, of nearby Marmet, said.

One fireman was injured in fighting the blaze, which for a time also threatened the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway station. Burke estimated the damage at more than $62,000.

He said the blaze, the origin of which had not been determined, apparently broke out shortly before 6 p. m. in a doctor's office located in the store building. The store was owned by the Wyatt Coal Company.

James W. Noe, 23-year-old volunteer fireman from Marmet, was injured when a kerosene explosion threw him against a wall. He was taken to a Charleston hospital.

Burke said the store, a one-story frame building serving about 2,000 residents of the community, burned rapidly after two large kerosene tanks in the basement exploded. The building was valued at $20,000 and its contents at nearly $50,000 by coal company officials.

hours that the city is no longer safe.

(Chinese official sources in Shanghai said an "auxiliary" capital will be set up at Canton, on the South China coast. They denied, however, that Nanking is being abandoned by the government.)

The new defense line against the Communist offensive is being dug along the south bank of the Hwai River. It will be anchored on Pengpu, about 105 miles up the railway from Nanking.

Reports from the front said the bulk of 80,000 men in the Sixth and Eighth Army Groups man the line. Most of them are recruits, or remnants of veteran armies of the lost Manchurian campaign.

A part of this force is holding a salient 10 miles deep on the north bank opposite Pengpu. This is an exit for any troops that may fight free of the massive trap south of Suchow.

(The Hwai River, if it could be adequately defended, is a great military barrier. At places it is wider than the Yangtze. It is the string of a necklace of lakes on the plains north of Nanking.)

Neutral military observers reported that 100,000 Communist veterans of Gen. Chen Yi's East China armies are sweeping south, hoping to encircle and destroy the two army groups before they can fortify the river line.

Meager reports shroud the fate of the 350,000 first-line troops caught in the Communist net south of Suchow, which is 211 miles northwest of Nanking.

Former Student Guilty In Slaying Of Carhop

SEATTLE, Dec. 1. (AP)—John Russell Gasser, 20-year-old former Seattle university student, was convicted tonight of first degree murder for the mutilation slaying of a pretty, young refreshment stand carhop.

The Superior Court jury, which deliberated three hours, recommended against the death penalty.

Gasser admitted from the stand that he choked 22-year-old Donna Woodcock to death in a stolen car last July 10, then left her partly-nude body face down in a mud puddle in a vacant lot outside the city. He said he became angered when she slapped him.

does not mean he approves of crime," he said.

The liaison officers were permitted by Communist police to enter their offices this morning when Acting Mayor Ferdinand Friedensburg showed up at City Hall. Five policemen at the front door barred Friedensburg, who has been trying to keep up the slight fiction of a unified Berlin administration by going to his office each day, though the City Council and most officials long since have been obliged to meet in the western sectors.

White Man Charged With Raping Young Negro Woman Goes On Trial

WETUMPKA, Ala., Dec. 1 (AP) — Short, stocky John C. Howard, Jr., 30, one of two white men charged with raping two negro women, went on trial in Circuit Court here today. An all-white jury is hearing the case.

Howard is charged with raping Melinda Jackson last spring. A companion, Jack Oliver, faces charges of raping Annie Grayson at the same time.

Mrs. Jackson, 22, testified late today that Howard raped her twice on the seat of a pickup truck after threatening her life.

She and the other negro woman, she said, were riding with their husbands when Howard and Oliver forced their car off the road near here and fired a shot into one of the tires. The white men, she said, robbed the negro men and chased them away.

Then, she said, she and Mrs. Grayson were forced into the white men's truck with Mrs. Grayson sitting on Oliver's lap.

As they drove away and onto a gravel road, she said, Howard laughed and said several times "you are going to get some loving tonight or there's going to be some more shooting."

Later she said he told her if she "didn't do it," she wouldn't see her husband or babies again. She didn't say how many children she has.

Mrs. Jackson said when the car stopped Oliver and Mrs. Grayson got out and that Howard pushed her down on the seat and raped her twice. After the other two returned, she said they drove back here.

The negro woman said a deputy sheriff accompanied by her husband, Willie Jackson, stopped the truck when it came into Wetumpka and took the two men into custody.

U. S. Tells France It Will Go Ahead With Ruhr Plan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP)—The United States has told France that the American government is determined to prevent a rebirth of German military might in the Ruhr.

Undersecretary of State Lovett said today that was the gist of a note sent to the French government yesterday.

The formal United States assurance replied to a vigorous French protest against British-American plans to hand over limited control of the Ruhr's giant coal, steel and iron industries to the Germans.

Lovett told newsmen the note made it clear that the United States has decided to go ahead with the plan, which is calculated to provide an incentive for German recovery. Secretary of State Marshall took a similar stand at his news conference last week.

DETROIT, Dec. 1 (AP) — Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., of Maryland, was elected today to the dual position of chairman of the National Governors' Conference and president of the Council of State Governments.

Christmas Spirit Comes Into Focus In Cumberland

Whether or not this week's shopping throngs set a record for size, their appearance are good signs of the season into which we have entered and welcome ones for department store operators. The thousands who are filling our streets daily have given impetus to the "shop early" urging and could mark a reversal in the recent drop in retail business elsewhere throughout the country.

During the first three weeks of November department store sales were below those of last year. Despite the campaign for early Christmas shopping and the good weather, customers did not crowd store isles as they did a year ago. Business had been brisk, but not up to expectations until this week.

There may have been a number of reasons for the situation. Certain signs elsewhere have pointed to a possible leveling off of the current boom. Resort business last summer suggested that the public was spending not quite so freely as before. Also the reimposition of government regulations on credit might be expected to affect purchases to a moderate extent.

This week's shopping boom in Cumberland could herald a change. Or, perhaps, many have waited until Thanksgiving was over before giving serious attention to Christmas shopping and general preparation for the Yule season. But the crowds this week, which even ignored the bad weather on Monday, have been exceptional.

With plenty of items on store counters that are simply oozing with the Christmas look, bargains available in many lines, and money flowing freely in the pockets of most citizens, this year's Christmas shopping season, now only 20 days to run, is expected to prove to be as good as the best in the city's history.

After all the hue and cry of the campaign there seems to have been no change in the situation and civilization is still at the crossroads.

Labor Learns The Score And Moves To Correct It

Their national conventions, held respectively in Cincinnati and Portland, reveal many differences between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organization, but show them in complete agreement on one proposition — Communism is bad news for organized labor in the United States.

In Portland the CIO has ousted the Communist-dominated Greater New York CIO Council from its ranks. The AFL convention adopted a foreign policy respecting Russia but demanded an immediate blockade of the Soviet Union until the Berlin blockade is lifted and called upon the United Nations to outlaw Communist fifth columns—whose first target is always the ranks of labor.

Even more striking evidence of labor's feelings about Communism was the weekend statement of President Ryan of the AFL longshoremen's union, who charged the Commies with trying to block settlement of the costly East Coast shipping strike. By last Friday a tentative agreement had been reached on a 13-cent hourly wage increase. This was approved by the employers and accepted by Ryan, subject to approval by the dockmen—which has been given.

Suddenly trouble arose. In Brooklyn 2,000 AFL longshoremen met to denounce the wage offer. They claim to represent 13 Brooklyn locals, comprising 13,000 workers. But Ryan called the opposition "an attempt by the Communist Party to becloud the issues." He pointed out that many of the Brooklyn protesters "are not members of the organization. They are men we allowed to work on the piers during the war." He added that only "members of the union in good standing" would be allowed to vote on the wage offer. When the voting was held the Brooklyn dissidents did not prevent ending of the 18-day walkout.

Mr. Ryan no doubt knows whereof he speaks. But if the same statements, however true, had been made by the employers a short time ago there would have been a terrific outcry about "Red-baiting," "dragging Red herring across the trail," etc.

This time the employers sensibly decided not to say anything. They did not need to, because Ryan, like most other labor leaders, has come to realize that the Communist party is interested in American workers only as a stepping stone to Soviet world domination.

Hollywood is to remake "Life of Robinson Crusoe." If they can put the bathing beauties in that one, it will be a slick trick.

Wartime Excess Taxes Wide Open To Criticism

Talk of cutting wartime excise taxes is being heard from Democrats who will have considerable influence on decisions made by the next Congress in the field of taxation. Representative Forand of Rhode Island and Representative Eberharter of Pennsylvania, both members of the House ways and means committee, have said they are ready to press for reductions in these levies.

They can count on support, if for no other reason than that any proposal to lower taxes will have a strong appeal on Capitol Hill—and many of these imposts are paid directly by consumers. But they can make out a good case for revision of the present excise tax system. It is open to criticism.

Excise taxes are frequently spoken of as luxury taxes, but the impost on electric light bulbs hardly fits that description, to name one of many articles. Some imposts are paid directly by consumers while others may be borne by producers or distributors. Some, such as the tax on freight and long-distance telephone calls, add to the cost of doing business and can have inflationary effects.

Representative Forand and Eberharter evidently are not thinking exclusively of these dubious levies, however. They have mentioned taxes on such items as cosmetics, jewelry as imposts that should be lowered or abolished. If they make their list too long, they will strike at the chief virtue of the excise tax system, which is that it does raise revenue. Wartime excise taxes pour more than $1,100,000,000 a year into the government's coffers.

This is important money. It will be needed if the budget is to be balanced. Something can be done to improve the excise tax system, but a major revision will hardly be accomplished this year.

Eskimo women are the most expensively dressed in the world, averaging value of their furs being $5,000. But they still look like 30 cents.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Surgery In The Aged

Surgery in elderly individuals is more hazardous than in younger persons. Nevertheless, it is surprising how well the majority withstand the ordeal. Most physicians have seen more oldtimers go through operations without batting an eyelash and recover as rapidly as far younger patients. But statistics cannot be disregarded and it is generally conceded that the mortality rate in general is nine per cent in men and women over sixty, which is eight times higher than that anticipated in the younger age brackets.

One of the main difficulties physicians encounter in oldsters is the dread of the knife, not only on the part of the patient but his family. As a result, there is considerable stalling whenever the need arises. All too often correction is neglected until the subject becomes desperately ill and is in poor condition to undergo surgery.

The appendix, for example, usually ruptures before the sufferer will consent to operation. Other causes are blamed for the symptoms that are present, as too many individuals do not realize that appendicitis can occur at any age. This contention is borne out also by the fact that in most hospitals, fifty per cent of the operations performed on the elderly are done because of an urgent condition in which life is at stake. Moreover, disturbances requiring surgery are not always easy to diagnose in this age group, which accounts for much of the delay. Cancer is one of the best illustrations.

All of this is unfortunate because the outlook in any operation depends upon the skill of the surgeon and the physical and mental condition of the patent. If the disturbance is not an emergency there is time to correct certain abnormalities which might interfere with a good result. This is particularly important in the aged because the chances are great that the "old gray mare ain't what she used to be." The digestive system is likely to be faulty due to poor teeth, lack of intestinal ferments, and the tendency toward constipation. The muscles have lost their tone, especially those in the abdomen where many of the operations need to be performed.

The vital organs likewise have undergone a certain degree of degeneration. The pumping apparatus could stand a new set of spark plugs and valves but since this is impossible, it is to the patient's advantage to submit to a tune up before the operation, so that the plugs can be cleaned and the valves ground. The "filter" in the kidneys may also require attention and, by supplying ample fluids, cleansing is encouraged. Little can be done about the lungs except that penicillin and the sulfonamides will prove useful if infection exists or pneumonia supervenes.

When older persons are forced to stay in bed their minds are likely to wander; many become confused and incoherent. Side boards are often necessary to prevent them from rolling out of bed. Consequently every attempt is made to get them on their feet as soon as feasible. When this occurs, the change in their mental status is often dramatic.

Males are more expendable from the cradle to the grave. In fact, it starts before birth; for every 100 miscarriages of female children, there are 160 males lost. While the birth rate is 106 males to every 100 females, before the end of the first year, 130 boy babies die for every 100 girls.

Safety first, second and third.

Yes Sir, the town of Richmond, in Surrey England, has gone all out to prevent traffic accidents. They have talking stop-lights that say, "Stop . . . You cannot cross now," and "You may cross now."

One Duchess was insulted. It didn't say, "Please."

But imagine what it would be like if they had talking traffic lights in Hollywood. They would say, "Stop," then, "Caution," then they'd scream, "Go . . . you mad fools you!"

I can see a drunk staggering up to a talking stop-light that says, "Stop" . . . when he wants to go. He pulls himself up indignantly and says, "I'm gonna report you to your superior."

But the talking lights might be very useful. They could perfect a cheery stop-light that would tell jokes and sing songs until the ambulance arrived.

Of course, a stop-light on Hollywood and Vine would be impracticable. It would take one look at the the California drivers and scream, "Good heavens . . . I didn't know I was volunteering for active duty!"

THE OLD MAN OF THE MOUNTAIN

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Madame Chiang Faces Uphill Battle At Home And Here; Dynasty Members Jealous; Madame Chiang's Childlessness Lowers Standing With Husband

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, now 56 but still beautiful, is the victim of a difficult Chinese circle.

In China she is unpopular because she is considered too pro-American. Yet she remained powerful because she was able to wangle munitions from the USA. When American munitions were found in the hands of the Japanese and later the Communists, however, the flow stopped, and with this stoppage Madame Chiang's popularity dropped—in both the United States and China.

Today she is embarked on a frantic, hopeless mission to woo back the Chinese supply line.

Her only asset in this lobbying battle is charm. Of this she has ample, though her effectiveness has been tarnished by tales of high-handedness and extravagance during previous trips to the USA.

The American public has heard, among other things, about the rudeness of her official family when entertained in the White House during the latter years of the Roosevelt regime. At that time Madame Chiang's niece, Miss Kung, objected to the sheets, picked up the telephone and tried to call Cordell Hull to lodge a personal complaint.

There was also Madame Chiang's mysterious flight to Brazil toward the end of the war, allegedly to cache some jewelry; plus the lavish way she lived in New York hotels while pleading for money for starving China.

All these have dimmed somewhat the American people's once great enthusiasm for the Wellesley graduate who married the President of China.

Troubles In China

If Madame Chiang has had her troubles in the United States, however, they are nothing compared to her troubles in China. In the first place she is younger than a brilliant and important sister and brother. And in China the youngest is supposed to rank last.

The fact that marriage to the President of China elevates the former Mayling Soong to be the first lady of the land does not at all help her position with the rest of the family. In fact it rankles.

Madame Chiang and her brother, T. V. Soong, are scarcely on speaking terms. Both were in Washington during one important period of the war, but scarcely exchanged a word together. Once the Chinese Ambassador had to remain at his home to take a phone call from Madame Chiang, which caused him to be late for dinner at the home of her brother. Whereupon he was kept waiting a full hour and a half in an anteroom until all other guests had finished eating.

Mayling's older sister is married to Dr. H. H. Kung, former Minister of Finance, and one of the wealthiest men in China. While the Chinese have starved, he has kept his millions.

Another sister, Madame Sun Yat-sen, is the widow of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese Republic. Though now considered the Martha Washington of China, it is no secret that Madame Sun is openly sympathetic to the so-called Communist armies which her brother-in-law is fighting. Also no secret is Madame Sun's romance with a former American Army officer, Gerald Tannenbaum of Baltimore.

No love is lost between Madame Chiang and Madame Sun. The former supports her husband's right-wing labor association while Madame Sun, long the champion of Chinese guerrillas and coolies, has appealed to American labor leaders to support China's left-wing CIO.

Childless Mayling

One tragedy of Madame Chiang's life is that she is childless. As long as she bears the Generalissimo no progeny, popular sentiment is with him when he goes to another wife.

Madame Chiang is wife No. 3, and for a time her husband went back to wife No. 2. That was one reason why she came to the USA during the war.

The Chinese war lords, who frequently call the tunes for the Generalissimo, have tolerated Mayling partly because of her friendships in Washington. As long as she delivered munitions, she stood well with them.

But even before General Marshall went to China as special U.S. Ambassador, we had come to realize that U.S. arms, badly needed at the European front, were finding their way into Japanese hands.

Many Chinese war lords, having graduated from the Japanese West Point, had much in common with the Japs, saw no percentage in fighting them. General Marshall last week revealed to friends that the Allied front against Italy was delayed six months because of the airplanes he diverted to China in wartime.

U.S. Arms Disappear

Today the same thing is happening—except that American arms now go to the Communists, not the Japs.

Secretary Marshall's official figure for U.S. arms sold or surrendered by Chiang Kai-shek's armies to the Communists in the last three months are:

Three complete arsenals, 14,000 tommy guns, 26,000 machine guns, 270,000 rifles.

Actually the real people of China do a great job of fighting—when they are fed. Under the war lords, however, Chinese troops are never fed, must forage and loot for themselves.

Actually the Russians have sent nowhere near the supplies to the Communist armies that we have sent to Chiang. But Russian propaganda is far better. And most important of all the Chinese are fed up with high prices, no food, and blame their troubles on the Soong dynasty at the top.

Not all the munitions in the USA could make them fight for the Generalissimo—which is the great hurdle the charming Madame Chiang Kai-shek somehow must overcome.

Diplomatic Merry-Go-Round

Tired of Vishinsky's constant quotation of Russian proverbs in U.N. debates, Western delegates now toss back some of their own: "The Soviet delegate will recall the old Ukrainian proverb, 'The pot shouldn't call the kettle black.'" . . . Vishinsky's pet name for Dewey's GOP delegate to the U.N. is John Foster Dollars. . . . Named acting chief of the American delegation in Marshall's absence, Dulles lost no time moving into Marshall's office in the Hotel D'Ilena, where, with a silk American flag at his side, he asserts the authority he had hoped to have with a Dewey victory. . . . After Mrs. Roosevelt's vote against equal rights for illegitimate children, the French Communist newspaper, "L'Humanite," attacked Mrs. Roosevelt as "the weeping delegate." . . . When the chief Chinese delegate to the United Nations got up to make a speech, his own delegation put on their earphones and listened to the English translations—easier than to try to understand his Chinese.

Concrete Facts Regarding Great World Development

By MARK SULLIVAN

About a development momentous in the world and especially to us as a departure, the present facts, so far as concrete facts have been arrived at, are these:

Conferences are under way, and nearing completion, embracing the United States, Canada, and ten nations in Western Europe. In the beginning the Western European nations were five—Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, and Luxembourg. To these are being added Norway, Denmark, Iceland, Portugal and maybe Ireland. The whole group is called the North Atlantic Alliance The purpose is agreement upon joint military action against aggression that may be made upon any one of the nations. Actually, the purpose is much more than joint military action, it is ultimate military unity of the twelve nations.

A pact embodying the agreement is being drafted, when fully drafted it will be informally submitted to Congressional leaders of both parties, these are already kept informed of developments as they take place. After discussion, the draft will be submitted to the Senate for ratification, presumably in early February, this is the Administration hope.

Adheres To Constitution

The pact takes account, necessarily, of the provision of our Constitution which says that the country can enter upon war only by an act of Congress. Under the pact, all the other nations will be subject to the same condition. Thus each nation is committed to enter war only by a decision made at the time the occasion arises. This however, is relatively immaterial, the pact commits us and the other signing nations to joint military action.

The pact to be laid before the Senate is a master pact, it is comparatively simple and basic; its great importance lies in the broad authority it gives for actions and plans by the respective governments and other military heads.

After the master pact is ratified there will be a series of agreements short of the status of treaties or a pact. These look to building up the twelve nations to a state of readiness when and if aggression takes place; they contemplate readiness of the armed forces to act as a single military unit. They include a large number of provisions—common standards of armament and munitions, interchangeable equipment, blueprints for allocation of munitions manufacture among the several countries, location of military bases, and over-all strategy, preparedness for over-all command in a case of action. In addition to formal agreements, and in some respects even more important, will be informal and continuous cooperation by the military heads of the respective nations. Some of this is already taking place. While the joint maneuvers of British and American air forces last summer were not within the North Atlantic Alliances, they are the kind of thing likely to take place under it.

This union for military strength is companion to the cooperation for economic strength under the Marshall plan. While both arise from the same condition and purpose the North Atlantic Alliance is much more important because it looks toward permanency and is embodied in a pact to be ratified by the Senate, while the Marshall plan looks to termination in a few years. Both compose a grouping of nations having common ideals and policies a chief one of which is resistance to the Russian purpose of communizing and dominating the world.

New Orientation Of Nations

Thus arises a new orientation of nations on a basis other than geography and taking no account of oceans and continents. The two nations that compose nearly all the North American continent unite with ten nations that compose most of Western Europe. Even on the basis of geography this is logical enough. We are much closer in distance to England than to many parts of the American continent. A journey from New York to Liverpool by ship consumes only half the time of one to Buenos Aires. But the true and sound basis of the new union is not contiguity or nearness, it is not even common economic interest, it is common ideals about government and otherwise.

It may be that the new union is the beginning of a new orientation of the world as a whole. About one-fourth of the world is now preparing to form the North Atlantic Alliance with other countries of Western Europe expected to join in the future. This is the fourth that has the longest history of cultural advance, the most skillful industrial techniques and the greatest economic strength. By their union now forming they will have a preponderant military strength sufficient to deter agression. Roughly another fourth of the world is composed of Communist Russia and its satellites. What seems possible to happen to the remaining half of the world is a gradual gravitation, country by country, toward either the focus of Communist Russia or the focus of the Western nations now moving toward solidarity in the North Atlantic Alliance.

Probe Of Congressmen Needed With Lobbying Investigation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. — Once upon a time the framers of the Constitution wrote into the Bill of Rights a declaration guaranteeing to every citizen the "right to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

This is a very important right and one of the first that an intolerant majority in any republic would seek to destroy.

By subtle attacks on so-called "lobbying," the effort now has been begun to squelch the legitimate expression of opinion. Congress is prohibited by the first amendment to the Constitution from making any law abridging the right of petition and yet there is a law on the statute books today which interferes with the right of petition. President Truman, moreover, has just given official endorsement to a plan of a national labor union to press upon Congress a resolution for an investigation of "lobbying."

Mr. Truman has been a member of Congress and he ought to know whether or not there is integrity in the legislative branch of the government. For the inquiry might just as well be entitled an investigation of the receptiveness of congressmen and senators to the petitions of the citizens.

Probe of Congressmen Not Asked

If, of course, a congressman is bribed or unduly influenced by an offer of material rewards, this is logically and properly a subject for investigation and there are already laws on the statute books to punish those officials who accept bribes. But the President apparently is not asking that the members of Congress be investigated. He is asking that the citizens who present these petitions in Washington shall be investigated.

There have been investigations of lobbies before but not until recently was a law passed setting forth burdensome procedures of registration amounting in many instances to a virtual interference with the citizen's right of petition.

It is a very simple matter to abridge any constitutional right by making the requirements of registration so cumbersome as to discourage altogether the use of that right. In these days of vehement argument about civil rights, it is significant that there should be developed a means of harassing the citizen in the exercise of one of his most important civil rights.

The average citizen is helpless as an individual. He can, of course, write to Congress but he does not know the details of legislation. This is left to organized groups to handle for him. Thus the biggest single lobby in Washington for many years has been the labor lobby. It is effective, too, having succeeded for 13 years in warding off amendments to the Wagner Labor Relations Act by the simple expedient of influencing members of two congressional committees to sit on the proposed amendments and keep them from going to the floor.

Rather Sinister Development

The labor lobby, however, has had every right to do this and so have business men's groups. It is rather a sinister development that the labor groups always want the business men's lobbies driven away from the national capital but want their own lobby to operate unhampered by the presentation of an opposition viewpoint.

There is no reason why legislative agents should not be required to register but it is of no public concern what their fees are any more than the fees of lawyers or other professional consultants. It is important only whether any money is used to bribe members of Congress. If there is to be an investigation of lobbying there ought logically to be an investigation of the behavior of members of Congress. This would probably result in discouraging citizens from petitioning Congress and likewise cause members of both Houses to hesitate to receive representatives of national organizations. It is an easy way to frustrate the exercise of the right of petition. Maybe that is to be the trend of the newest phase of the New Deal. It would be strange indeed if so-called liberalism, triumphant at the polls, set out in the name of liberalism to squelch in free America, directly or indirectly, the right of the citizen to petition his government for a redress of grievances.

These Days

Schuyler Spoke His Mind

GEORGE S. SCHUYLER is an editor and columnist of the Pittsburgh Courier, one of the leading Negro publications of the United States. A journalist of skill and courage and essential honesty, he wrote:

"Most of what is said and written about the South is untrue. Today it is not a place of terror and persecution, nor has it been in many decades. I am always amused when friends express fear and sympathy because I am going South, assuming wrongly that I am endangering my life. Actually I think no more of visiting the heart of Mississippi or Texas or South Carolina than I do about visiting Minnesota, Maine or New Mexico.

"I have gone into large towns and small villages in every one of the Southern states and have always been treated as well as anywhere else by both white and colored people. True, there are Jim-Crow laws, the existence of which I deplore, but I obey them, and their existence (which irks me) does not blind me to the opportunities Negroes have there.

'For all the faults of the South, it must be admitted that colored people are better off there than any other minority elsewhere with comparable background—and I believe I have more information about the position of minorities in other countries than most people.

"Right now the South is prosperous. Negroes everywhere can purchase homes and farms, and they are doing so. Nowhere is there studied insult or discourtesy within the social framework of the section, and everywhere Negroes tell me that persecution and police brutality are rarely encountered—and they should know."

These are three paragraphs of a long article, but nothing is taken out of context. He ends his article with this paragraph:

"Since most Negroes are going to remain in the South, their leaders will have to learn to act like it, and to push programs of graduailsm with greater skill and statemanship unswerved by emotional claque from 'abroad.'"

The article, published on November 6, created a stir in the Negro world, particularly as it ran counter to the usual propaganda. Hodding Carter, editor of the Democrat Delta-Times, Greenville, Miss., had quoted Schuyler on a Town Meeting discussion, thus attracting more general attention to the fact that a Northern Negro editor spoke up that conditions were actually improving in the South.

So Schuyler wrote another piece in which he said:

"As I have stated previously, the nearly eleven million Negroes in the South today obviously wish to remain there, else they would have long departed from the section because no one has stopped them from doing so.

"It is an insult to these people to say that they are terrorized and persecuted, and nevertheless remain, when the price of bus or railroad coach fare would place them above the Potomac and Ohio Rivers. Since they elect to stay there, they must try to get along there and better their conditions there, which certainly cannot be done by antagonizing the people amongst whom they must live."

It strikes me that this is constructive and sensible American citizenship. True, his newspaper on the same day that the second piece appeared saw fit to back-track by failing to assume responsibilities for his views. No one expects a newspaper to be responsible for a columnist's views, even if he happens to be an editor as well.

But George Schuyler's views are so sound that they reflect favorably upon and strengthen the newspaper that publishes them. In speaking to his own people frankly and constructively, he prophetically shows them the way to a better life.

In recent months, George Schuyler visited the South and wrote a series of seven articles entitled, "What's Good About the South?" Four of these articles have thus far appeared; I asume the remainder will be published in The Pittsburgh Courier.

These articles are a valuable sociological study of the extraordinary progress which Negroes are making in the southern states. People who regard themselves as minorities often fall for outsiders who praise them and only too often dislike their own when they tell the truth.

Baering Down On The News

They had another one of those Venezuelan elections last week. The incumbent was notified he was the outcumbent.

They do that by taking a poll of hitch-hikers' thumb spainted with radium for nocturnal departures.

It was a bloodless revolution. We don't know whether the Venezuelans are getting polite or need a transfusion.

Anyway, Degaldo Chalbaud is in and Romulo (let her go) Gallegos is out. There will be a special meeting of our own State Department to fix Gallego's pension under the Marshall Plan.

Christmas Spirit Comes Into Focus In Cumberland

Whether or not this week's shopping throngs set a record for size, their appearance are good signs of the season into which we have entered and welcome ones for department store operators. The thousands who are filling our streets daily have given impetus to the "shop early" urging and could mark a reversal in the recent drop in retail business elsewhere throughout the country.

During the first three weeks of November department store sales were below those of last year. Despite the campaign for early Christmas shopping and the good weather, customers did not crowd store isles as they did a year ago. Business had been brisk, but not up to expectations until this week.

There may have been a number of reasons for the situation. Certain signs elsewhere have pointed to a possible leveling off of the current boom. Resort business last summer suggested that the public was spending not quite so freely as before. Also the reimposition of government regulations on credit might be expected to affect purchases to a moderate extent.

This week's shopping boom in Cumberland could herald a change. Or, perhaps, many have waited until Thanksgiving was over before giving serious attention to Christmas shopping and general preparation for the Yule season. But the crowds this week, which even ignored the bad weather on Monday, have been exceptional.

With plenty of items on store counters that are simply oozing with the Christmas look, bargains available in many lines, and money flowing freely in the pockets of most citizens, this year's Christmas shopping season, now only 20 days to run, is expected to prove to be as good as the best in the city's history.

After all the hue and cry of the campaign there seems to have been no change in the situation and civilization is still at the crossroads.

Labor Learns The Score And Moves To Correct It

Their national conventions, held respectively in Cincinnati and Portland, reveal many differences between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organization, but show them in complete agreement on one proposition — Communism is bad news for organized labor in the United States.

In Portland the CIO has ousted the Communist-dominated Greater New York CIO Council from its ranks. The AFL convention adopted a foreign policy respecting Russia but demanded an immediate blockade of the Soviet Union until the Berlin blockade is lifted and called upon the United Nations to outlaw Communist fifth columns—whose first target is always the ranks of labor.

Even more striking evidence of labor's feelings about Communism was the weekend statement of President Ryan of the AFL longshoremen's union, who charged the Commies with trying to block settlement of the costly East Coast shipping strike. By last Friday a tentative agreement had been reached on a 13-cent hourly wage increase. This was approved by the employers and accepted by Ryan, subject to approval by the dockmen—which has been given.

Suddenly trouble arose. In Brooklyn 2,000 AFL longshoremen met to denounce the wage offer. They claim to represent 13 Brooklyn locals, comprising 13,000 workers. But Ryan called the opposition "an attempt by the Communist Party to becloud the issues." He pointed out that many of the Brooklyn protesters "are not members of the organization. They are men we allowed to work on the piers during the war." He added that only "members of the union in good standing" would be allowed to vote on the wage offer. When the voting was held the Brooklyn dissidents did not prevent ending of the 18-day walkout.

Mr. Ryan no doubt knows whereof he speaks. But if the same statements, however true, had been made by the employers a short time ago there would have been a terrific outcry about "Red-baiting," "dragging Red herring across the trail," etc.

This time the employers sensibly decided not to say anything. They did not need to, because Ryan, like most other labor leaders, has come to realize that the Communist party is interested in American workers only as a stepping stone to Soviet world domination.

Hollywood is to remake "Life of Robinson Crusoe." If they can put the bathing beauties in that one, it will be a slick trick.

Wartime Excess Taxes Wide Open To Criticism

Talk of cutting wartime excise taxes is being heard from Democrats who will have considerable influence on decisions made by the next Congress in the field of taxation. Representative Forand of Rhode Island and Representative Eberharter of Pennsylvania, both members of the House ways and means committee, have said they are ready to press for reductions in these levies.

They can count on support, if for no other reason than that any proposal to lower taxes will have a strong appeal on Capitol Hill—and many of these imposts are paid directly by consumers. But they can make out a good case for revision of the present excise tax system. It is open to criticism.

Excise taxes are frequently spoken of as luxury taxes, but the impost on electric light bulbs hardly fits that description, to name one of many articles. Some imposts are paid directly by consumers while others may be borne by producers or distributors. Some, such as the tax on freight and long-distance telephone calls, add to the cost of doing business and can have inflationary effects.

Representative Forand and Eberharter evidently are not thinking exclusively of these dubious levies, however. They have mentioned taxes on such items as cosmetics, jewelry as imposts that should be lowered or abolished. If they make their list too long, they will strike at the chief virtue of the excise tax system, which is that it does raise revenue. Wartime excise taxes pour more than $1,100,000,000 a year into the government's coffers.

This is important money. It will be needed if the budget is to be balanced. Something can be done to improve the excise tax system, but a major revision will hardly be accomplished this year.

Eskimo women are the most expensively dressed in the world, averaging value of their furs being $5,000. But they still look like 30 cents.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Surgery In The Aged

Surgery in elderly individuals is more hazardous than in younger persons. Nevertheless, it is surprising how well the majority withstand the ordeal. Most physicians have seen more oldtimers go through operations without batting an eyelash and recover as rapidly as far younger patients.

Dr. Van Dellen

But statistics cannot be disregarded and it is generally conceded that the mortality rate in general is nine per cent in men and women over sixty, which is eight times higher than that anticipated in the younger age brackets.

One of the main difficulties physicians encounter in oldsters is the dread of the knife, not only on the part of the patient but his family. As a result, there is considerable stalling whenever the need arises. All too often correction is neglected until the subject becomes desperately ill and is in poor condition to undergo surgery.

The appendix, for example, usually ruptures before the sufferer will consent to operation. Other causes are blamed for the symptoms that are present, as too many individuals do not realize that appendicitis can occur at any age. This contention is borne out also by the fact that in most hospitals, fifty per cent of the operations performed on the elderly are done because of an urgent condition in which life is at stake. Moreover, disturbances requiring surgery are not always easy to diagnose in this age group, which accounts for much of the delay. Cancer is one of the best illustrations.

All of this is unfortunate because the outlook in any operation depends upon the skill of the surgeon and the physical and mental condition of the patent. If the disturbance is not an emergency there is time to correct certain abnormalities which might interfere with a good result. This is particularly important in the aged because the chances are great that the "old gray mare ain't what she used to be." The digestive system is likely to be faulty due to poor teeth, lack of intestinal ferments, and the tendency toward constipation. The muscles have lost their tone, especially those in the abdomen where many of the operations need to be performed.

The vital organs likewise have undergone a certain degree of degeneration. The pumping apparatus could stand a new set of spark plugs and valves but since this is impossible, it is to the patient's advantage to submit to a tune up before the operation, so that the plugs can be cleaned and the valves ground. The "filter" in the kidneys may also require attention and, by supplying ample fluids, cleansing is encouraged. Little can be done about the lungs except that penicillin and the sulfonamides will prove useful if infection exists or pneumonia supervenes.

When older persons are forced to stay in bed their minds are likely to wander; many become confused and incoherent. Side boards are often necessary to prevent them from rolling out of bed. Consequently every attempt is made to get them on their feet as soon as feasible. When this occurs, the change in their mental status is often dramatic.

Madame Chiang Faces Uphill Battle At Home And Here; Dynasty Members Jealous; Madame Chiang's Childlessness Lowers Standing With Husband

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, now 56 but still beautiful, is the victim of a difficult Chinese circle.

In China she is unpopular because she is considered too pro-American. Yet she remained powerful because she was able to wangle munitions from the USA. When American munitions were found in the hands of the Japanese and later the Communists, however, the flow stopped, and with this stoppage Madame Chiang's popularity dropped—in both the United States and China.

Today she is embarked on a frantic, hopeless mission to woo back the Chinese supply line.

Her only asset in this lobbying battle is charm. Of this she has ample, though her effectiveness has been tarnished by tales of high-handedness and extravagance during previous trips to the USA.

The American public has heard, among other things, about the rudeness of her official family when entertained in the White House during the latter years of the Roosevelt regime. At that time Madame Chiang's niece, Miss Kung, objected to the sheets, picked up the telephone and tried to call Cordell Hull to lodge a personal complaint.

There was also Madame Chiang's mysterious flight to Brazil toward the end of the war, allegedly to cache some jewelry; plus the lavish way she lived in New York hotels while pleading for money for starving China.

All these have dimmed somewhat the American people's once great enthusiasm for the Wellesley graduate who married the President of China.

Troubles In China

If Madame Chiang has had her troubles in the United States, however, they are nothing compared to her troubles in China. In the first place she is younger than a brilliant and important sister and brother. And in China the youngest is supposed to rank last.

The fact that marriage to the President of China elevates the former Mayling Soong to be the first lady of the land does not at all help her position with the rest of the family. In fact it rankles.

Madame Chiang and her brother, T. V. Soong, are scarcely on speaking terms. Both were in Washington during one important period of the war, but scarcely exchanged a word together. Once the Chinese Ambassador had to remain at his home to take a phone call from Madame Chiang, which caused him to be late for dinner at the home of her brother. Whereupon he was kept waiting a full hour and a half in an anteroom until all other guests had finished eating.

Mayling's older sister is married to Dr. H. H. Kung, former Minister of Finance, and one of the wealthiest men in China. While the Chinese have starved, he has kept his millions.

Another sister, Madame Sun Yat-sen, is the widow of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese Republic. Though now considered the Martha Washington of China, it is no secret that Madame Sun is openly sympathetic to the so-called Communist armies which her brother-in-law is fighting. Also no secret is Madame Sun's romance with a former American Army officer, Gerald Tannenbaum of Baltimore.

No love is lost between Madame Chiang and Madame Sun. The former supports her husband's right-wing labor association while Madame Sun, long the champion of Chinese guerrillas and coolies, has appealed to American labor leaders to support China's left-wing CIO.

Childless Mayling

One tragedy of Madame Chiang's life is that she is childless. As long as she bears the Generalissimo no progeny, popular sentiment is with him when he goes to another wife.

Madame Chiang is wife No. 3, and for a time her husband went back to wife No. 2. That was one reason why she came to the USA during the war.

The Chinese war lords, who frequently call the tunes for the Generalissimo, have tolerated Mayling partly because of her friendships in Washington. As long as she delivered munitions, she stood well with them.

But even before General Marshall went to China as special U.S. Ambassador, we had come to realize that U.S. arms, badly needed at the European front, were finding their way into Japanese hands.

Many Chinese war lords, having graduated from the Japanese West Point, had much in common with the Japs, saw no percentage in fighting them. General Marshall last week revealed to friends that the Allied front against Italy was delayed six months because of the airplanes he diverted to China in wartime.

U.S. Arms Disappear

Today the same thing is happening—except that American arms now go to the Communists, not the Japs.

Secretary Marshall's official figure for U.S. arms sold or surrendered by Chiang Kai-shek's armies to the Communists in the last three months are:

Three complete arsenals, 14,000 tommy guns, 26,000 machine guns, 270,000 rifles.

Actually the real people of China do a great job of fighting—when they are fed. Under the war lords, however, Chinese troops are never fed, must forage and loot for themselves.

Actually the Russians have sent nowhere near the supplies to the Communist armies that we have sent to Chiang. But Russian propaganda is far better. And most important of all the Chinese are fed up with high prices, no food, and blame their troubles on the Soong dynasty at the top.

Not all the munitions in the USA could make them fight for the Generalissimo—which is the great hurdle the charming Madame Chiang Kai-shek somehow must overcome.

Diplomatic Merry-Go-Round

Tired of Vishinsky's constant quotation of Russian proverbs in U.N. debates, Western delegates now toss back some of their own: "The Soviet delegate will recall the old Ukrainian proverb, 'The pot shouldn't call the kettle black.'" . . . Vishinsky's pet name for Dewey's GOP delegate to the U.N. is John Foster Dollars. . . . Named acting chief of the American delegation in Marshall's absence, Dulles lost no time moving into Marshall's office in the Hotel D'Ilena, where, with a silk American flag at his side, he asserts the authority he had hoped to have with a Dewey victory. . . . After Mrs. Roosevelt's vote against equal rights for illegitimate children, the French Communist newspaper, "L'Humanite," attacked Mrs. Roosevelt as "the weeping delegate." . . . When the chief Chinese delegate to the United Nations got up to make a speech, his own delegation put on their earphones and listened to the English translations—easier than to try to understand his Chinese.

Concrete Facts Regarding Great World Development

By MARK SULLIVAN

About a development momentous in the world and especially to us as a departure, the present facts, so far as concrete facts have been arrived at, are these:

Conferences are under way, and nearing completion, embracing the United States, Canada, and ten nations in Western Europe. In the beginning the Western European nations were five—Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, and Luxembourg. To these are being added Norway, Denmark, Iceland, Portugal and maybe Ireland. The whole group is called the North Atlantic Alliance The purpose is agreement upon joint military action against aggression that may be made upon any one of the nations. Actually, the purpose is much more than joint military action, it is ultimate military unity of the twelve nations.

A pact embodying the agreement is being drafted, when fully drafted it will be informally submitted to Congressional leaders of both parties, these are already kept informed of developments as they take place. After discussion, the draft will be submitted to the Senate for ratification, presumably in early February, this is the Administration hope.

Adheres To Constitution

The pact takes account, necessarily, of the provision of our Constitution which says that the country can enter upon war only by an act of Congress. Under the pact, all the other nations will be subject to the same condition. Thus each nation is committed to enter war only by a decision made at the time the occasion arises. This however, is relatively immaterial, the pact commits us and the other signing nations to joint military action.

The pact to be laid before the Senate is a master pact, it is comparatively simple and basic; its great importance lies in the broad authority it gives for actions and plans by the respective governments and other military heads.

After the master pact is ratified there will be a series of agreements short of the status of treaties or a pact. These look to building up the twelve nations to a state of readiness when and if aggression takes place; they contemplate readiness of the armed forces to act as a single military unit. They include a large number of provisions—common standards of armament and munitions, interchangeable equipment, blueprints for allocation of munitions manufacture among the several countries, location of military bases, and over-all strategy, preparedness for over-all command in a case of action. In addition to formal agreements, and in some respects even more important, will be informal and continuous cooperation by the military heads of the respective nations. Some of this is already taking place. While the joint maneuvers of British and American air forces last summer were not within the North Atlantic Alliances, they are the kind of thing likely to take place under it.

This union for military strength is companion to the cooperation for economic strength under the Marshall plan. While both arise from the same condition and purpose the North Atlantic Alliance is much more important because it looks toward permanency and is embodied in a pact to be ratified by the Senate, while the Marshall plan looks to termination in a few years. Both compose a grouping of nations having common ideals and policies a chief one of which is resistance to the Russian purpose of communizing and dominating the world.

New Orientation Of Nations

Thus arises a new orientation of nations on a basis other than geography and taking no account of oceans and continents. The two nations that compose nearly all the North American continent unite with ten nations that compose most of Western Europe. Even on the basis of geography this is logical enough. We are much closer in distance to England than to many parts of the American continent. A journey from New York to Liverpool by ship consumes only half the time of one to Buenos Aires. But the true and sound basis of the new union is not contiguity or nearness, it is not even common economic interest, it is common ideals about government and otherwise.

It may be that the new union is the beginning of a new orientation of the world as a whole. About one-fourth of the world is now preparing to form the North Atlantic Alliance with other countries of Western Europe expected to join in the future. This is the fourth that has the longest history of cultural advance, the most skillful industrial techniques and the greatest economic strength. By their union now forming they will have a preponderant military strength sufficient to deter agression. Roughly another fourth of the world is composed of Communist Russia and its satellites. What seems possible to happen to the remaining half of the world is a gradual gravitation, country by country, toward either the focus of Communist Russia or the focus of the Western nations now moving toward solidarity in the North Atlantic Alliance.

Probe Of Congressmen Needed With Lobbying Investigation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. — Once upon a time the framers of the Constitution wrote into the Bill of Rights a declaration guaranteeing to every citizen the "right to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

This is a very important right and one of the first that an intolerant majority in any republic would seek to destroy.

By subtle attacks on so-called "lobbying," the effort now has been begun to squelch the legitimate expression of opinion. Congress is prohibited by the first amendment to the Constitution from making any law abridging the right of petition and yet there is a law on the statute books today which interferes with the right of petition. President Truman, moreover, has just given official endorsement to a plan of a national labor union to press upon Congress a resolution for an investigation of "lobbying."

Mr. Truman has been a member of Congress and he ought to know whether or not there is integrity in the legislative branch of the government. For the inquiry might just as well be entitled an investigation of the receptiveness of congressmen and senators to the petitions of the citizens.

Probe of Congressmen Not Asked

If, of course, a congressman is bribed or unduly influenced by an offer of material rewards, this is logically and properly a subject for investigation and there are already laws on the statute books to punish those officials who accept bribes. But the President apparently is not asking that the members of Congress be investigated. He is asking that the citizens who present these petitions in Washington shall be investigated.

There have been investigations of lobbies before but not until recently was a law passed setting forth burdensome procedures of registration amounting in many instances to a virtual interference with the citizen's right of petition.

It is a very simple matter to abridge any constitutional right by making the requirements of registration so cumbersome as to discourage altogether the use of that right. In these days of vehement argument about civil rights, it is significant that there should be developed a means of harassing the citizen in the exercise of one of his most important civil rights.

The average citizen is helpless as an individual. He can, of course, write to Congress but he does not know the details of legislation. This is left to organized groups to handle for him. Thus the biggest single lobby in Washington for many years has been the labor lobby. It is effective, too, having succeeded for 13 years in warding off amendments to the Wagner Labor Relations Act by the simple expedient of influencing members of two congressional committees to sit on the proposed amendments and keep them from going to the floor.

Rather Sinister Development

The labor lobby, however, has had every right to do this and so have business men's groups. It is rather a sinister development that the labor groups always want the business men's lobbies driven away from the national capital but want their own lobby to operate unhampered by the presentation of an opposition viewpoint.

There is no reason why legislative agents should not be required to register but it is of no public concern what their fees are any more than the fees of lawyers or other professional consultants. It is important only whether any money is used to bribe members of Congress. If there is to be an investigation of lobbying there ought logically to be an investigation of the behavior of members of Congress. This would probably result in discouraging citizens from petitioning Congress and likewise cause members of both Houses to hesitate to receive representatives of national organizations. It is an easy way to frustrate the exercise of the right of petition. Maybe that is to be the trend of the newest phase of the New Deal. It would be strange indeed if so-called liberalism, triumphant at the polls, set out in the name of liberalism to squelch in free America, directly or indirectly, the right of the citizen to petition his government for a redress of grievances.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Schuyler Spoke His Mind

GEORGE S. SCHUYLER is an editor and columnist of the Pittsburgh Courier, one of the leading Negro publications of the United States. A journalist of skill and courage and essential honesty, he wrote:

"Most of what is said and written about the South is untrue. Today it is not a place of terror and persecution, nor has it been in many decades. I am always amused when friends express fear and sympathy because I am going South, assuming wrongly that I am endangering my life. Actually I think no more of visiting the heart of Mississippi or Texas or South Carolina than I do about visiting Minnesota, Maine or New Mexico.

"I have gone into large towns and small villages in every one of the Southern states and have always been treated as well as anywhere else by both white and colored people. True, there are Jim-Crow laws, the existence of which I deplore, but I obey them, and their existence (which irks me) does not blind me to the opportunities Negroes have there.

'For all the faults of the South, it must be admitted that colored people are better off there than any other minority elsewhere with comparable background—and I believe I have more information about the position of minorities in other countries than most people.

"Right now the South is prosperous. Negroes everywhere can purchase homes and farms, and they are doing so. Nowhere is there studied insult or discourtesy within the social framework of the section, and everywhere Negroes tell me that persecution and police brutality are rarely encountered—and they should know."

These are three paragraphs of a long article, but nothing is taken out of context. He ends his article with this paragraph:

"Since most Negroes are going to remain in the South, their leaders will have to learn to act like it, and to push programs of graduailsm with greater skill and statemanship unswerved by emotional claque from 'abroad.'"

The article, published on November 6, created a stir in the Negro world, particularly as it ran counter to the usual propaganda. Hodding Carter, editor of the Democrat Delta-Times, Greenville, Miss., had quoted Schuyler on a Town Meeting discussion, thus attracting more general attention to the fact that a Northern Negro editor spoke up that conditions were actually improving in the South.

So Schuyler wrote another piece in which he said:

"As I have stated previously, the nearly eleven million Negroes in the South today obviously wish to remain there, else they would have long departed from the section because no one has stopped them from doing so.

"It is an insult to these people to say that they are terrorized and persecuted, and nevertheless remain, when the price of bus or railroad coach fare would place them above the Potomac and Ohio Rivers. Since they elect to stay there, they must try to get along there and better their conditions there, which certainly cannot be done by antagonizing the people amongst whom they must live."

It strikes me that this is constructive and sensible American citizenship. True, his newspaper on the same day that the second piece appeared saw fit to back-track by failing to assume responsibilities for his views. No one expects a newspaper to be responsible for a columnist's views, even if he happens to be an editor as well.

But George Schuyler's views are so sound that they reflect favorably upon and strengthen the newspaper that publishes them. In speaking to his own people frankly and constructively, he prophetically shows them the way to a better life.

In recent months, George Schuyler visited the South and wrote a series of seven articles entitled, "What's Good About the South?" Four of these articles have thus far appeared; I asume the remainder will be published in The Pittsburgh Courier.

These articles are a valuable sociological study of the extraordinary progress which Negroes are making in the southern states. People who regard themselves as minorities often fall for outsiders who praise them and only too often dislike their own when they tell the truth.

Baering Down On The News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

They had another one of those Venezuelan elections last week. The incumbent was notified he was the outcumbent.

They do that by taking a poll of hitch-hikers' thumb spainted with radium for nocturnal departures.

It was a bloodless revolution. We don't know whether the Venezuelans are getting polite or need a transfusion.

Anyway, Degaldo Chalbaud is in and Romulo (let her go) Gallegos is out. There will be a special meeting of our own State Department to fix Gallego's pension under the Marshall Plan.

Appeal For Yule Gifts For Blind Lepers Is Made

The usual Christmas gift of cash to the blind and crippled members of the leper colony at the United States Marine Hospital, Carville, La., will be sent to the chaplain at the hospital today, Mrs. E. W. Yates president of the local group said last night.

Mrs. Yates and her group have been especially interested in assisting the lepers for about 20 years, becoming interested when a man was discovered here to have leprosy and was placed in a box car between here and Keyser until he could be sent to Carville, through the instigation of Mrs. Yates, assisted by then Congressman Nicholas Zihlman.

Contributions will be accepted and sent to the sanatorium by Mrs. Yates, 46 Boone Street, or Mrs. John H. Miller, 119 Oak Street.

One Thing Well

It seems to me that if each one of us would do at least one good thing each day, we should not have to be ashamed of our lives. I am sure that many of my own days have passed without having pleased me, and without a single thing done of consequence.

I came across this sentence by Samuel Smith Drury, late headmaster of St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire. Said he: "Is not the secret of contentment the quiet willingness to do one thing well?" Many a famous name lives because of but one thing well done in an entire lifetime! Noah Webster, for example, created Webster's Dictionary. And James Boswell left to posterity the greatest biography in all literature—his Boswell's Johnson.

Had Thomas Edison done nothing else but invent the electric light, his life would remain as one of the most noted and useful in all the history of the world—but Edison was not a man to be satisfied with but one thing—even though that one should be most outstanding.

The Boy Scout idea of doing at least one kind act a day is an excellent one. From that standpoint we ought all to be Boy Scouts. Let's try to be!

Many are the men who try to do a dozen or more things in a day, but without doing any one of them well. I think that I will stick to the one thing. It suits me better. If that one thing is important, doing it well should give great personal satisfaction.

I would far more wish to be the author of but one book that would live than to have a dozen to my credit that would be "first sellers" and then die. George Gissing, the English writer, wrote a score or more volumes, and died in his early forties, thinking his literary life a failure, but to a friend he wrote about his book, "The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft," as follows: "I have given more thought and care and manual labor to this little book than to anything else I ever did. It won't be popular, but I expect that neither will it be wholly neglected."

Well, of all the books that Gissing wrote, this one book—that he took so much pains with—will probably outlive all the others that he wrote. It's a little classic!

AT THE CIRCUS—Nine Homemakers Clubs are represented in the above group attending the performance of the "Man on the Flying Trapeze," one of the song interpretations presented during the Gay Nineties Pageant, sponsored by the Allegany County Council of Homemakers Clubs and the Homemakers Chorus. A capacity crowd attended the performance at Allegany High School and a silver offering of $112 was collected and will be divided between the county council and chorus. Mrs. Emma Koontz (center) portrayed "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." Others (left to right, front row) are Mrs. Thomas Miller, Mrs. Beatrice Thompson, Mrs. W. A. Judy, Mrs. J. Cameron Taylor, Mrs. Grace Mont, the strong man; Mrs. Holmes Cessna, a clown; Mrs. Julia Lewis and Mrs. Trubador Lewis as the old gray mare; Mrs. E. C. Kilroy, the barker for the show; Mrs. H. J. Rolly, Mrs. Boyd Sulser, Mrs. R. H. Aldridge, Buffalo Bill; Mrs. Charles Hager, Mrs. Lawrence H. Shafferman, Diamond Jim Brady; Mrs. George A. Kraft, the fat woman; Mrs. Adam Baer, Miss Clair Lucille Malin, the thin man. Back row are Mrs. Earl Smith, Mrs. Benjamin L. Moreland; Mrs. Charles Long, as Lillian Russell; Mrs. Charles Callis, Mrs. Charles Jones, Mrs. Joseph J. Coleman, Mrs. John S. Cook, Mrs. Harry Morgan, Mrs. Robert Young, Mrs. Edgar Shumaker and Mrs. Douglas Smith.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

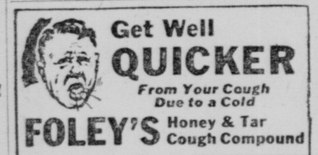

Will reading help cure neurosis?

Answer: Anything will help that gives the sufferer "insight" into the true nature of his difficulties. However, a person who has a severe neurosis has uncon ious "blind spots," due to uncontrollable "resistance" to facing too painful facts or ideas. These keep him from applying what he reads to himself and getting the help that it might g e him. One well known psychiatrist has said that my book, "The Way To Be Happy," should have been called "First Aid to Neurotics," but no book can be more.

Can disease be cured by magic?

Answer: Not really, of course, though because men long attributed their ailments to supernatural agencies, magic became their most favored way of trying to alleviate them. In "Magic and Healing," C. J. S. Thompson lists among forms of magic that have bee - used in Great Britain, astrology, incantations, "transplantation" (to some object which can be destroyed), the touch of a healer, medicinal rings, and many others. The apparent cures achieved by these and other forms of witchcraft (some of which are still occasionally practiced) was of course due to the psychological effect of believing in them.

Should people be classified by "character traits"?

Answer: No, maintain psychologists Robert H. Seashore and Ward Jenssen of Northwestern University. Rather than describing people as brave, honest, ambitious, and so on, they should be distinguished by their habitual methods of responding to the principal types of situations every person faces." Thus some people will habitually resent criticism, others will accept it blindly as "what they deserve," and still others will try to learn from it. To help anyone, you must know his habitual responses.

Definite Aims And Lots Of Activity Aid Club Success

"How do you form a club? We're girls of 14 and 15, and we'd like to know how to get the teenagers in our town together to form an organization to participate in athletic and social activities. We think it would be a good move, for the fellows and girls who don't know what to do with their extra time, and it could be fun—but how can we start the ball rolling?"

Nancy Mottram

As long as you are sincerely interested, you can put the idea over with a little effort. And the first place to start is your own school. But you'll have to have some definite plans and ambitions before other people will be willing to join in.

Have a group meeting and talk about it. Get everybody's opinion on the aims of your club, and draw up a constitution. You can name regular nights for meetings, set an amount for dues and suggest a name for the group. Then you'll be ready to ask other friends if they'd like to become members.

Another angle you might want to look into is the possibility of having sponsors. They might be fathers and mothers of some of the girls, who'll help out in the projects you have in mind, or a faculty member of your high school. Older people can really be valuable in helping you get the club on its feet and lend support while it's being established. And interested faculty member can aid in your drive to turn it into a school-wide organization and advise you in your attempts to promote athletic activities on your own.

When your treasury is well on its way, start thinking about having a dance. Decide on the place, and settle on a weekend night when you can be sure of drawing a crowd. Get all the details down pat to make sure of a success. A jukebox or a record player can provide the music and set up a snack bar for intermission. Somethink like this can definitely establish your club and asaa result, you may gain quite a few as members who might not have been eager to join before.

You'll find that most teens love to "belong" to an organization and when you've got a list of members who'll really work to put things across, your idea will really turn into something. The civic movements in your town can be counted on to help, too. Once you set out to form a crowd that can't be labeled a "clique," you'll have no trouble getting support, and let it be known that you're open to suggestions.

It won't be hard. Just avoid the "hangers-on," and keep things alive by planning all kinds of activities with everyone co-operating. That way, your membership roll will keep on growing. There are hundreds of possibilities, both social and civic. And this brain-child of yours will turn into one of the best ideas for the young crowd of your town that has come along in some time.

If you have a school, family or friends problem, Nancy can help you. Letters are answered in this column.

"Magdalena" Believed Found

ZARAGOZA, Spain—(AP)—Art experts are speculating that a long lost "Magdalena" painted by the 16th Century Italian artist, Titian, may have been encountered in the collection of a wealthy family here.

The painting was sent to Alejandro Canada, to be cleaned and restored, and he uncovered details which he contends assure the picture is the work of Titian. Art critics recalled that Titian painted three "Magdalenas," all in similar positions and of equal size. One is said to be in the museum of St. Petersburg and the other at Naples. There are no records of the third.

The Boy Scout movement had its beginning in the British Isles in 1908.

The U. S. Post Office Department never uses the portrait of a living person on a postage stamp.

Philippine Scouts Want More Pay

MANILA — (AP) — The Philippine Scouts, who have been part of the U. S. Army since 1901, want a raise in pay. A Philippine Scouts veterans' mission is trying to get to Tokyo to ask Gen. MacArthur's assistance, but has been unable to arrange transportation.

The Scouts are paid on a "peso for dollar" basis. Since the peso is worth 50 cents, this means the scout gets half what an American soldier does. This is almost twice the prewar pay, but the scouts say it is not enough. Their veterans' association wants it put on a dollar for dollar basis.

The U. S. secretary of the army has authority to fix the pay. He gets the present rate after comparing U. S. and Philippine living costs and standards. The scouts are all Filipinos, who by special act of the Philippines republic do not lose their citizenship by serving under the American flag.

MAY NOT RUN AGAIN—Australian bred Shannon II looked out of his stall at Tanforan track at San Bruno, Calif., yesterday waiting for his breakfast and evidently not interested if he ever runs another race. He may not. The Leslie Coombs syndicate of Kentucky bought the horse for a reported $300,000. TRA Head Says Unjust Taxing Dooms Racing

New York Levy Causes Big Slump In Betting

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—James E. Dooley, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations, said today that unless state legislatures stopped "an unjust taxation trend," they would tax horse racing out of existence.

The head of Rhode Island's Narragansett Park addressed the opening meeting of the annual TRA convention, attended by executives and officials from 33 major American tracks.

"An examination of the charts, 'trend of racing,' showing a comparison of the mutuel handle at New York tracks with other major tracks during the period between January 1, 1944, and October 1, 1948, shows the effect of the additional 5 per cent levy for municipalities," Dooley said.

In New York, the state takes 6 per cent of the pari-mutuel betting, municipalities 5, with 4 per cent to the tracks.

New York Shows Slump

"The trend of betting the country over during that period shows a decrease of 18 per cent in comparison with the total play in 1945, but in New York, largely as a result of the 15 per cent levy, the chart shows that the handle has fallen 43 per cent below the 1945 figure," Dooley continued.

"It is not difficult to see that such a levy in another area not having a drawing power similar to New York, would prove disastrous.

"Uninformed legislators and budget balancing agencies everywhere should be influenced to understand racing's true economic value and to stop an unjust taxation trend which, if continued, will tax racing out of existence."

Racing now is legalized in 25 states, Colorado having voted approval in the recent election. Betting in 1947 totaled $1,671,340,795, a reduction of $158,946,660 as compared with 1946. Attendance, however, gained slightly. The 1948 figures are not yet available.

Dooley said the 1948 season could be reviewed "with mingled feelings of satisfaction and concern," although the downward trend in wagering "was to be expected."

Sport Still Popular

He said the fact that race track attendance was about the same showed the sport had lost none of its popularity.

"From a broad, general viewpoint, 1948 has been a good racing year."

In another report, Spencer J. Drayton, head of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau, criticized "inadequate" penalties imposed by some racing stewards and commissions against racing rule violators.

"It is not my desire in any way to be vindictively severe," the head of racing's "FBI" declared.

"I do believe, however, that those individuals who have admittedly indulged in such offenses as race fixing, stimulations and other major forms of racing evils or racketeering should be eliminated from the racing profession for life.

"To invite them back or permit them to return after a short period of suspension is a practice which, I believe, injures racing materially and will weaken public confidence and support."

Dooley said that, thanks to Drayton's bureau, "in a large measure," racing wasn't marred by a single major scandal this year, and that adoption of a code of standards by the TRA had inspired similar steps in other sports.

SHO' LOOP HAS SIX TEAMS, CHAMBERSBURG FREDERICK DROPPED

REHOBOTH, Del., Dec. 1 (AP)—Officials of the Eastern Shore League, trying to find a basis upon which the Class D baseball circuit may operate next season, decided today to cut the loop to six teams.

Chambersburg, Pa., and Frederick, Md., which had been tentatively assigned the franchises dropped by Dover and Milford, Del., were voted out at a eague meeting today.

Chambersburg could not find a major league sponsor. Frederick had secured a tieup with the Philadelphia A's, but the league officials decided that Frederick is too far away from the Eastern Shore to become a league member.

An Old Schramm Custom — No Limit On Camp Kills
Bob Cook To Get Prize — Fake Ballyhoo Must Stop

By C. V. BURNS

Bob Schramm, who kicked 17 of Allegany High School's 29 points after touchdowns this season, comes from a family of booters.

His father, Paul Schramm, who operates a grocery store at Cresaptown, played on Barton High School state championship soccer teams back in the early 1920's, and his uncle is none other than Ernie Schramm, another Barton High product who ranks as one of Allegany county's top all-time scholastic athletes in soccer, basketball and baseball.

Paul and Ernie are cousins of Karl and Harrison (Base) Schramm who were also Barton High greats in bygone days.

Those boys could make a soccer ball do about everything but talk.

Ralph R. Webster, principal of Allegany High School, estimates that the Thanksgiving Day grid game here attracted about 9,000 persons, including complimentary tickets.

Prior to this year the largest crowd was in 1946 when the attendance was estimated at 7,700 of which 7,536 were paying patrons.

D. Paul Camilletti of Wheeling, recently appointed an assistant United States attorney for the Northern District of West Virginia, starred on Davis and Elkins College football teams about 20 years ago before he entered law school at West Virginia University.

Camilletti began the practice of law in Wheeling in 1931 and served five years as municipal judge at Wheeling.

Many are the stories about Satchel Paige, negro pitching star of the Cleveland Indians but the one we think is exceptionally good concerned Paige feeling ill about the 8th inning of a game in the east.

He walked off the mound into the clubhouse where he sought aid of the trainer but the latter was absent and Bob Lemon took over as "doctor." He gave Satch a couple of pills and Paige went back to the mound and finished the game.

When he came back into the dugout after the game Satch asked Lemon what kind of pills he had given him.

"Why,, those were cold pills, Satch," said Lemon.

"Cold pills," said Satch, "Ah aint got no cold."

"Well," quipped Lemon, "I gave 'em to you so you wouldn't get one!"

Irvin "Irish" Alexander writes from Baltimore that he will present Bob Cook, Frostburg VFW pitcher-outfielder, with a cash prize for winning the batting championship of the Bi-State League this year.

The presentation will be made on Christmas Day between 1 and 2 p. m., at the Lonaconing Republican Club, Alexander says.

Alexander states he promised to give the batting champion a topcoat or suit of clothes but believes a cash equivalent will be more satisfactory to the player.

The Kansas City Stars came here last night from Philadelphia where they played the Indiana Clark Twins, an unique family team comprised of three sets of twin brothers. Bob, Don, Joe, Ross, Jim and Dale Clark comprise the personnel of the squad.

Replying to a set of queries which has become an annual custom Grantland Rice writes:

1. Bowling has the greatest number of players, approximately 20,000,000.

2. Basketball probably leads in total attendance with so many thousands of teams. Baseball, big and minor leagues, may crowd out basketball.

3. Football has the greatest concentrated attendance and cash receipts. College football, without any question, has the greatest crowd appeal.

The Middies will meet Southern California, Princeton, Duke, Wisconsin, Penn, Tulane, Notre Dame, Columbia and Army.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden for Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, advises that there is no regulation in Maryland regarding the limit on the number of deer kills per camp. The law allows one deer per hunter.

In Pennsylvania the limit is one per hunter and six per camp or hunting party of six or more.

Minke explains there are few camps in Maryland during the deer season and because of this fact no special regulations are necessary.

If local boxing promoters continue to ballyhoo certain bouts in advance of a show and fail to go through with them on the night the matches are scheduled this paper will refuse to publish the pairings before shows in the future.

We believe this trick on the part of the promoters to sell tickets in advance of the shows has gone far enough.

When cancellation of certain bouts is necessary the promoters should inform the newspapers immediately so as not to deceive the fans.

Marty Flynn, who can make an awful racket with a pair of drum sticks, wants to know if Notre Dame out-statisticked Army in their famous 0-0 deadlock at the Yankee Stadium on November 9, 1946.

Well, Mr. Flynn, here are the statistics, figure it out yourself:

	N. D.	ARMY
First Downs	11	9
Yards Gained Rushing	173	138
Passes Attempted	17	16
Passes Completed	6	5
Yards Gained Passing	52	57
Passes Intercepted By	2	3
Yds. Gained Interceptions	5	39
Yards Lost Penalties	5	30
Avg. Distance Punts	40	40

Wonder if Marty could be trying to get Notre Dame and Army together again?

Linemen Of Week Honors Accorded Kellum Of Army

Cadets' 190-Pound End Starred In Navy Game

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP) — Bill Kellum, Army end, today gained honors as lineman of the week in the final Associated Press poll of the season.

Kellum, a 22-year-old from Haynesville, La., earned the award for his top play in the Army-Navy struggle before 102,600 at Philadelphia.

The 190-pound end never let any plays get around him. He either made the tackle or forced the runner to cut back inside. His number "85" seemed to be in most key plays.

Tossed Baysinger For Loss

One of these came on the first play of the second quarter. Underdog Navy, already ahead 7-0, had the ball on the Army 12, third down, six to go. Reaves Baysinger of Navy faded back to pass, but Kellum tossed him for a nine-yard loss before he could get the ball away. faded back to pass, but Kellum broke through to block a Navy punt that gave Army the ball on the Navy 38.

Navy, a three-touchdown underdog, might have won but for Kellum's play. As it was the game ended in a 21-21 tie.

Ernie Stautner, Boston College tackle, and Lavern Torgerson, Washington State tackle, likewise drew high praise for their feats.

Stautner played a major role in BC's 21-20 triumph over Holy Cross. He recovered a fumble to set up one BC score, converted all three extra points, and blocked one Holy Cross attempted conversion. In addition he was credited with making about 50 per cent of Boston College tackles.

Intercepts Lions' Aerials

Torgerson's performance helped Washington State hold Penn State to a 7-0 victory. He intercepted three Penn State aerials and made a high percentage of his team's tackles.

Other linemen nominated were:

Ends — Lorendo, Georgia; Poole, Mississippi; Haggerty, William and Mary; O'Quinn, Wake Forest.

Tackles — Hutchinson, Chattanooga.

Guards — Healy, Georgia Tech; Henry, Army; Musser, North Carolina State.

Locals Flash Best Form To Spring Upset

Bag 3rd Straight Win, 550 See Exciting Tilt

Cumberland's Dukes were about as hot as a pot-bellied stove in a lumber camp with the temperature at sub-zero as the registered a stunning upset last night at the expense of the Kansas City Stars, classy professional road aggregation, before 550 paying customers at SS. Peter and Paul gym. The score was 56 to 48.

In marking up their third consecutive victory of the season, Coach "Red" Klotz's boys flashed their best all-around form in turning back the visiting club of negro ball hawks in a fast game that had the fans on their toes and cheering throughout.

Kansas City held the lead only twice in the game at 2-1 as the contest got under way and 25-24 as the third quarter started but the visitors were dangerous right down to the closing minutes of play when they pulled up four points in the rear at 52-48. With 1:30 yet to go "Babe" Johnson and Bob Pence fired the shots that iced the game for the home team.

Stars Score First

The Stars, who came here with an 11-4 record from Philadelphia, broke into the scoring column as the game started when Vertes Zeigler sank a lay-up. After Johnson hooped a free throw, Bill Day heaved in one from the outside to give the Dukes the edge at 3-2. The Stars caught the locals at 7-7 on Sam Wheeler's basket but the Dukes forged to the front at the quarter whistle when Paul Oberhaus and Pence connected for fielders to make the score 12-7.

Midway in the second quarter the Dukes held an 11-point advantage at 21-10 but two baskets by Wheeler and one by Boid Buie, the one-armed star, put Kansas City only one point behind at 24-23 at the half.

Oberhaus Breaks Final Tie

The Missourians grabbed the lead for the second and final time in the ball game as the third quarter opened when Frank Washington's basket made the score 25-24. A long shot by Klotz sent Cumberland out in front but Zeigler converted one of two throws at the charity line to knot the count at 26-26. Then the Dukes caught fire. Oberhaus batted in a follow-up and Gus Frizzell connected for a double-decker and the home team was never headed. The third quarter ended with the score 42-34.

Cumberland was leading by nine points, 52-43 with 4:10 to play when Hall scored a field goal and Wilber King registered two points at the charity stripe. After Frizzell went out on personal fouls Wheeler hooped one of two free tosses to put the Stars only two points behind. Then Johnson and Pence contributed the insurance tallies for the locals.

Bell, Pence Top Scorers

The game was easily the best and most exciting of the three staged this season and was highlighted by the goal tossing of Lou Bell and Bob Pence, who collected 15 and 13 points, the foul pitching of Klotz who connected five times in six tries and the floor work of Frizzell, Bell and Klotz. Sam Wheeler was the Stars' best bet. He banged in 16 points and played a whale of a floor game.

Bobby Cavanaugh and Clifton Van Roby turned in a commendable job of officiating. They called 15 personals on the Dukes and 11 on the visitors. The winners held a 24-19 edge in field goals. At the foul line the Stars converted 10 of 21 throws while the Dukes sank 8 of 14.

Warren (Pa.) Bulldogs will meet the Dukes in an All-American League game here Sunday at 9 p. m.

Mounties Score 44th Win In Row At Home

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 1 (AP) — West Virginia University inaugurated another basketball campaign here tonight by trouncing outmanned Bethany 71-48 for the Mountaineers' 44th straight home floor triumph.

Picking up where they left off a year ago, the Mountaineers stepped quickly away to an early lead and never were in danger. They had built up their margin to 38-17 at the half.

Captain Freddie Schaus and Center Eddie Beach paced the West Virginia squad with 17 points each as Coach Lee Patton swept the bench clear, although top individual honors went to Don Harris, the Bethany center who banged in 18.

Bethany tied the count at 2-2 in the first minute of play, but never was in front as the Mountaineers put the blanket on Jim Mewhirter, one of the Tri-State District's top scorers a year ago.

Both teams appeared ragged, and at times the crowd of 6,427 shouted for more action. The game was delayed 25 minutes in the second half while oil was mopped from the playing floor following a break in a line high in the field house rafters.

It was the 11th straight win for West Virginia. The Mounties had built up a 10-game streak in the last half of the 1947-48 season.

All-America Loop Plans Sudden Death Overtime Period

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1 (AP) — The All-America Football Conference has provided for something new — sudden death overtime periods—in the event of a playoff tie in its eastern division.

The tie is possible between the Baltimore Colts and the Buffalo Bills.

The two teams will play here Sunday. If Baltimore wins the elevens will be deadlocked, each with seven wins and seven losses. They'll return here Dec. 12 to play off the tie.

And just in case the playoff game winds up in a tie at the end of the regulation game the teams will go right on playing. After a three-minute rest they will play 15 minute quarters until one scores.

The conference announcement says nothing about how many extra quarters will be played until somebody scores. So it may go on all night.

Cumberland Dukes Turn Back Kansas City Stars, 56-48

MAY NOT RUN AGAIN—Australian bred Shannon II looked out of his stall at Tanforan track at San Bruno, Calif., yesterday waiting for his breakfast and evidently not interested if he ever runs another race. He may not. The Leslie Coombs syndicate of Kentucky bought the horse for a reported $300,000. Shannon II was to have run against Citation in the $50,000 Tanforan Handicap December 11, but has been withdrawn because he was assigned 127 pounds to 123 for Citation. He will be taken to Kentucky for stud service.

TRA Head Says Unjust Taxing Dooms Racing

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—James E. Dooley, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations, said today that unless state legislatures stopped "an unjust taxation trend," they would tax horse racing out of existence.

The head of Rhode Island's Narragansett Park addressed the opening meeting of the annual TRA convention, attended by executives and officials from 33 major American tracks.

"An examination of the charts, 'trend of racing,' showing a comparison of the mutuel handle at New York tracks with other major tracks during the period between January 1, 1944, and October 1, 1948, shows the effect of the additional 5 per cent levy for municipalities," Dooley said.

In New York, the state takes 6 per cent of the pari-mutuel betting, municipalities 5, with 4 per cent to the tracks.

New York Shows Slump

"The trend of betting the country over during that period shows a decrease of 18 per cent in comparison with the total play in 1945, but in New York, largely as a result of the 15 per cent levy, the chart shows that the handle has fallen 43 per cent below the 1945 figure," Dooley continued.

"It is not difficult to see that such a levy in another area not having a drawing power similar to New York, would prove disastrous.

"Uninformed legislators and budget balancing agencies everywhere should be influenced to understand racing's true economic value and to stop an unjust taxation trend which, if continued, will tax racing out of existence."

Racing now is legalized in 25 states, Colorado having voted approval in the recent election. Betting in 1947 totaled $1,671,340,795, a reduction of $158,946,660 as compared with 1946. Attendance, however, gained slightly. The 1948 figures are not yet available.

Dooley said the 1948 season could be reviewed "with mingled feelings of satisfaction and concern," although the downward trend in wagering "was to be expected."

Sport Still Popular

He said the fact that race track attendance was about the same showed the sport had lost none of its popularity.

"From a broad, general viewpoint, 1948 has been a good racing year."

In another report, Spencer J. Drayton, head of the Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau, criticized "inadequate" penalties imposed by some racing stewards and commissions against racing rule violators.

"It is not my desire in any way to be vindictively severe," the head of racing's "FBI" declared.

"I do believe, however, that those individuals who have admittedly indulged in such offenses as race fixing, stimulations and other major forms of racing evils or racketeering should be eliminated from the racing profession for life.

"To invite them back or permit them to return after a short period of suspension is a practice which, I believe, injures racing materially and will weaken public confidence and support."

Dooley said that, thanks to Drayton's bureau, "in a large measure," racing wasn't marred by a single major scandal this year, and that adoption of a code of standards by the TRA had inspired similar steps in other sports.

SHO' LOOP HAS SIX TEAMS, CHAMBERSBURG FREDERICK DROPPED

REHOBOTH, Del., Dec. 1 (AP)—Officials of the Eastern Shore League, trying to find a basis upon which the Class D baseball circuit may operate next season, decided today to cut the loop to six teams.

Chambersburg, Pa., and Frederick, Md., which had been tentatively assigned the franchises dropped by Dover and Milford, Del., were voted out at a eague meeting today.

Chambersburg could not find a major league sponsor. Frederick had secured a tieup with the Philadelphia A's, but the league officials decided that Frederick is too far away from the Eastern Shore to become a league member.

An Old Schramm Custom — No Limit On Camp Kills

Bob Cook To Get Prize — Fake Ballyhoo Must Stop

By C. V. BURNS

Bob Schramm, who kicked 17 of Allegany High School's 29 points after touchdowns this season, comes from a family of booters.

His father, Paul Schramm, who operates a grocery store at Cresaptown, played on Barton High School state championship soccer teams back in the early 1920's, and his uncle is none other than Ernie Schramm, another Barton High product who ranks as one of Allegany county's top all-time scholastic athletes in soccer, basketball and baseball.

Paul and Ernie are cousins of Karl and Harrison (Base) Schramm who were also Barton High greats in bygone days.

Those boys could make a soccer ball do about everything but talk.

Ralph R. Webster, principal of Allegany High School, estimates that the Thanksgiving Day grid game here attracted about 9,000 persons, including complimentary tickets.

Prior to this year the largest crowd was in 1946 when the attendance was estimated at 7,700 of which 7,536 were paying patrons.

D. Paul Camilletti of Wheeling, recently appointed an assistant United States attorney for the Northern District of West Virginia, starred on Davis and Elkins College football teams about 20 years ago before he entered law school at West Virginia University.

Camilletti began the practice of law in Wheeling in 1931 and served five years as municipal judge at Wheeling.

Many are the stories about Satchel Paige, negro pitching star of the Cleveland Indians but the one we think is exceptionally good concerned Paige feeling ill about the 8th inning of a game in the east.

He walked off the mound into the clubhouse where he sought aid of the trainer but the latter was absent and Bob Lemon took over as "doctor." He gave Satch a couple of pills and Paige went back to the mound and finished the game.

When he came back into the dugout after the game Satch asked Lemon what kind of pills he had given him.

"Why,, those were cold pills, Satch," said Lemon.

"Cold pills," said Satch, "Ah aint got no cold."

"Well," quipped Lemon, "I gave 'em to you so you wouldn't get one!"

Irvin "Irish" Alexander writes from Baltimore that he will present Bob Cook, Frostburg VFW pitcher-outfielder, with a cash prize for winning the batting championship of the Bi-State League this year.

The presentation will be made on Christmas Day between 1 and 2 p. m., at the Lonaconing Republican Club, Alexander says.

Alexander states he promised to give the batting champion a topcoat or suit of clothes but believes a cash equivalent will be more satisfactory to the player.

The Kansas City Stars came here last night from Philadelphia where they played the Indiana Clark Twins, an unique family team comprised of three sets of twin brothers. Bob, Don, Joe, Ross, Jim and Dale Clark comprise the personnel of the squad.

Replying to a set of queries which has become an annual custom Grantland Rice writes:

1. Bowling has the greatest number of players, approximately 20,000,000.

2. Basketball probably leads in total attendance with so many thousands of teams. Baseball, big and minor leagues, may crowd out basketball.

3. Football has the greatest concentrated attendance and cash receipts. College football, without any question, has the greatest crowd appeal.

Looks like Navy's football team will play another light schedule in 1949.

The Middies will meet Southern California, Princeton, Duke, Wisconsin, Penn, Tulane, Notre Dame, Columbia and Army.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden for Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, advises that there is no regulation in Maryland regarding the limit on the number of deer kills per camp. The law allows one deer per hunter.

In Pennsylvania the limit is one per hunter and six per camp or hunting party of six or more.

Minke explains there are few camps in Maryland during the deer season and because of this fact no special regulations are necessary.

If local boxing promoters continue to ballyhoo certain bouts in advance of a show and fail to go through with them on the night the matches are scheduled this paper will refuse to publish the pairings before shows in the future.

We believe this trick on the part of the promoters to sell tickets in advance of the shows has gone far enough.

When cancellation of certain bouts is necessary the promoters should inform the newspapers immediately so as not to deceive the fans.

Marty Flynn, who can make an awful racket with a pair of drum sticks, wants to know if Notre Dame out-statisticked Army in their famous 0-0 deadlock at the Yankee Stadium on November 9, 1946.

Well, Mr. Flynn, here are the statistics, figure it out yourself:

	N. D.	ARMY
First Downs	11	9
Yards Gained Rushing	173	138
Passes Attempted	17	16
Passes Completed	6	5
Yards Gained Passing	52	57
Passes Intercepted By	2	3
Yds. Gained Interceptions	5	39
Yards Lost Penalties	5	20
Avg. Distance Punts	40	40

Wonder if Marty could be trying to get Notre Dame and Army together again?

Linemen Of Week Honors Accorded Kellum Of Army

Cadets' 190-Pound End Starred In Navy Game

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP) — Bill Kellum, Army end, today gained honors as lineman of the week in the final Associated Press poll of the season.

Kellum, a 22-year-old from Haynesville, La., earned the award for his top play in the Army-Navy struggle before 102,000 at Philadelphia.

The 190-pound end never let any plays get around him. He either made the tackle or forced the runner to cut back inside. His number "85" seemed to be in most key plays.

Tossed Baysinger For Loss

One of these came on the first play of the second quarter. Underdog Navy, already ahead 7-0, had the ball on the Army 12, third down, six to go. Reaves Baysinger of Navy faded back to pass, but Kellum tossed him for a nine-yard loss before he could get the ball away. faded back to pass, but Kellum broke through to block a Navy punt that gave Army the ball on the Navy 38.

Navy, a three-touchdown underdog, might have won but for Kellum's play. As it was the game ended in a 21-21 tie.

Ernie Stautner, Boston College tackle, and Lavern Torgerson, Washington State tackle, likewise drew high praise for their feats.

Stautner played a major role in BC's 21-20 triumph over Holy Cross. He recovered a fumble to set up one BC score, converted all three extra points, and blocked one Holy Cross attempted conversion. In addition he was credited with making about 50 per cent of Boston College tackles.

Intercepts Lions' Aerials

Torgerson's performance helped Washington State hold Penn State to a 7-0 victory. He intercepted three Penn State aerials and made a high percentage of his team's tackles.

Other linemen nominated were:

Ends — Lorendo, Georgia; Poole, Mississippi; Haggerty, William and Mary; O'Quinn, Wake Forest.

Tackles — Hutchinson, Chattanooga.

Guards — Healy, Georgia Tech; Henry, Army; Musser, North Carolina State.

Locals Flash Best Form To Spring Upset

Bag 3rd Straight Win, 550 See Exciting Tilt

Cumberland's Dukes were about as hot as a pot-bellied stove in a lumber camp with the temperature at sub-zero as the registered a stunning upset last night at the expense of the Kansas City Stars, classy professional road aggregation, before 550 paying customers at SS. Peter and Paul gym. The score was 56 to 48.

In marking up their third consecutive victory of the season, Coach "Red" Klotz's boys flashed their best all-around form in turning back the visiting club of negro ball hawks in a fast game that had the fans on their toes and cheering throughout.

Kansas City held the lead only twice in the game at 2-1 as the contest got under way and 25-24 as the third quarter started but the visitors were dangerous right down to the closing minutes of play when they pulled up four points in the rear at 52-48. With 1:30 yet to go "Babe" Johnson and Bob Pence fired the shots that iced the game for the home team.

Stars Score First

The Stars, who came here with an 11-4 record from Philadelphia, broke into the scoring column as the game started when Vertes Zeigler sank a lay-up. After Johnson hooped a free throw, Bill Day heaved in one from the outside to give the Dukes the edge at 3-2. The Stars caught the locals at 7-7 on Sam Wheeler's basket but the Dukes forged to the front at the quarter whistle when Paul Oberhaus and Pence connected for fielders to make the score 12-7.

Midway in the second quarter the Dukes held an 11-point advantage at 21-10 but two baskets by Wheeler and one by Boid Buie, the one-armed star, put Kansas City only one point behind at 24-23 at the half.

Oberhaus Breaks Final Tie

The Missourians grabbed the lead for the second and final time in the ball game as the third quarter opened when Frank Washington's basket made the score 25-24. A long shot by Klotz sent Cumberland out in front but Zeigler converted one of two throws at the charity line to knot the count at 26-26. Then the Dukes caught fire. Oberhaus batted in a follow-up and Gus Frizzell connected for a double-decker and the home team was never headed. The third quarter ended with the score 42-34.

Cumberland was leading by nine points, 52-43 with 4:10 to play when Hall scored a field goal and Wilber King registered two points at the charity stripe. After Frizzell went out on personal fouls Wheeler hooped one of two free tosses to put the Stars only two points behind. Then Johnson and Pence contributed the insurance tallies for the locals.

Bell, Pence Top Scorers

The game was easily the best and most exciting of the three staged this season and was highlighted by the goal tossing of Lou Bell and Bob Pence, who collected 15 and 13 points, the foul pitching of Klotz who connected five times in six tries and the floor work of Frizzell, Bell and Klotz. Sam Wheeler was the Stars' best bet. He banged in 16 points and played a whale of a floor game.

Bobby Cavanaugh and Clifton Van Roby turned in a commendable job of officiating. They called 15 personals on the Dukes and 11 on the visitors. The winners held a 24-19 edge in field goals. At the foul line the Stars converted 10 of 21 throws while the Dukes sank 8 of 14.

Warren (Pa.) Bulldogs will meet the Dukes in an All-American League game here Sunday at 9 p. m.

Mounties Score 44th Win In Row At Home

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 1 (AP) — West Virginia University inaugurated another basketball campaign here tonight by trouncing outmanned Bethany 71-48 for the Mountaineers' 44th straight home floor triumph.

Picking up where they left off a year ago, the Mountaineers stepped quickly away to an early lead and never were in danger. They had built up their margin to 38-19 at the half.

Captain Freddie Schaus and Center Eddie Beach paced the West Virginia squad with 17 points each as Coach Lee Patton swept the bench clear, although top individual honors went to Don Harris, the Bethany center who banged in 18.

Bethany tied the count at 2-2 in the first minute of play, but never was in front as the Mountaineers put the blanket on Jim Mewhirter, one of the Tri-State District's top scorers a year ago.

Both teams appeared ragged, and at times the crowd of 6,427 shouted for more action. The game was delayed 25 minutes in the second half while oil was mopped from the playing floor following a break in a line high in the field house rafters.

It was the 11th straight win for West Virginia. The Mounties had built up a 10-game streak in the last half of the 1947-48 season.

GARDEN TO STAGE FIRST TWIN BILL

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP)—College basketball gets going in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night with Baylor, Tennessee, New York U., and St. John's of Brooklyn featured in the doubleheader.

Baylor and N.Y.U. will be opening their seasons. Tennessee won its opener.

St. John's already has beaten its Alumni and two other quintets.

The Redmen of St. John's, rated one of the strongest squads in the metropolitan area, will meet Tennessee, a strong Southeastern Conference five, in the opener at 8 p. m. (EST).

NYU and Baylor will take the floor about 9:45. Baylor nipped NYU last March, 59-57, in the Olympic trials.

BEAGLE CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS TOMORROW

The Allegany Beagle Club will elect officers for the ensuing year at a meeting to be held Friday at 8 p. m. at the Woodmen of the World building, Union Street.

Present officers of the club are Hugh Stevenson, Ellerslie, president; Walter Weires, vice president; T. James Stevenson, secretary-treasurer. Dr. H. C. Diehl, Frostburg, is chairman of the field trial committee.

The club will hold its next field trial December 12.

Ruffing Is Manager

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—(AP)—Charles (Red) Ruffing, once the pride of the New York Yankee pitching staff, will make his debut as a baseball manager next season at the helf of Muskegon, Mich., in the Class A Central League.

Ruffing's appointment to succeed Bennie Huffman as Muskegon pilot was announced today by Johnny Rigney, director of the Chicago White Sox farm system.

All-America Loop Plans Sudden Death Overtime Period

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1 (AP) — The All-America Football Conference has provided for something new — sudden death overtime periods—in the event of a playoff tie in its eastern division.

The tie is possible between the Baltimore Colts and the Buffalo Bills.

The two teams will play here Sunday. If Baltimore wins the elevens will be deadlocked, each with seven wins and seven losses. They'll return here Dec. 12 to play off the tie.

And just in case the playoff game winds up in a tie at the end of the regulation game the teams will go right on playing. After a three-minute rest they will play 15 minute quarters until one scores.

The conference announcement says nothing about how many extra quarters will be played until somebody scores. So it may go on all night.

Bartell Named Coach By Detroit Tigers

DETROIT, Dec. 1—(AP)—Richard (Dick) Bartell, former manager of the Kansas City Blues, today was named a coach for the Detroit Tigers for 1949.

Bartell, 41, played shortstop with the Philadelphia Nationals, the Pittsburgh Pirates, the Yankees and the Chicago Cubs before joining Detroit in 1940. He helped spark the Tigers to an American League pennant that year.

Released in 1941, he played with the New York Giants until he entered military service in 1944. He went to Sacramento after his discharge.

Bullets Trade Mogus To Fort Wayne Club

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1—(AP)—The Baltimore Bullets, still trying to put together a winning combination in the Basketball Association of America, announced today a trade with Fort Wayne.

The Bullets, last year's champions, sent Leo Mogus and cash to the Zollners for John (Stretch) Pelkington, a six-foot, six-incher. Mogus came to the Bulets from Youngstown.

The trade reunited Pelkington with two former Zollner teammates, Euddy Jeannette and Chick Reiser.

Cravath To Coach West

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1—(INS)—A lady can change her mind, can't she? Italy's most famous director, Rossellini, arrives here in a month to talk Ingrid Bergman into making that picture with him in Italy after all.

Myrna Loy

The time Miss Bergman learned that Rossellini considered a letter she wrote him a contract, she was in a flurry. Then he travelled to London just to see her, turned on the charm so that she agreed make a picture for him if he could find a story that would be mutually satisfactory.

Now I am told that Rossellini is bringing with him a story for her to read and since she has nothing definite in Hollywood, there is every reason to believe she will accept his offer. Well, he is Italy's best.

• — • — •

Howard Duff gets a little peeved being referred to as "Ava Gardner's boy friend" everytime his name comes up. So naturally, I shall not mention Ava in telling you that Howard has just been signed to tri-star with Yvonne De Carlo and Stephen McNally in "The Western Story" at U. I.

This is the outdoor opus in technicolor that Deanna Durbin was supposed to do before she signed for an Italian picture. It starts in mid-January with Fred De Cordova directing.

• — • — •

I am very unhappy that I wasn't able to give "When My Baby Smiles At Me" a Cosmopolitan citation. Technicolor held it up, so that it had to be released to the public almost the day it was finished, which made it too late for a magazine.

But what technicolor does for Betty Grable's beauty is worth a story in itself—she is so beautiful. She is not only breathtaking, but she turns in a performance that matches her face.

• — • — •

Chatter in Hollywood:

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. inherits his father's love of travel—and it's a good thing with the schedule he has coming up.

After three and a half months in Europe, Doug is in New York waiting for Mary Lee (Mrs. Fairbanks) who was held up by the strike. The Fairbankses will remain in the East until the 14th, then back to Hollywood for Christmas with the children, then off to England again to start the first of three movies he will make for J. Arthur Rank.

• — • — •

The most fabulous offer ever made to an entertainer has come to Bing Crosby from Tim Donnell in London.

If Bing accepts, he will get $60,000 a week for a two weeks appearance in an open air stadium in London about the size of one of our football ovals. That's the only way any promoter could come up with such a salary.

• — • — •

Myrna Loy was voted the best addressed woman at the command performance in London.

A new combination is Marta Toren, comely Swedish actress, and George Mann, the actor.

Bette Davis will reside permanently in California. This week three freight carloads of her belongings arrived from her New Hampshire farm, which she is selling. In the cars were two Oscars which will now occupy the mantel at her Laguna Beach home.

Sid Grauman, Hollywood's most famous showman, at the Kings with a party of friends. I am so happy to say he's completely recovered his health.

Mrs. Vincent Sherman and her two small children are on their way to London to join Vince for the holidays. He will be there directing "The Hasty Heart" for Warners.

Looks like Nelson Eddy isn't going to get out of doing a spring concert tour. His present tour, which has just wound up in Pasadena, broke all his previous records. Well, when you enjoy a popularity such as Nelson enjoys, people will come back to hear him as long as he sings.

Fay Bainter and her husband, Commander Reginald Venable, must be together again. They have just started a housing development at Palm Springs.

Danny Kaye says when he was in Rome his picture, "The Kid From Brooklyn," was playing, but the title had been changed to "I Prefer a Cow."

That's all today.

"Green Moscow" Plans Pushed

MOSCOW—(AP)—The fall program of tree planting in Moscow is nearly completed. Municipal and Soviet authorities are determined to make the Soviet capital a "green city". A year ago they began planting full grown linden and lime trees throughout the center of the city. This program was continued during the spring planting season. And this fall it has been carried much further.

Throughout the city parks and garden squares are being created and special ordinances have been adopted for protection of the newly-planted trees.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Quentin Reynolds calls attention to the fact that Montgomery's campaign in the Near East altered a centuries-old custom of the natives in those parts. "Since time immemorial," says Reynolds "Arabian men rode majestically on the family donkey while their wives, laden down with all sorts of burdens, trudged patiently behind on foot. After 1942, however, all that was changed. The wife was emancipated. She now walks in front. There are many unexploded land mines . . ."

Forain, the French engraver, was on his death bed. His family, gathered about him, simulated confidence in his recovery. "You're looking much better," his wife assured him. "The color has come back to your cheeks," said his son. "You are breathing easier, father," his daughter observed.

Forain nodded and smiled weakly. "Thank you all," he whispered. "I'm going to died cured."

Poles Hold 600 Austrians

VIENNA—(AP)—More than 600 Austrian prisoners of war are still being held in Poland, according to recent repatriates from that country.

The Austrian government recently pledged itself to do everything possible to speed up the return of prisoners of war from all countries.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

Myrna Loy

The time Miss Bergman learned that Rossellini considered a letter she wrote him a contract, she was in a flurry. Then he travelled to London just to see her, turned on the charm so that she agreed make a picture for him if he could find a story that would be mutually satisfactory.

Now I am told that Rossellini is bringing with him a story for her to read and since she has nothing definite in Hollywood, there is every reason to believe she will accept his offer. Well, he is Italy's best.

Howard Duff gets a little peeved being referred to as "Ava Gardner's boy friend" everytime his name comes up. So naturally, I shall not mention Ava in telling you that Howard has just been signed to tristar with Yvonne De Carlo and Stephen McNally in "The Western Story" at U. I.

This is the outdoor opus in technicolor that Deanna Durbin was supposed to do before she signed for an Italian picture. It starts in mid-January with Fred De Cordova directing.

• — • — •

I am very unhappy that I wasn't able to give "When My Baby Smiles At Me" a Cosmopolitan citation. Technicolor held it up, so that it had to be released to the public almost the day it was finished, which made it too late for a magazine.

But what technicolor does for Betty Grable's beauty is worth a story in itself—she is so beautiful. She is not only breathtaking, but she turns in a performance that matches her face.

• — • — •

Chatter in Hollywood:

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. inherits his father's love of travel—and it's a good thing with the schedule he has coming up.

After three and a half months in Europe, Doug is in New York waiting for Mary Lee (Mrs. Fairbanks) who was held up by the strike. The Fairbankses will remain in the East until the 14th, then back to Hollywood for Christmas with the children, then off to England again to start the first of three movies he will make for J. Arthur Rank.

The most fabulous offer ever made to an entertainer has come to Bing Crosby from Tim Donnell in London.

If Bing accepts, he will get $60,000 a week for a two weeks appearance in an open air stadium in London about the size of one of our football ovals. That's the only way any promoter could come up with such a salary.

• — • — •

Myrna Loy was voted the best addressed woman at the command performance in London.

A new combination is Marta Toren, comely Swedish actress, and George Mann, the actor.

Bette Davis will reside permanently in California. This week three freight carloads of her belongings arrived from her New Hampshire farm, which she is selling. In the cars were two Oscars which will now occupy the mantel at her Laguna Beach home.

Sid Grauman, Hollywood's most famous showman, at the Kings with a party of friends. I am so happy to say he's completely recovered his health.

Mrs. Vincent Sherman and her two small children are on their way to London to join Vince for the holidays. He will be there directing "The Hasty Heart" for Warners.

Looks like Nelson Eddy isn't going to get out of doing a spring concert tour. His present tour, which he just wound up in Pasadena, broke all his previous records. Well, when you enjoy a popularity such as Nelson enjoys, people will come back to hear him as long as he sings.

Fay Bainter and her husband, Commander Reginald Venable, must be together again. They have just started a housing development at Palm Springs.

Danny Kaye says when he was in Rome his picture, "The Kid From Brooklyn," was playing, but the title had been changed to "I Prefer a Cow."

That's all today.

"Green Moscow" Plans Pushed

MOSCOW—(AP)—The fall program of tree planting in Moscow is nearly completed. Municipal and Soviet authorities are determined to make the Soviet capital a "green city". A year ago they began planting full grown linden and lime trees throughout the center of the city. This program was continued during the spring planting season. And this fall it has been carried much further.

Throughout the city parks and garden squares are being created and special ordinances have been adopted for protection of the newly-planted trees.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Quentin Rey olds calls attention to the fact that Montgomery's campaign in the Near East altered a centuries-old custom of the natives in those parts. "Since time immemorial," says Reynolds "Arabian men rode majestically on the family donkey while their wives, laden down with all sorts of burdens, trudged patiently behind on foot. After 1942, however, all that was changed. The wife was emancipated. She now walks in front. There are many unexploded land mines . . ."

Forain, the French engraver, was on his death bed. His family, gathered about him, simulated confidence in his recovery. "You're looking much better," his wife assured him. "The color has come back to your cheeks," said his son. "You are breathing easier, father," his daughter observed.

Forain nodded and smiled weakly. "Thank you all," he whispered. "I'm going to died cured."

Poles Hold 600 Austrians

VIENNA—(AP)—More than 600 Austrian prisoners of war are still being held in Poland, according to recent repatriates from that country.

The Austrian government recently pledged itself to do everything possible to speed up the return of prisoners of war from all countries.

Flare-Up In Demand Gives Market Sharpest Gain In Seven Months

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—A sudden flare-up in demand sent the stock market forward today for one of the sharpest gains in some seven months.

Individual issues advanced fractions to more than four points, some moving up from their low prices for the year.

Trading activity expanded as prices climbed. The day's turnover of 1,320,000 shares, tops in around three weeks, compared with 1,200,000 Tuesday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks jumped one full point to 63.6, the largest since a similar move on October 22. It was previously exceeded on June 8 and again on May 14.

Of the 1,063 issues which changed hands, 677 advanced and 182 declined.

Issues moving up a point or more included U. S. Steel at 71⅜, Youngstown Sheet 72¼, General Motors 57¼, Chrysler 52¼, Nickel Plate 73¼, Atlantic Coast Line 48, Southern Pacific 49¼, Chesapeake & Ohio 32⅞, Skelly Oil 112, Mission Corp. 53, Standard Oil (NJ) 72⅝, U. S. Rubber 38⅝, Montgomery Ward 56, Kennecott Copper 55⅛, Union Carbide 39¾, Johns-Manville 38¼, American Woolen 36½, and American Tobacco 61¾.

Also higher were Radio Corp., Sears Roebuck, Caterpillar Tractor, Schenley, Pepsi-Cola, Anaconda Copper, Dow Chemical, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Eastern Air Lines, and Twentieth Century-Fox.

Gains of from one to three points were numerous in a lively bond market.

A few loans skidded a point or more on light volume. Sales totaled $3,175,000 as against Tuesday's $2,680,000.

Dr. Byrd Will Speak At Memorial Service Of Frostburg Elks Lodge

Cook To Eulogize Departed Members

FROSTBURG — Frostburg Lodge No. 470, B. P. O. Elks, whose home on East Main Street has recently been redecorated and renovated, both inside and out, will hold its forthy-ninth annual memorial service Sunday at 8:30 p. m.

Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, will be the principal speaker at the service in the Elks Home, East Main Street.

Sacred music will be rendered by the quartet of Cumberland Lodge, consisting of Dr. W. Royce Hodges, W. C. Hartsock, Robert W. Moreland and Kenneth F. Beck, with Mrs. Beck, accompanist. The invocation will be by Rev. Harold R. Stoudt, Lutheran minister, and the benediction by Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, administrator of St. Michael's Catholic Church.

Will Give Eulogies

Arrangements for the services are being made by a committee headed by U. B. F. Edwards, William B. Byers, exalted ruler, will preside. The eulogies will be delivered by Noel Speir Cook, a member of Frostburg Lodge. Members who died during the past year are Dr. Thomas O. Broadwater, Grantsville; George O. Hager, Frostburg, and William G. Hiller, former Frostburger who died in Bedford, Va.

Members of Frostburg Lodge are asked to be in the Elks Home at 8 p. m., to prepare to attend the services in a body.

Regarded as one of the most historic spots in Frostburg, the site of the Elks home was first occupied by a frame residence built in 1806 by Mr. and Mrs. George McCulloh, early settlers of Frostburg, who were married that year.

After spending a few years of their married life in the frame house, Mr. and Mrs. McCulloh had the building replaced with the present brick structure, which later became the home of the late Dr. James M. Porter, also a pioneer resident of Frostburg.

Is Imposing Structure

Since the death of Dr. Porter, the place has been owned by various persons, including Daniel and John McMullen who sold the property to the late Mr. and Mrs. Duncan E. Shaffer. In 1912 the property was purchased from the Shaffers by Mrs. Dora Willison and the late Lawrence D. Willison. The latter, a building contractor, spent thousands of dollars on the building which was referred to in a special edition of the Frostburg Mining Journal published February 13, 1915 as "Mr. Willison's Jeffersonian re-model into one of Frostburg's most imposing residences."

Since the building was purchased from Mrs. Dora Willison February 14, 1939, by the Frostburg Elks, it has undergone many changes, but many traces of the original architectural beauty have been untouched, the idea being to preserve the original dignity of the better homes constructed in the early days of the last century.

Exceptions Filed To Land Awards

KEYSER—Exceptions to the appraisals on condemned land affected by the relocation of part of the Headsville Road have been filed in Circuit Court by N. Howard Rogers, attorney for the landowners.

In filing the exceptions, Rogers "demands ascertainment by jury for the three parcels of land."

On November 17 a five-man committee made appraisals of $150 for 0.26 acres owned by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Miller; $750 for 1.7 acres owned by Samuel A. Fleek, and $262.50 for 0.33 acres owned by Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Logsdon.

The commissioners were John E. Umstot, Frank A. Jones, A. S. A. Holsinger, Albert L. Sites and Harry Cumberledge.

Action by the circuit court became necessary when the attorney asked that the orginal appraisal be set aside and another group of commissioners be appointed.

Rogers charged that the former commissioners were "misadvised and acting under prejudiced circumstances" because of relationship to the parties interested in settling the case. Those making the orginial appraisal were C. I. Homan, S. S. Smith, Russell Stickley, and G. H. Ebert.

Original appraisals made $250 for the land owned by Millers; $650, Fleek, and $225, Logsdon.

Lack Of Water Closes School

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Moorefield Graded School remained closed Tuesday after the four day Thanksgiving holiday due to lack of water. The town is relaying a six inch water main along the street in front of the school and as the work was not completed the school was without water. Lack of heating and sanitary facilities compelled the closing of the school.

The new plastic six inch main being laid by the town is to take the place of the cast iron mains which rust out within two or three years due to the peculiar chemical makeup of the soil in that section of the town. The new water mains are supposed to be impervious to the chemical action of the soil and should remain in use for half a century.

Keyser, Piedmont Officials To Aid In Sewage Plans

Long Range Plan To Be Discussed

KEYSER—Mayors of Keyser and Piedmont have assured representatives of West Virginia and Maryland pollution control commissions that they will co-operate in a pollution abatement program in the two cities in the near future.

The action was taken Tuesday night at a meeting held in the City Hall here. Present were Mayor John C. Freeland and members of the Keyser City Council; Mayor Harold Fredlock and the Council of Piedmont; R. G. McCall, engineer of the West Virginia State Health Department, Charleston; K. S. Watson, secretary of the West Virginia State Water Commission; Edwin R. Cotton, director of the Interstate Commission on Potomac River pollution, and Paul W. McKee, executive secretary of the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission.

The meeting was called to present to heads of the cities the necessity of stream pollution abatement and outline possible plans for putting a program into effect.

McCall explained steps West Virginia is taking in the river pollution abatement program, and compared progress of West Virginia's present program with those of neighboring states, pointing out that this state is lagging in its sewage treatment steps.

Pointing out that a city's sewer system is a public utility, McCall declared that only 10 per cent of the population having sewage service is following a sewage treatment program. Authorities said that next to the industrial plants along the Potomac River, Keyser and the Tri-Towns were the worst pollution offenders along the stream.

Following considerable discussion of the possibility of erecting a sewage treatment plant in Keyser, Mayor Freeland explained that due to Keyser's present heavy financial obligations he did not see how the city could finance the cost of a preliminary survey on the needs of Keyser, let alone the building of a plant.

After citing several methods of financing a preliminary survey, visiting authorities advocated a service charge on the city's sewer system in connection with water assessments as a means of obtaining the money for a survey.

J. Paul Blundon, consulting engineer for Keyser, said citizens should certainly be consulted before any type of sewage service charge be put into effect, a point to which all present agreed.

The meeting closed with both Mayor Freeland and Fredlock promising they would present the problems to their councils at their next regular meetings at which time they said the topic would be discussed and possible steps taken along the forming of an abatement program which would have to be set up under a long range plan.

Keyser Man Fined After Accident

KEYSER-A. A. P. Neel, 41 Church, was fined $10 at a hearing before Police Judge A. A. Jordan yesterday afternoon on a charge of failing to give the right-of-way following an accident at the intersection of Armstrong and Davis Street yesterday at 3:40 p. m.

City policeman Paul Howdyshell, who investigated, said only minor damage was done to the 1949 sedan driven by Mrs. Jean Caldwell Grove, Petersburg, going west on Armstrong Street, when Neel, entering Armstrong Street from Davis Street, struck the left rear fender. The bumper of Neel's car was torn loose, the officer said.

John Haines, Keyser, was fined $25 at a hearing before Judge Jordan yesterday on a charge of drunkness. Haines, who pleaded guilty, was arrested yesterday morning by officers Lawrence McDonald and Guy Clem.

Dr. Farnsworth To Give Concert

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Dr. Carl Farnsworth, head of the Music Department of Shepherd College, will give a recital of organ music at the Presbyterian Church at 8 p. m. tomorrow.

Dr. Farnsworth is a member of the Guild of American Organists and gives a concert each year in one of the churches in Washington, D. C.

The concert is sponsored by the Elementary Music Department of Hardy County and Hardy County teachers will be especially interested as many of them received music instruction in his department.

No admission will be charged but an offering will be taken to help defray expenses of the program.

Mrs. Daisy Halterman, president of the Shepherd College Alumni Association in Hardy County, announces that immediately following the recital, a reception will be held for alumni, both active and associate, and students of the college in honor of Dr. Farnsworth.

Dr. Byrd Will Speak At Memorial Service Of Frostburg Elks Lodge

Cook To Eulogize Departed Members

FROSTBURG — Frostburg Lodge No. 470, B. P. O. Elks, whose home on East Main Street has recently been redecorated and renovated, both inside and out, will hold its forthy-ninth annual memorial service Sunday at 8:30 p. m.

Dr. Harry C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, will be the principal speaker at the service in the Elks Home, East Main Street.

Sacred music will be rendered by the quartet of Cumberland Lodge, consisting of Dr. W. Royce Hodges, W. C. Hartsock, Robert W. Moreland and Kenneth F. Beck, with Mrs. Beck, accompanist. The invocation will be by Rev. Harold R. Stoudt, Lutheran minister, and the benediction by Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, administrator of St. Michael's Catholic Church.

Will Give Eulogies

Arrangements for the services are being made by a committee headed by U. B. F. Edwards, William B. Byers, exalted ruler, will preside. The eulogies will be delivered by Noel Speir Cook, a member of Frostburg Lodge. Members who died during the past year are Dr. Thomas O. Broadwater, Grantsville; George O. Hager, Frostburg, and William G. Hiller, former Frostburger who died in Bedford, Va.

Members of Frostburg Lodge are asked to be in the Elks Home at 8 p. m., to prepare to attend the services in a body.

Regarded as one of the most historic spots in Frostburg, the site of the Elks home was first occupied by a frame residence built in 1806 by Mr. and Mrs. George McCulloh, early settlers of Frostburg, who were married that year.

After spending a few years of their married life in the frame house, Mr. and Mrs. McCulloh had the building replaced with the present brick structure, which later became the home of the late Dr. James M. Porter, also a pioneer resident of Frostburg.

Is Imposing Structure

Since the death of Dr. Porter, the place has been owned by various persons, including Daniel and John McMullen who sold the property to the late Mr. and Mrs. Duncan E. Shaffer. In 1912 the property was purchased from the Shaffers by Mrs. Dora Willison and the late Lawrence D. Willison. The latter, a building contractor, spent thousands of dollars on the building which was referred to in a special edition of the Frostburg Mining Journal published February 13, 1915 as "Mr. Willison's Jeffersonian re-model into one of Frostburg's most imposing residences."

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

Comedians For Sale

Business dealing in radio, an aspect generally left strictly alone in this column, have reached a state of hysteria that demand mention.

John Crosby

For the last two weeks Jack Benny has fluctuated, according to the trade press, between NBC and CBS, changing hands almost daily. Saturday CBS announced triumphantly that it had nailed Benny who will start on CBS after seventeen years on NBC, January 2 (same time—7 p. m., EST Sundays).

While CBS refuses to make any further statement, it is generally recognized in the industry that he was bought outright by CBS, and extremely reliable sources place the purchase price at between two and three million dollars. Earlier this summer, the services of Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll better known as Amos 'n' Andy, were purchased by CBS for an unnamed price of approximately $2,000,000.

This is by no means all. CBS would like to buy Phil Harris and Edgar Bergen too. Meanwhile Coca Cola has entered the lists in an attempt to procure Bergen in a deal which would give Bergen quite a lot of cash and also put him in the Coca Cola business. The deal has not yet been consummated. Bing Crosby is now merchandising Minute Maid Orange Juice in return for a juicy block of stock. To get an entertainer these days, mere money doesn't talk. You need a block of stock and a tax lawyer.

• — • — •

While the Amos 'n' Andy and Jack Benny deals sound like a form of luxurious white slavery, they aren't exactly that, at least legally. In both cases CBS acquired corporations, owned by the entertainers, rather than the entertainers themselves. However, the corporations without the brains and personalities of the entertainers are worth roughly the value of the office furniture which is nowhere near $2,000,000.

All these deals are, of course, tax dodges which would permit the comedians to pay capital gains taxes of 25 per cent in place of about 80 per cent in income taxes.

All this high finance has pretty well stunned the industry. Is any comedian worth $2,000,000,000? Most of the comedians involved, both those who signed and those who are talking about it, are in their fifties and have been on the air for years. Besides television is coming in and there is no guarantee that Benny or Amos 'n' Andy or anyone else will repeat their success in medium. As one executive remarked drily: "It looks as if CBS will be working for Jack Benny and Correll and Gosden for a long time to come."

"It's like buying Joe DiMaggio," one ad man commented. "He's a great player but you don't know whether he'll last out next season much less ten more seasons."

The tax angle has already aroused some concern in Washington, where Senator Bridges and Representative Priest of Tennessee have demanded investigations. Fred Allen, who has refused to discuss a similar deal, defends the comedians on this question, pointing out that: "You can deduct depreciation on your car but you can't save a dime on depreciation of your mind."

However, Allen admits that this form of raiding, which NBC, incidentally, started, is bad for the networks. "This is the greatest giveaway of all," says Allen, who has little use for giveaways. "Now they're giving away the networks. Instead of 'Stop the Music', it's stop Paley." (William S. Paley, chairman of the board of CBS).

Allen, who still insists he's going to quit at the end of the year, a claim he's been making for roughly ten years, says he wouldn't want to sign up for ten years with anyone. "My blood pressure is up again and I wouldn't want to die disappointing the tax department."

Jack Pearl Will Do Stint On ABC; Guests Slated

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—Jack Pearl, who returned to the nets last summer for a replacement series via NBC, makes another temporary kilocycle visit Thursday night. That will be at 7:30 on the ABC lineup, where the new Theater USA is holding forth. He is to put on one of the several scheduled acts.

Heading the guest roster of the Dorothy Lamour Double "Threat" program on NBC at 9:30 will be Lum and Abner doing one of their in-character stunts. Another guest is to be Paul Lukas, who will help out in a skit.

Still pursuing the guest situation, here are some more items that may or may not attract attention: Merle Oberon, Van Heflin and Hoagy Carmichael in the Screen Guild's "Night Song" for NBC at 10.

Victor Moore as the star in "Old Man Minick" for the James Hilton playhouse of CBS at 10.

Claude Rains will have Vincent Price and not the already announced Peter Loree as co-actor in Suspense of CBS at 9 in its presentation of "The Hands of Mr. Ottermole."

ABC says that the MC of its Personal Autograph Music program at 9 is Jack Lester, not the listed Jim Ameche. Also ABC says the new series Our Job Is Manhattan will do the Henry Street Settlement.

Swiss Assail Policies In Germany

ZURICH (AP) — The treatment Germans are receiving from the occupation powers makes it "very doubtful" whether the German people can be educated to democracy, a Swiss newspaper, "Die Tat," says. The paper included all four occupation powers in its indictment of occupation policy and said the Germans, three and a half years after the war, are being subjected to arbitrary actions which "vary little from those for which the Germans themselves were charged with violating humanity."

"Whether it is encroachment on the economy of the country, or, as in the Russian zone, kidnaping, concentration camps and forced labor, these examples make it difficult for the defeated and punished Germans to believe in international law and democracy," the newspaper said. The paper charged that the American military government recently ordered refugees from eastern Germany to evacuate "in a few hours" their newly built peasant cottages at Grafenwoehr, Bavarria, to make room for U. S. Army units. The refugees were forced to give up their cattle and furniture and were offered no alternate refuge, "Die Tat" said. "It is very doubtful whether this type of occupation low in the year 1948 still fits in the picture of the Democratic reeducation of a nation.

Chambers Retires From Police Force

A veteran of 20 years service with the Cumberland Police Department, Lorenzo H. "Renzo" Chambers, 61, turned in badge No. 10 and other uniform paraphernalia yesterday as he retired from the force.

In commenting on his leaving the force, Chief R. Emmett Flynn described Patrolman Chambers as a "very polite officer and gentleman."

Fellow-officers lost no time today in congratulating him with friendly remarks such as "man of leisure" after he announced plans to operate a "little shop" on Williams Road to do odd-jobs.

Officer Chambers' beat over the 20-year span covered the entire city. The father of five sons, he displayed special interest in children, cautioning them to "stop, look and listen for automobiles, attend church regularly and remain off the streets at night." To many, he is known as "Pop Chambers."

A native of Cumberland, Mr. Chambers is a son of the late Lorenzo H. and Annie Rachel (Williamson) Chambers. He worked as a salesman prior to becoming a member of the Cumberland Police Department November 30, 1928, when 40 years old. Since then he had been an active patrolman.

He and his wife, Mrs. Nellie Chambers, reside at 903 Maryland Avenue. Four of their sons, George K., Lorenzo., Jr., Aubrey A. and Richard Chambers, served in the Armed Forces during World War II. Another son, William Chambers, is in the Marine Corps.

Ex-patrolman Chambers was pensioned under an order passed by the Mayor and Council Monday.

Smoke Inspector

a man who is qualified," he added.

Buchholtz asserted "I have already said the same thing. I can't help but feel that the man to vote for is the man qualified. I have nothing personal against Mullan, however.

Said Commissioner Edwards: "I have nothing against Mr. Mullan but I believe it should go to the highest man."

Their answers to the Mayor's proposal for a solution stated, Commissioner Reynolds then set up the beginning of what became a verbal battle.

"This is a democracy," Commissioner Reynolds said, "and I vote for the man I want. I feel that I have the right to vote the way I want to vote."

Mayor Post: "Yes, that is right. You have the right to vote for a man's qualifications one time and on his examination another."

Reynolds: "You do the same thing, Mr. Mayor."

At this point, Commissioner Buchholtz cited minutes of previous meetings where Mayor Post had refused to vote for an appointment because a man had qualifications but did not finish at the top on examinations.

"No Squabble"

Commissioner William V. Keegan, who seconded the order to appoint Mullan, interrupted the exchange to say: "We're not going to squabble about this any more." Reynolds replied: "We are not squabbling, but we have a right to preference."

At another point Keegan said: "If the man has an axe to grind, let him stay out of it." When Reynolds asked who he meant, Keegan answered: "Never mind."

Mayor Post said three names were submitted to him and he picked one. Reynolds asked why he picked Mullan. The Mayor said "because of his initiative to do things, his impartiality to industry and his study of the smoke problems."

"Don't you think the other applicants would have been impartial to industry?" Reynolds asked.

"No," the Mayor replied.

Commissioner Keegan said that "Borden (Frederick Borden, only man reported to have made above 70 on the first test) told me that he would rather work for nothing than the salary the job offers."

"What are we doing," Reynolds countered, "going around soliciting for the cheapest man?"

Mayor Post later said that after an interview with Borden he "did not believe him the proper man for the job."

"I am definitely not going to propose him (Borden)", the Mayor said to a suggestion that the Council vote on the examination's first-place man. "He's out with me. I don't think he is the proper one because he would have a personal interest and be antagonistic toward industry."

James Alfred Avirett, who asked to speak as a private citizen, asked the Mayor what he meant by being "antagonistic" and to what private interest he was referring.

The Mayor answered: "Don't cross-question me. I am not on the stand here. Get that now."

Appealed For Action

Earlier Avirett had appealed for action and said "We don't want to go on with this impasse week after week.

"The examination was held and three men qualified," he continued. "I suggest that you put up the top man. Let's not block smoke control, that's what you're doing Mr. Mayor, blocking smoke control. You should propose the top man."

Mayor Post said to Avirett that: "You talk as if you were looking out for your own interests, and I think you are."

"No, Mayor," Avirett answered, "you're wrong. We're playing with life and death. We'll wake up here some morning and find people dead just as occurred in Donora, Pa." (A smog caused 20 deaths and many illnesses in Donora recently.)

Commissioner William V. Keegan during the discussion said he was willing "to start over" because he believed more applicants would take a second test. He voiced opposition, however, to a Civil Service Board examination because he did not think members qualified to pass on technical questions of the type required.

Commissioner Buchholtz suggested that the board get a "neutral" examiner and questions from another city and added "What good is a Civil Service Board if we don't have faith in them?"

"That's a good question," Keegan replied.

Keegan's first approach to another examination was finally taken up by City Attorney Thomas B. Finan who suggested another test to break the deadlock and said it should be given more publicity with the view of getting more applicants.

When the test will be giver the second time, depends on the Civil Service Board, preparing of questions and other machinery.

The three top applicants and others in the first test will be eligible again. In addition to Borden and Mullan, J. Walter McKee, a blacksmith for the B. and O. Railroad, ranked high. Borden is with the Big Savage Refractories at Frostburg, and Mullan is refrigeration man for the Speelman Ice Cream Company here.

Police said Bittner admitted taking the car of David Thomas Oates, 310 Waverly Terrace, from a parking lot on Park Street. The vehicle was found overturned by investigating officers.

Lt. James E. Van, who investigated, said the demolished vehicle c used considerable property damage. Oates was reported out of town this morning.

No one was injured at 12:45 a. m. yesterday when a 1941 sedan driven by Donald Smith, 17, Route 4, crashed against a stopped garbage truck operated by Frank Cessna, Route 2, Williams Road, between Mullen and Turner Streets on East Oldtown Road.

Smith told police he was driving east when the accident occurred at 1407 Oldtown Road. Both the car, owned by Mary Virginia Smith, and the truck of Miller and Davis, contractors, were damaged.

Tydings Says

money and food and arms to friendly nations, under pressure from the Communists, is a sound and realistic program, Tydings said. But, he reiterated, "How much can we spend without weakening our own position and destroying our own freedoms?"

A Blunt Question

The situation evolves itself into a simple but blunt and cold question, he told his audience. "Do we think more of our dollars than we do our sons?"

Stating that there are two schools of thought on the subject, one of isolationism and one of continued foreign aid, Senator Tydings said he cannot agree with the isolationists, but respects their views.

He indicated that his travels, his study and his knowledge of the whole situation has led him to believe that another world conflict will envelope whole populations. Cumberland will not be miles away from the conflict, he said. "The future of the sons and daughters of people right here in Cumberland and the future of jobs and business here in Cumberland are involved in this question," he said.

Tydings declared Congress is looking to the people for the answer. What do you think, he continued "Should we spend reasonably to continue strengthening our allies, or should we cut off this aid and perhaps be penny wise and pound foolish?"

Comments On Aid To China

After his talk, he answered several questions from the audience, most of which were designed to get his opinion on "aid to China.

Senator Tydings said he believes immediate aid to China will make little difference. He expressed the opinion that if this country must get the most for its money, it is more important to keep European allies strong than it is to worry about China. The Rusians will have their hands full ruling the Chinese under Communism or any other system, he predicted, reminding his audience that China, in time has always absorbed its conquerors. He believes this can happen again.

Tydings said the war in China is a war of reform ,and all the opponents of the present Chinese nationalists government are not Communists, he explained, as a means of overthrowing the present regime, which many wealthy, influential and educated Chinese believe is "rotten." He said, that in this country, when we think a crowd has become "rotten," we throw them out by ballot, while in China, the long civil war there is an effort to force the present government out.

A dance followed the dinner meeting.

Democrats Answer Union Criticism

According to a statement issued yesterday by Chairman William L. Wilson, the Democratic State Central Committee of Allegany County had nothing to do with naming the list of eligibles for appointment as Cumberland Postmaster.

The statement was issued to answer criticism of the committee's recommendation of Thomas F. Conlon for the position by Playford Aldridge, president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, Monday. The TWUA advocated the appointment of James A. Grabenstein, postal employe with 27 years' service and one of three postoffice employes to take the examination.

The list of eligibles, the statement points out, was determined by the United States Civil Service Commission under federal regulations, and the committee could not recommend any name unless it appeared on the list.

It was brought out that nine persons took the competitive examination in 1947, but that none of the postoffice employes was even in the first five eligibles and the law limits those eligible for appointment to the first three.

As a result of the examination, the U. S. Civil Service Commission certified to the Postoffice Department a list of three eligibles in the following order: First, F. Allen Weatherholt, military preference (disability); second, Thomas F. Conlon, military preference, and third, Clarence F. Schafer, military preference.

According to Wilson, these names were submitted to the State Central Committee with a copy of a letter from Acting First Assistant Postmaster General C. B. Uttley stating that if an eligible with military preference is passed over and a person not granted such preference suggested, reasons directed at the preference eligible's qualifications and suitability must be submitted.

Although, in order to pass over a veteran for an appointment such as this, reasons for doing so must be stated in writing, the statement went on, this is not necessary when another preferred eligible is recommended.

Youth Sentenced In Theft Case

Raymond Joseph Burkett, 15 Corriganville, was sentenced yesterday in Juvenile Court to serve an indefinite term in St. Mary's Industrial School for Boys, Baltimore, after being fould guilty of violating a parole imposed in two breaking and entering cases.

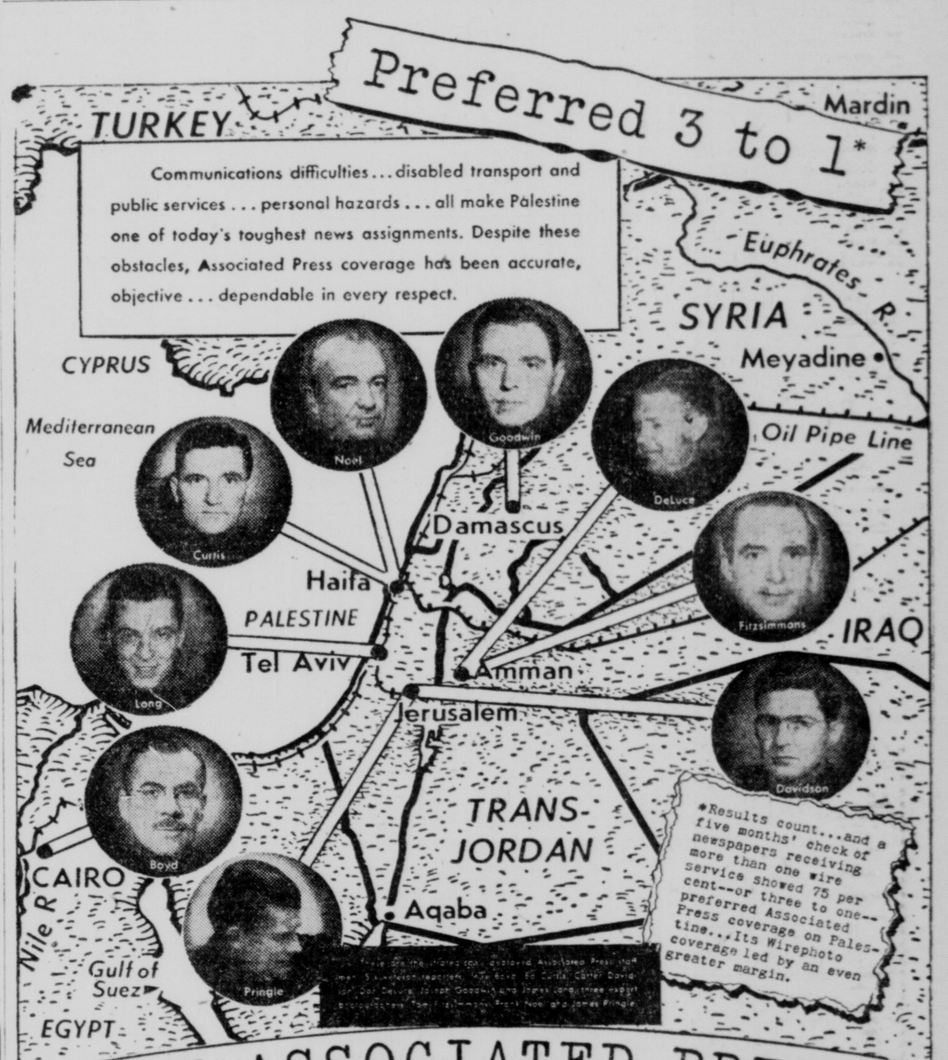

Burkett, police said, broke into the National Guard club rooms at the State Armory on November 8 and took $38 from a cash register. He admitted spending the money for amusement.

Authorities arrested him several months ago for stealing money from collection baskets at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, North Centre Street. He was also on parole for breaking into the Corriganville Postoffice. Detective Thomas J. See investigated the Armory burglary.

Joseph Koelker, this city, drew a suspended sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday in Trial Magistrates' Court after he pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge. Yesterday, the State's Attorney's office ordered him to leave town within an hour but the man was arrested again several hours later.

Koelker told Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti he went to visit a brother before leaving Cumberland and became intoxicated. He was ordered to leave town and go to Baltimore, where a daughter resides, and seek employment. Detective See preferred the charge.

Chambers Retires From Police Force

A veteran of 20 years service with the Cumberland Police Department, Lorenzo H. "Renzo" Chambers, 61, turned in badge No. 10 and other uniform paraphernalia yesterday as he retired from the force.

In commenting on his leaving the force, Chief R. Emmett Flynn described Patrolman Chambers as a "very polite officer and gentleman."

Fellow-officers lost no time today in congratulating him with friendly remarks such as "man of leisure" after he announced plans to operate a "little shop" on Williams Road to do odd-jobs.

Officer Chambers' beat over the 20-year span covered the entire city. The father of five sons, he displayed special interest in children, cautioning them to "stop, look and listen for automobiles, attend church regularly and remain off the streets at night." To many, he is known as "Pop Chambers."

A native of Cumberland, Mr. Chambers is a son of the late Lorenzo H. and Annie Rachel (Williamson) Chambers. He worked as a salesman prior to becoming a member of the Cumberland Police Department November 30, 1928, when 40 years old. Since then he had been an active patrolman.

He and his wife, Mrs. Nellie Chambers, reside at 903 Maryland Avenue. Four of their sons, George K., Lorenzo., Jr., Aubrey A. and Richard Chambers, served in the Armed Forces during World War II. Another son, William Chambers, is in the Marine Corps.

Smoke Inspector

a man who is qualified," he added.

Buchholtz asserted "I have already said the same thing. I can't help but feel that the man to vote for is the man qualified. I have nothing personal against Mullan, however.

Said Commissioner Edwards: "I have nothing against Mr. Mullan but I believe it should go to the highest man."

Their answers to the Mayor's proposal for a solution stated, Commissioner Reynolds then set up the beginning of what became a verbal battle.

"This is a democracy," Commissioner Reynolds said, "and I vote for the man I want. I feel that I have the right to vote the way I want to vote."

Mayor Post: "Yes, that is right. You have the right to vote for a man's qualifications one time and on his examination another."

Reynolds: "You do the same thing, Mr. Mayor."

At this point, Commissioner Buchholtz cited minutes of previous meetings where Mayor Post had refused to vote for an appointment because a man had qualifications but did not finish at the top on examinations.

"No Squabble"

Commissioner William V. Keegan, who seconded the order to appoint Mullan, interrupted the exchange to say: "We're not going to squabble about this any more." Reynolds replied: "We are not squabbling, but we have a right to preference."

At another point Keegan said: "If the man has an axe to grind, let him stay out of it." When Reynolds asked who he meant, Keegan answered: "Never mind."

Mayor Post said three names were submitted to him and he picked one. Reynolds asked why he picked Mullan. The Mayor said "because of his initiative to do things, his impartiality to industry and his study of the smoke problems."

"Don't you think the other applicants would have been impartial to industry?" Reynolds asked.

"No," the Mayor replied.

Commissioner Keegan said that "Borden (Frederick Borden, only man reported to have made above 70 on the first test) told me that he would rather work for nothing than the salary the job offers."

"What are we doing," Reynolds countered, "going around soliciting for the cheapest man?"

Mayor Post later said that after an interview with Borden he "did not believe him the proper man for the job."

"I am definitely not going to propose him (Borden)", the Mayor said to a suggestion that the Council vote on the examination's first-place man. "He's out with me. I don't think he is the proper one because he would have a personal interest and be antagonistic toward industry."

James Alfred Avirett, who asked to speak as a private citizen, asked the Mayor what he meant by being "antagonistic" and to what private interest he was referring.

The Mayor answered: "Don't cross-question me. I am not on the stand here. Get that now."

Appealed For Action

Earlier Avirett had appealed for action and said "We don't want to go on with this impasse week after week.

"The examination was held and three men qualified," he continued. "I suggest that you put up the top man. Let's not block smoke control, that's what you're doing Mr. Mayor, blocking smoke control. You should propose the top man."

Mayor Post said to Avirett that: "You talk as if you were looking out for your own interests, and I think you are."

"No, Mayor," Avirett answered, "you're wrong. We're playing with life and death. We'll wake up here some morning and find people dead just as occurred in Donora, Pa." (A smog caused 20 deaths and many illnesses in Donora recently.)

Commissioner William V. Keegan during the discussion said he was willing "to start over" because he believed more applicants would take a second test. He voiced opposition, however, to a Civil Service Board examination because he did not think members qualified to pass on technical questions of the type required.

Commissioner Buchholtz suggested that the board get a "neutral" examiner and questions from another city and added "What good is a Civil Service Board if we don't have faith in them?"

"That's a good question," Keegan replied.

Keegan's first approach to another examination was finally taken up by City Attorney Thomas B. Finan who suggested another test to break the deadlock and said it should be given more publicity with the view of getting more applicants.

When the test will be giver the second time, depends on the Civil Service Board, preparing of questions and other machinery.

The three top applicants and others in the first test will be eligible again. In addition to Borden and Mullan, J. Walter McKee, a blacksmith for the B. and O. Railroad, ranked high. Borden is with the Big Savage Refractories at Frostburg, and Mullan is refrigeration man for the Speelman Ice Cream Company here.

Bittner Jailed On Theft Count

Arrested at 8 a. m. yesterday on charges of stealing and wrecking an automobile in the 900 block, Maryland Avenue late Tuesday night was a man booked as William Bittner, 205 Maryland Avenue.

Police said Bittner admitted taking the car of David Thomas Oates, 310 Waverly Terrace, from a parking lot on Park Street. The vehicle was found overturned by investigating officers.

Bittner, according to police, said he stole the car to "go to South Cumberland." Another man whose identity was withheld pending further investigation is being sought for questioning as to his occupancy of the stolen car when it crashed.

Lt. James E. Van, who investigated, said the demolished vehicle c used considerable property damage. Oates was reported out of town this morning.

No one was injured at 12:45 a. m. yesterday when a 1941 sedan driven by Donald Smith, 17, Route 4, crashed against a stopped garbage truck operated by Frank Cessna, Route 2, Williams Road, between Mullen and Turner Streets on East Oldtown Road.

Smith told police he was driving east when the accident occurred at 1407 Oldtown Road. Both the car, owned by Mary Virginia Smith, and the truck of Miller and Davis, contractors, were damaged.

Police reported that water running over the street had turned into ice and caused the mishap. Following the crash, Street Department workers scattered cinders over the area. No charges were preferred against Smith.

Miss Larry Will Be Flynn's Secretary

The Mayor and City Council appointed Miss Betty Lee Larry, 419 Dunbar Street, temporary stenographer to the chief of police pending a Civil Service examination at a special session yesterday.

Salary for the position is $183.50 a month. Miss Larry is police clerk and the salary covers both duties.

The Mayor and Council voted a donation of $50 to the local Gold Star Mothers organization for the purchase of a set of American and Maryland Flags. Thomas F. Conlon appeared in behalf of the Gold Star Mothers and requested a representative of the Council to attend a meeting Sunday at 2:30 p. m. to present the Colors.

Payment to the Cumberland Contracting Company in the amount of $8,521.98 for first and final estimates on work of black topping Virginia Avenue was approved. Mayor Thomas S. Post said he believed the cost "reasonable" and expressed the belief "the city got a lot for its money."

The contracting firm's bill of $19,607 for the second estimate for installation of the auxiliary water main from Lake Gordon to the city was ordered paid.

The payroll for the last two weeks of November was approved.

Chamber Completes Plans For Meeting

Plans for a dinner meeting of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, December 7, at 6:30 p. m. in the Elks Club here were completed yesterday by the Membership Activities committee of the Chamber.

John J. Robinson, president of the Chamber, will preside and C. Philip Jolley, committee chairman, will introduce Rev. Nevin Smith, pastor of Hanover, Pa., Reformed Church, who will speak.

A film, "America and Sons, Unlimited" produced by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, will also be shown.

Four Allegany Seniors To Take Science Tests

Aptitude tests in preliminary examinations for the Westinghouse Science Scholarship will be given to four Allegany High School seniors Friday, December 10, by Harold C. Wickard, head of the Science Department.

The three-hour test, one of the hurdles in the competition for $11,000 in Westinghouse science scholarships, will be taken by Charlotte DeWitt, Thomas Shuck, Richard Jamison and William Fisher.

In addition to their showing in the science test, students will be judged on the basis of a 1,000-word original essay on their own scientific projects and on their scholastic records and personal histories.

Forty finalists will be chosen and will attend final judging in Washington on March 3 with all expenses paid while they attend a five-day science talent institute.

Donald Ort and Lee DeWitt, members of Allegany High School's 1948 graduating class, won honorable mention in last year's scholarship examinations.

Tydings Says

money and food and arms to friendly nations, under pressure from the Communists, is a sound and realistic program, Tydings said. But, he reiterated, "How much can we spend without weakening our own position and destroying our own freedoms?"

A Blunt Question

The situation evolves itself into a simple but blunt and cold question, he told his audience. "Do we think more of our dollars than we do our sons?"

Stating that there are two schools of thought on the subject, one of isolationism and one of continued foreign aid, Senator Tydings said he cannot agree with the isolationists, but respects their views.

He indicated that his travels, his study and his knowledge of the whole situation has led him to believe that another world conflict will envelope whole populations. Cumberland will not be miles away from the conflict, he said. "The future of the sons and daughters of people right here in Cumberland and the future of jobs and business here in Cumberland are involved in this question," he said.

Tydings declared Congress is looking to the people for the answer. What do you think, he continued "Should we spend reasonably to continue strengthening our allies, or should we cut off this aid and perhaps be penny wise and pound foolish?"

Comments On Aid To China

After his talk, he answered several questions from the audience, most of which were designed to get his opinion on "aid to China.

Senator Tydings said he believes immediate aid to China will make little difference. He expressed the opinion that if this country must get the most for its money, it is more important to keep European allies strong than it is to worry about China. The Rusians will have their hands full ruling the Chinese under Communism or any other system, he predicted, reminding his audience that China, in time has always absorbed its conquerors. He believes this can happen again.

Tydings said the war in China is a war of reform and all the opponents of the present Chinese nationalists government are not Communists, he explained, as a means of overthrowing the present regime, which many wealthy, influential and educated Chinese believe is "rotten." He said, that in this country, when we think a crowd has become "rotten," we throw them out by ballot, while in China, the long civil war there is an effort to force the present government out.

Senator Tydings left immediately to catch a train to return to Washington, D. C. He was presented to his audience by Charles S. Catherman, Jr., Jaycee president.

A dance followed the dinner meeting.

Democrats Answer Union Criticism

According to a statement issued yesterday by Chairman William L. Wilson, the Democratic State Central Committee of Allegany County had nothing to do with naming the list of eligibles for appointment as Cumberland Postmaster.

The statement was issued to answer criticism of the committee's recommendation of Thomas F. Conlon for the position by Playford Aldridge, president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, Monday. The TWUA advocated the appointment of James A. Grabenstein, postal employe with 27 years' service and one of three postoffice employes to take the examination.

The list of eligibles, the statement points out, was determined by the United States Civil Service Commission under federal regulations, and the committee could not recommend any name unless it appeared on the list.

It was brought out that nine persons took the competitive examination in 1947, but that none of the postoffice employes was even in the first five eligibles and the law limits those eligible for appointment to the first three.

As a result of the examination, the U. S. Civil Service Commission certified to the Postoffice Department a list of three eligibles in the following order: First, P. Allen Weatherholt, military preference (disability); second, Thomas F. Conlon, military preference, and third, Clarence F. Schafer, military preference.

According to Wilson, these names were submitted to the State Central Committee with a copy of a letter from Acting First Assistant Postmaster General C. B. Uttley stating that if an eligible with military preference is passed over and a person not granted such preference suggested, reasons directed at the preference eligible's qualifications and suitability must be submitted.

Although, in order to pass over a veteran for an appointment such as this, reasons for doing so must be stated in writing, the statement went on, this is not necessary when another preferred eligible is recommended.

Youth Sentenced In Theft Case

Raymond Joseph Burkett, 15 Corriganville, was sentenced yesterday in Juvenile Court to serve an indefinite term in St. Mary's Industrial School for Boys, Baltimore, after being fould guilty of violating a parole imposed in two breaking and entering cases.

Burkett, police said, broke into the National Guard club rooms at the State Armory on November 8 and took $38 from a cash register. He admitted spending the money for amusement.

Authorities arrested him several months ago for stealing money from collection baskets at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, North Centre Street. He was also on parole for breaking into the Corriganville Postoffice. Detective Thomas J. See investigated the Armory burglary.

Joseph Koelker, this city, drew a suspended sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday in Trial Magistrates' Court after he pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge. Yesterday, the State's Attorney's office ordered him to leave town within an hour but the man was arrested again several hours later.

Koelker told Magistrate Peter J. Carpenti he went to visit a brother before leaving Cumberland and became intoxicated. He was ordered to leave town and go to Baltimore, where a daughter resides, and seek employment. Detective See preferred the charge.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mary E. Breighner, who passed away ten years ago, December 2, 1938.

Today our hearts are heavy,
Our thoughts are all of thee,
Oh, how we miss you, Mother dear,
But God in Heaven can see.
Some say time heals an aching heart,
But no, it isn't true,
For ten long years have passed, dear,
And our hearts still ache for you.
Sadly missed by her

FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Hattie Curry, who passed away six years ago today, December 2, 1942.

December brings us sad memories,
Of a loved one gone to rest.
She will never be forgotten
By the ones who loved her best.
What happy hours we once enjoyed
When we were all together,
But oh how changed all is now,
Since you have gone to heaven.

HER LOVING CHILDREN.

I especially wish to thank Rev. Joseph Young, the Choir, the pallbearers, those who sent floral tributes and those who loaned cars for the funeral.

OSCAR CROSS.

We wish to thank our many friends, neighbors, and relatives for their kindness and sympathy during our recent bereavement, the loss of our beloved Mother, Mrs. Martha Hershberger. We especially wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, the Rev. J. E. McDonald, and those who donated the use of their cars.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mary E. Breighner, who passed away ten years ago, December 2, 1938.

Today our hearts are heavy,
Our thoughts are all of thee,
Oh, how we miss you, Mother dear,
But God in Heaven can see.
Some say time heals an aching heart,
But no, it isn't true.
For ten long years have passed, dear,
And our hearts still ache for you.
Sadly missed by her

FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Hattie Curry, who passed away six years ago today, December 2, 1942.

December brings us sad memories,
Of a loved one gone to rest.
She will never be forgotten
By the ones who loved her best.
What happy hours we once enjoyed
When we were all together,
But oh how changed all is now,
Since you have gone to heaven.

HER LOVING CHILDREN.

Road Projects In Garrett County Parks Requested

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1—(AP)—Senator Lawrence M. Fraley, (R-Garrett) said today the "state has an obligation" to build roads to its parks in Garrett County.

The Senator headed a Western Maryland delegation which "sought advice and help" from the Legislative Council for construction or improvement of access routes to state parks in Garrett County.

"The roads are dusty and people don't care to come back again," Fraley said.

Director Joseph F. Kaylor, of the Department of Forests and Parks, estimated that more than 125,000 persons vacationed in Garrett County parks last summer. He added "the number could be trebled if we had adequate road facilities."

William W. DeWitt, county roads engineer, said 15 miles of road need improvement. He estimated the cost at $500,000.

Chairman Robert M. Reindollar, of the State Roads Commission, offered little prospect of immediate aid from his department. The state is engaged in $167,000,000 primary highway program, he said, and would be hindered if any money were diverted to parks.

Dr. T. B. Symons, Dean of Agriculture at University of Maryland, came to Fraley's support.

"Yours is a wonderful county," he said, "its greatest industry is agriculture. We must realize that the future of Garrett is dependent upon agriculture and recreation."

Senator Joseph M. Byrnes, (D-Balto Fifth), president of the council, said Fraley's proposal would be considered before the General Assembly meets next month.

Road Projects In Garrett County Parks Requested

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1—(AP)—Senator Lawrence M. Fraley, (R-Garrett) said today the "state has an obligation" to build roads to its parks in Garrett County.

The Senator headed a Western Maryland delegation which "sought advice and help" from the Legislative Council for construction or improvement of access routes to state parks in Garrett County.

"The roads are dusty and people don't care to come back again," Fraley said.

Director Joseph F. Kaylor, of the Department of Forests and Parks, estimated that more than 125,000 persons vacationed in Garrett County parks last summer. He added "the number could be trebled if we had adequate road facilities."

William W. DeWitt, county roads engineer, said 15 miles of road need improvement. He estimated the cost at $500,000.

Chairman Robert M. Reindollar, of the State Roads Commission, offered little prospect of immediate aid from his department. The state is engaged in $167,000,000 primary highway program, he said, and would be hindered if any money were diverted to parks.

Dr. T. B. Symons, Dean of Agriculture at University of Maryland, came to Fraley's support.

"Yours is a wonderful county," he said, "its greatest industry is agriculture. We must realize that the future of Garrett is dependent upon agriculture and recreation."

Senator Joseph M. Byrnes, (D-Balto Fifth), president of the council, said Fraley's proposal would be considered before the General Assembly meets next month.

Tydings Says World Peace Depends On U. S.

Aid To Europe Cited As Realistic Factor

"The young people of the United States have got to face in the next few years the greatest challenge any people of any time have faced," U. S. Senator Millard E. Tydings told the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce and their guests at a dinner meeting last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Club.

Speaking on "The World Situation Today, and Its Relation to the United States," Senator Tydings qualified his views and opinions by explaining he has been in Europe three times and the Orient once, during and since World War II, and he has kept in close contact with international and domestic developments.

Congress and the American people are facing a serious time since a decision must be made that might be "penny wise and pound foolish" on the one hand, but might serve to promote, prolong and even perpetuate world peace on the other, Senator Tydings explained.

Cites Destruction Possibilities

Because of developments in weapons of destruction, such as guided missles, the atomic bomb, bacteriological warfare studies, planes that carry 500 men and travel faster than sound, and planes that fly half-way around the world nonstop, another war would envelope entire populations, he claimed.

"Moscow is 12 hours from Boston, Mass.; Portland, Ore..; Seattle, Wash., and San Francisco, Calif., are nine hours from Siberia. Oceans are no longer a barrier. Wars have always been fought from east to west and west to east, but in this air age, and atomic age, the next war involving this country will be fought north and south," the Senator explained. "Flights over the North Pole and over the northern circle route," he continued, "are shorter and reduce travel time from this country to Europe and Asia to a matter of hours instead of days and weeks."

Poses Serious Question

Senator Tydings posed the question, "Have we in this country the imagination, the understanding of life, and the resources to protect our country, in view of these developments?"

Congress must within a few weeks decide upon how much money can be spent to keep the country strong and to help strengthen this country's allies, he stated.

"We must not look at life as we would like it to be, but with reality. We must be realistic," the Senator continued.

Another war would be so terrible, and the after effects would be so great, that we could not cope with the situation, Tydings declared.

The United States is the last citadel of Democracy and Free Enterprise, and the United States is looked to by much of the civilized world for help and leadership, he expounded.

Likened To Forest Fire

Likening the world situation today to a forest fire that threatens a community, Senator Tydings said, "You can't just let it burn and organize a fire department and sit and wait, saying, 'When it gets here we'll put it out.' You have to go out and fight it, in an effort to hold it where it is."

In the world today, the situation is much the same. Russia, in her efforts to spread Communism and the influence of communism is exerting every possible pressure on Europe and much of Asia. Russia is using the newspapers, radio, labor unions, propaganda, and every influence short of war to bring more people to Communism, he exclaimed.

"The only things that keep Russia from waging open war are the financial, economic and military strength of the United States, plus the fact that the United States has the atomic bomb and the Russians don't have it," Senator Tydings warned his audience.

Strength Preserves Peace

"Therefore," he continued, "it is better that we remain strong and continue to help strengthen our allies, because since we are strong, the world is at peace."

Citing the aid given Italy as an example of the kind of policy the United States is attempting to pursue, Senator Tydings said the aid was not enough to solve all of Italy's economic problems, but it was sufficient to help convince enough people there that the democratic way of free enterprise is better than Communism.

Reserve Officer Training Group To Be Organized

Unit To Include Four Counties

A headquarters training division on an Army level, to be known as a Logistics division, will be formed in this area for training of Army Reserve officers, according to Capt. Thomas Stafford, unit instructor for the 208th ORC Composite Group.

Reserve officers from four counties, Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Carroll, will be in the area division with personnel coming from the local and the Hagerstown Reserve groups, Capt. Stafford said.

One hundred and fourteen officers will make up the organization which will be divided into a commander, deputy commander and chief of staff, general staff and special staffs. Plans call for a major general, brigadier general, 22 colonels, 23 lieutenant colonels and 28 majors with the rest of the group composed of company grade officers.

To be headed by Maj. Gen. Joseph Byron, Hagerstown, the group will have one paid meeting every quarter with the place probably alternating between Hagerstown and Cumberland. Maj. Gen. Byron was on the War Department Staff in charge of the Army Special Services during World War War II.

Capt. Stafford said the Army hopes to get the organization in working order soon after the first of the year. The area group will be one of three set up in Maryland. There will be a logistics division in Baltimore and one in the Eastern Shore area.

Primarily for the purpose of training headquarters staffs for emergencies, training material will be sent from Command and Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kas. The units will be sent group problems to be worked on for report and discussion at the quarterly meetings.

Enlisted men for headquarters training will be organized later, Capt. Stafford said.

1,300 Gallon Tar Fire Blocks Road

A flaming construction truck loaded with 1,300 gallons of tar and two tanks of inflamable fuel yesterday blocked traffic on Route 40 at Red Hill for a half hour as firemen fought to prevent a serious explosion.

State Trooper G. M. Rotruck said sparks from a backfire ignited the tar and set fire to the truck, owned by the Cumberland Construction Company, as workers laid a temporary surface on segments of Route 40 now under construction.

Long line of fraffic carrying Celanese workers home from the day shift at the Amcelle plant were delayed, police said, as volunteer fire fighters from Clarysville attempted to extinguish the flame, visible for over a mile.

Both the truck gasoline tank and an oil fuel tank used to heat the tar exploded but damage was prevented, police said, adding that a tank containing the tar burst at the seams and prevented a huge explosion that would have rocked the countryside.

Traffic was permitted to continue after the tar tank burst, authorities said, although foreman fought without avail to extinguist the burning tar. The truck and equipment used in surface work was "melted to destruction," authorities said.

Advances In Metal Corrosion Fight Explained By Noted Metallurgist

Scientists are striving to cut one of the nation's highest taxes, the levy imposed on industry and the community by metal corrosion, Dr. H. H. Uhlig of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology told the Western Maryland Section of the American Chemical Society at a meeting last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Emphasizing the urgent need to conserve the dwindling supplies of metal ores, Dr. Uhlig, head of the M. I. T. Corrosion Laboratory, said rust, tarnish, internal erosion and sudden cracking of metals under stress cost the United States not only millions of dollars annually but also a waste which "we can afford less and less," in the form of replacement of metals.

According to Dr. Uhlig, who is associate professor of metallurgy, modern science and technology is finding methods of combatting metal corrosion. The lifetime of cars can be increased by the addition of corrosion inhibitors to lubricating oils, thus preventing the wearing away of piston rings and cylinder walls. New discoveries, he said, show that the wear on internal combustion engines to be a chemical rather than a mechanical process.

Another advance in the war on corrosion is the incorporation of chemicals in first coats of paint in order to reduce the reaction of the metal with water and oxygen which eventually seep through top coats, Dr. Uhlig added.

He is editor of the Corrosion Handbook sponsored by the Electrochemical Society and has published various papers in chemical and metallurgical journals.

Herbert C. Heineman of the Celanese Corporation of America, Section chairman, presided. The section includes chemists and chemical engineers of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

Smoke Inspector Examination Not Likely Until Jan.

Civil Service Board Will Conduct Quiz

A new examination to select qualified candidates for the deputy smoke inspection position, which the Mayor and Council favored yesterday by a 4 to 1 vote, will probably be delayed until early January, a person to the situation, said last night.

The council approved the new examination as the only means of breaking a deadlock in the municipal government over the appointment of the smoke inspector, however, the Civil Service Commission which will conduct the examinations has not yet been notified officially.

The source said the commission will probably require two weeks to prepare for the examination. That would place the date right in the Christmas holiday season, he explained, adding that it is unlikely that an examination will be held then.

The motion to hold a new examination was made after Mayor Thomas S. Post broached the subject at a special council meeting yesterday. He previously nominated Francis E. Mullan for the job but the council defeated the move three to two.

Commissioner William H. Buchholtz and Commissioner Edgar Reynolds, two of the dissenters to Mullan's appointment because they questioned his qualifications in regards to the smoke control program, made and seconded the motion, respectively.

Buchholtz's motion stated that "the Civil Service Board in conjunction with Smoke Engineer George M. Hitchcock be requested to conduct examinations to 'screen out' qualified applicants for the position of deputy smoke abatement engineer, with the understanding that the man selected shall be employed by contract."

Veterans taking the test, under Buchholtz's plan, will be allowed five points additional and a total of ten points if disabled.

Mayor Favors Veteran

Earlier in the cross-fire of words which marked the session today, the Mayor, in holding to his previous stand for the appointment of Mullan, asked if the Council was going against its previous assertions that a war veteran be given consideration.

Buchholtz said: "I'm a serviceman myself but we can't forget that a lot of people were deferred to do a job on the home front and it's not their fault they did not get into service."

The session started slowly enough with several matters of routine business before Mayor Post approached the deputy smoke engineer problem with the request that he "would like to see those opposing my appointment make some recommendation for its solution. I am anxious to see the program put into effect and believe the time is here to take action if we are going to."

Nothing Personal

Commissioners Reynolds, Buchholtz and Edwards, who voted against the appointment of Mullan, said they had nothing personal against him or the two other candidates, Reynolds adding that he did not think Mullan qualified and expressed the opinion that "the only thing to do is to pick a man who is qualified and passed the examination at the rate of 72. We have

Indefinite Furlough Announced By B & O

300 Men Affected In Newest Lay-Off

Following on the heels of a two-day layoff of 1,500 Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employes on the Cumberland Division, an indefinite furlough of 300 carmen and shopmen was announced last night.

Last week, notices were posted announcing an end-of-the-month furlough for November 29 and 30, effecting 1,500, all of whom returned to work yesterday. Now an indefinite furlough has been called for 150 employes of the back shops here and 150 carmen in Keyser, W. Va.

R. A. J. Morrison, superintendent of the Cumberland Division, said last night these figures are substantially correct, although he did not know the exact number affected. If the notices were posted yesterday, he concluded, the furlough would become effective Monday. Four days notice to employes is required.

A. K. Galloway, general superintendent of motive power; P. K. Partee, general superintendent of transportation; C. C. Pitzer, chief of yard and terminal operation, and John Hewes, superintendent of car service, were all here from Baltimore yesterday for a conference with local railroad executives.

Morrison said last night that business has fallen off generally, and the furlough is necessary to keep down expenses in view of decreased income. Business on the line has dropped off. All types of freight, including hauling, shows lower car loadings. Coal operators in some parts of this area report industrial orders for coal have declined and the mines are now working full time.

Western Maryland Railway spokesmen said no furloughs has been called and none is immediately contemplated. Tonnage is holding up well on the system, they explained.

Police Campaign Against Speeders Ordered By Chief

Drive Is Directed At Greene Street

A co-ordinated drive against speeding motorists on Greene Street was begun by the Cumberland Police Department last night on orders of Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn. He said numerous complaints have been received.

Chief Flynn said the speed limits of 25 miles per hour will be strictly enforced by officers who will be assigned to patrol the area between Baltimore Street and The Dingle. Maximum penalties will be sought in all violations.

Many truck drivers have been operating at speeds up to and in excess of 50 miles an hour, according to reports received by Chief Flynn. He said the enforcement will be directed against automobile and truck drivers alike.

The violations are not being committed by traffic to and from the Celanese during shift changes, the Chief declared, but it occurs more frequently during hours when the traffic is not so heavy.

The possibility that "plain clothes" policemen operating in unmarked cruisers will be assigned to patrol the area was also discussed by Chief Flynn. He said the motor law violations on Greene Street are going to be stopped permanently.

"The limit is 25 miles an hour," the Chief said, "and no automobile is going to exceed that limit."

Automobiles operating at high speeds are creating a great hazard to children, especially school children who must cross the street several times a day. There are at least three schools operating in the area that have students crossing back and forth on Greene Street.

The campaign against speeding will begin immediately, the Chief of Police said, adding that it will be continued until all motorists are made to conform with the speed limits in the area.

The city ordinance under which excessive speeding is prohibited provides for a maximum penalty of $100 fine and 30 days in the Allegany County Jail.

Legislative Council Backs Frostburg State

Recommends College Continue Operating

Frostburg State Teachers College is one of three unanimously recommended for continued operation by the Maryland Legislative Council, which opposed the much discussed Marbury report in all but one phase yesterday. The exception is allotment of scholarships.

Senator Robert B. Kimble, Allegany County, member of the council, said the group recommended the continuation of the Frostburg and Washington Colleges and St. Mary's Female Seminary. It suggested that the state continue to furnish necessary facilities.

The Marbury report, submitted over a year ago, recommended many changes in the system of Maryland education, incluuding the abandonment of the Frostburg college with others.

Opposed Unanimously

The council recommendations will be submitted to the General Assembly when the body convenes in January. The report suggested that the Frostburg college be combined with Towson College. The council unanimously opposed this, Senator Kimble said.

Another phase of the Marbury report met with more favorable results among council members, who convened for a four-day session yesterday, but this phase was later prepared for submission to the General Assembly with a recommendation for another year to study prior to action.

The question was the combining of the Princess Anne College with Morgan College, both negro institutions. The Princess Anne College is presently under the administrative control of the University of Maryland. Senator Kimble said many of the members favored the change.

However, they agreed to submit the recommendation for continued control by the University to enable a completely harmonious report for the legislative body. It is expected to receive considerable pro and con discussion when the General Assembly convenes.

The additional year's study of the negro institutions would be made by an Advisory Comittee that the Council recommends Governor William Preston Lane name to advise all educational institutions in the state.

Committee Opposed

The Marbury report also recommended an over-all committee but would give it broad powers. Under the Marbury report the committee would act as an administrative body for all state educational institutions with power that would include fixing of budgets. The Council opposed this.

The revised scholarship system which the Council members and Marbury report agree on, would take away from the senators and delegates scholarship allotments which they now control and place them in the hands of a special commission.

Under the present set up, state senators now are permitted to allocate 15 annual scholarships to Maryland colleges and House delegates are permitted one each specifically to the University of Maryland. The recommendation would continue the scholarships but turn them over to the special committee for allotment.

A system of junior colleges recommended by the Marbury report was also opposed by the Legislative Council members. Under the Marbury report a junior college would be established in each county.

There are presently five junior colleges operating in the state. The Council recommended continuation of these, but suggested that all additional monies available for education be used at the present time to bring elementary and high school education up to suggested levels.

Senator Kimble explained that at present several million dollars is needed for additional school buildings and enlargement of others. These matters should be cared for first, the Council agreed, before the state extends its education commitments to a college level.

The council body continued in meeting to a late hour last night and will resume the session today to receive numerous committee reports from the various sub-divisions of the Legislative Council.

Earlier, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., state superintendent of schools, had asked approval of a $139,800,000 five-year school building program.

Some 46,000 additional pupils will be enrolled in Maryland schools by 1950, he estimated.

Dr. Pullen said the state could increase its share of the expense by an outright grant or stepping up its incentive program. This apportions state aid in ratio with county allocations.

He also declared $8,500,000 is needed immediately for construction at the four State Teachers' Colleges, and another $3,000,000 "as soon as possible."

To improve libraries, Dr. Pullen proposed that counties raise their tax for this purpose from two to three cents and the state boost its contribution.

City Promotion Of Fire Fighter Will Be Probed

Civil Service Body Says Exam Necessary

The promotion of a city fireman who did not have the Civil Service Board's stamp of approval is due to fall under fire of board members Friday night and may result in the advancement being rescinded.

Commissioner William V. Keegan, who recommended the promotion of Francis J. Wallace to the grade of lieutenant at the West Side Fire Station, has been requested to attend the meeting along with City Solicitor Thomas B. Finan. The session will be held in city hall.

Board members, an informed source said, have questioned the Mayor and City Council's authority to authorize the promotion of a man who has not proved his qualifications in a competitive Civil Service Board examination.

The source said the CSB notified Commissioner Keegan sometime ago that effective October 6 all promotions in the departments of police and fire must be qualified by examination. Notices of such action are now posted at police headquarters and all fire stations.

Mayor Thomas S. Post said he has been informed the promotion is under question.

Commissioner Keegan could not be contacted for comment on the situation last night, but this is the way the incident appeared to be shaping up:

Board members are reported to have served notice that all promotions in both police and fire departments must come under civil service examination. Wallace's promotion was made without a competitive test for qualifications.

Several members of the fire department are alleged to have questioned the right of the municipal body to authorize the promotion since no examination was held.

The board is reported to have based its authority to require the examination on a section of the Civil Service laws permitting them to take such steps as are necessary to assure non-partial promotions.

Members of the Civil Service Board declined to discuss the affair last night, but it was confirmed that the meeting has definitely been set for Friday night at 7:30 p. m.

Tydings Says World Peace Depends On U. S.

Aid To Europe Cited As Realistic Factor

"The young people of the United States have got to face in the next few years the greatest challenge any people of any time have faced," U. S. Senator Millard E. Tydings told the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce and their guests at a dinner meeting last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Club.

Speaking on "The World Situation Today, and Its Relation to the United States," Senator Tydings qualified his views and opinions by explaining he has been in Europe three times and the Orient once, during and since World War II, and he has kept in close contact with international and domestic developments.

Congress and the American people are facing a serious time since a decision must be made that might be "penny wise and pound foolish" on the one hand, but might serve to promote, prolong and even perpetuate world peace on the other, Senator Tydings explained.

Cites Destruction Possibilities

Because of developments in weapons of destruction, such as guided missles, the atomic bomb, bacteriological warfare studies, planes that carry 500 men and travel faster than sound, and planes that fly half-way around the world nonstop, another war would envelope entire populations, he claimed.

"Moscow is 12 hours from Boston, Mass.; Portland, Ore.; Seattle, Wash., and San Francisco, Calif., are nine hours from Siberia. Oceans are no longer a barrier. Wars have always been fought from east to west and west to east, but in this air age, and atomic age, the next war involving this country will be fought north and south," the Senator explained. "Flights over the North Pole and over the northern circle route," he continued, "are shorter and reduce travel time from this country to Europe and Asia to a matter of hours instead of days and weeks."

Poses Serious Question

Senator Tydings posed the question, "Have we in this country the imagination, the understanding of life, and the resources to protect our country, in view of these developments?"

Congress must within a few weeks decide upon how much money can be spent to keep the country strong and to help strengthen this country's allies, he stated.

"We must not look at life as we would like it to be, but with reality. We must be realistic," the Senator continued.

Another war would be so terrible, and the after effects would be so great, that we could not cope with the situation, Tydings declared.

The United States is the last citadel of Democracy and Free Enterprise, and the United States is looked to by much of the civilized world for help and leadership, he expounded.

Likened To Forest Fire

Likening the world situation today to a forest fire that threatens a community, Senator Tydings said, "You can't just let it burn and organize a fire department and sit and wait, saying, 'When it gets here we'll put it out.' You have to go out and fight it, in an effort to hold it where it is."

In the world today, the situation is much the same. Russia, in her efforts to spread Communism and the influence of communism is exerting every possible pressure on Europe and much of Asia. Russia is using the newspapers, radio, labor unions, propaganda, and every influence short of war to bring more people to Communism, he exclaimed.

"The only things that keep Russia from waging open war are the financial, economic and military strength of the United States, plus the fact that the United States has the atomic bomb and the Russians don't have it," Senator Tydings warned his audience.

Strength Preserves Peace

"Therefore," he continued, "it is better that we remain strong and continue to help strengthen our allies, because since we are strong, the world is at peace."

Citing the aid given Italy as an example of the kind of policy the United States is attempting to pursue, Senator Tydings said the aid was not enough to solve all of Italy's economic problems, but it was sufficient to help convince enough people there that the democratic way of free enterprise is better than Communism.

Reserve Officer Training Group To Be Organized

Unit To Include Four Counties

A headquarters training division on an Army level, to be known as a Logistics division, will be formed in this area for training of Army Reserve officers, according to Capt. Thomas Stafford, unit instructor for the 208th ORC Composite Group.

Reserve officers from four counties, Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Carroll, will be in the area division with personnel coming from the local and the Hagerstown Reserve groups, Capt. Stafford said.

One hundred and fourteen officers will make up the organization which will be divided into a commander, deputy commander and chief of staff, general staff and special staffs. To be headed by Maj. Gen. Joseph Byron, Hagerstown, the group will have one paid meeting every quarter with the place probably alternating between Hagerstown and Cumberland. Maj. Gen. Byron was on the War Department Staff in charge of the Army Special Services during World War War II.

Capt. Stafford said the Army hopes to get the organization in working order soon after the first of the year. The area group will be one of three set up in Maryland. There will be a logistics division in Baltimore and one in the Eastern Shore area.

Primarily for the purpose of training headquarters staffs for emergencies, training material will be sent from Command and Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kas. The units will be sent group problems to be worked on for report and discussion at the quarterly meetings.

Enlisted men for headquarters training will be organized later, Capt. Stafford said.

1,300 Gallon Tar Fire Blocks Road

A flaming construction truck loaded with 1,300 gallons of tar and two tanks of inflamable fuel yesterday blocked traffic on Route 40 at Red Hill for a half hour as firemen fought to prevent a serious explosion.

State Trooper G. M. Rotruck said sparks from a backfire ignited the tar and set fire to the truck, owned by the Cumberland Construction Company, as workers laid a temporary surface on segments of Route 40 now under construction.

Long line of traffic carrying Celanese workers home from the day shift at the Amcelle plant were delayed, police said, as volunteer fire fighters from Clarysville attempted to extinguish the flame, visible for over a mile.

Both the truck gasoline tank and an oil fuel tank used to heat the tar exploded but damage was prevented, police said, adding that a tank containing the tar burst at the seams and prevented a huge explosion that would have rocked the countryside.

Traffic was permitted to continue after the tar tank burst, authorities said, although foreman fought without avail to extinguist the burning tar. The truck and equipment used in surface work was "melted to destruction," authorities said.

Advances In Metal Corrosion Fight Explained By Noted Metallurgist

Scientists are striving to cut one of the nation's highest taxes, the levy imposed on industry and the community by metal corrosion, Dr. H. H. Uhlig of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology told the Western Maryland Section of the American Chemical Society at a meeting last night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Emphasizing the urgent need to conserve the dwindling supplies of metal ores, Dr. Uhlig, head of the M. I. T. Corrosion Laboratory, said rust, tarnish, internal erosion and sudden cracking of metals under stress cost the United States not only millions of dollars annually but also a waste which "we can afford less and less," in the form of replacement of metals.

According to Dr. Uhlig, who is associate professor of metallurgy, modern science and technology is finding methods of combatting metal corrosion. The lifetime of cars can be increased by the addition of corrosion inhibitors to lubricating oils, thus preventing the wearing away of piston rings and cylinder walls. New discoveries, he said, show that the wear on internal combustion engines to be a chemical rather than a mechanical process.

Another advance in the war on corrosion is the incorporation of chemicals in first coats of paint in order to reduce the reaction of the metal with water and oxygen which eventually seep through top coats, Dr. Uhlig added.

He is editor of the Corrosion Handbook sponsored by the Electrochemical Society and has published various papers in chemical and metallurgical journals.

Herbert C. Heineman of the Celanese Corporation of America, Section chairman, presided. The section includes chemists and chemical engineers of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

Smoke Inspector Examination Not Likely Until Jan.

Civil Service Board Will Conduct Quiz

A new examination to select qualified candidates for the deputy smoke inspection position, which the Mayor and Council favored yesterday by a 4 to 1 vote, will probably be delayed until early January, a person to the situation, said last night.

The council approved the new examination as the only means of breaking a deadlock in the municipal government over the appointment of the smoke inspector, however, the Civil Service Commission which will conduct the examinations has not yet been notified officially.

The source said the commission will probably require two weeks to prepare for the examination. That would place the date right in the Christmas holiday season, he explained, adding that it is unlikely that an examination will be held then.

The motion to hold a new examination was made after Mayor Thomas S. Post broached the subject at a special council meeting yesterday. He previously nominated Francis E. Mullan for the job but the council defeated the move three to two.

Commissioner William H. Buchholtz and Commissioner Edgar Reynolds, two of the dissenters to Mullan's appointment because they questioned his qualifications in regards to the smoke control program, made and seconded the motion, respectively.

Buchholtz's motion stated that "the Civil Service Board in conjunction with Smoke Engineer George M. Hitchcock be requested to conduct examinations to 'screen out' qualified applicants for the position of deputy smoke abatement engineer, with the understanding that the man selected shall be employed by contract."

Veterans taking the test, under Buchholtz's plan, will be allowed five points additional and a total of ten points if disabled.

Mayor Favors Veteran

Earlier in the cross-fire of words which marked the session today, the Mayor, in holding to his previous stand for the appointment of Mullan, asked if the Council was going against its previous assertions that a war veteran be given consideration.

Buchholtz said: "I'm a serviceman myself but we can't forget that a lot of people were deferred to do a job on the home front and it's not their fault they did not get into service."

The session started slowly enough with several matters of routine business before Mayor Post approached the deputy smoke engineer problem with the request that he "would like to see those opposing my appointment make some recommendation for its solution. I am anxious to see the program put into effect and believe the time is here to take action if we are going to."

Nothing Personal

Commissioners Reynolds, Buchholtz and Edwards, who voted against the appointment of Mullan, said they had nothing personal against him or the two other candidates, Reynolds adding that he did not think Mullan qualified and expressed the opinion that "the only thing to do is to pick a man who is qualified and passed the examination at the rate of 72. We have

Indefinite Furlough Announced By B & O

300 Men Affected In Newest Lay-Off

Following on the heels of a two-day layoff of 1,500 Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employes or the Cumberland Division, an indefinite furlough of 300 carmen and shopmen was announced last night.

Last week, notices were posted announcing an end-of-the-month furlough for November 29 and 30, effecting 1,500, all of whom returned to work yesterday. Now an indefinite furlough has been called for 150 employes of the back shops here and 150 carmen in Keyser, W. Va.

R. A. J. Morrison, superintendent of the Cumberland Division, said last night these figures are substantially correct, although he did not know the exact number affected. If the notices were posted yesterday, he concluded, the furlough would become effective Monday Four days notice to employes is required.

A. K. Galloway, general superintendent of motive power; P. K. Partee, general superintendent of transportation; C. C. Pitzer, chief of yard and terminal operation, and John Hewes, superintendent of car service, were all here from Paltimore yesterday for a conference with local railroad executives.

Morrison said last night that business has fallen off generally, and the furlough is necessary to keep down expenses in view of decreased income. Business on the line has dropped off. All types of freight, including hauling, shows lower car loadings. Coal operators in some parts of this area report industrial orders for coal have declined and the mines are not working full time.

Western Maryland Railway spokesmen said no furloughs has been called and none is immediately contemplated. Tonnage is holding up well on the system, they explained.

Salvation Army Opens Christmas Campaign

Major Elmer Wall, commander, said the new Kettle House will be placed on Baltimore Street today or tomorrow. The familiar kettles will appear in South Cumberland beginning Saturday.

Police Campaign Against Speeders Ordered By Chief

Drive Is Directed At Greene Street

A co-ordinated drive against speeding motorists on Greene Street was begun by the Cumberland Police Department last night on orders of Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn. He said numerous complaints have been received.

Chief Flynn said the speed limits of 25 miles per hour will be strictly enforced by officers who will be assigned to patrol the area between Baltimore Street and The Dingle. Maximum penalties will be sought in all violations.

Many truck drivers have been operating at speeds up to and in excess of 50 miles an hour, according to reports received by Chief Flynn. He said the enforcement will be directed against automobile and truck drivers alike.

The violations are not being committed by traffic to and from the Celanese during shift changes, the Chief declared, but it occurs more frequently during hours when the traffic is not so heavy.

The possibility that "plain clothes" policemen operating in unmarked cruisers will be assigned to patrol the area was also discussed by Chief Flynn. He said the motor law violations on Greene Street are going to be stopped permanently.

"The limit is 25 miles an hour," the Chief said, "and no automobile is going to exceed that limit."

Automobiles operating at high speeds are creating a great hazard to children, especially school children who must cross the street several times a day. There are at least three schools operating in the area that have students crossing back and forth on Greene Street.

The campaign against speeding will begin immediately, the Chief of Police said, adding that it will be continued until all motorists are made to conform with the speed limits in the area.

The city ordinance under which excessive speeding is prohibited provides for a maximum penalty of $100 fine and 30 days in the Allegany County Jail.

Legislative Council Backs Frostburg State

Recommends College Continue Operating

Frostburg State Teachers College is one of three unanimously recommended for continued operation by the Maryland Legislative Council, which opposed the much discussed Marbury report in all but one phase yesterday. The exception is allotment of scholarships.

Senator Robert B. Kimble, Allegany County, member of the council, said the group recommended the continuation of the Frostburg and Washington Colleges and St. Mary's Female Seminary. It suggested that the state continue to furnish necessary facilities.

The Marbury report, submitted over a year ago, recommended many changes in the system of Maryland education, incluuding the abandonment of the Frostburg college with others.

Opposed Unanimously

The council recommendations will be submitted to the General Assembly when the body convenes in January. The report suggested that the Frostburg college be combined with Towson College. The council unanimously opposed this, Senator Kimble said.

Another phase of the Marbury report met with more favorable results among council members, who convened for a four-day session yesterday, but this phase was later prepared for submission to the General Assembly with a recommendation for another year to study prior to action.

The question was the combining of the Princess Anne College with Morgan College, both negro institutions. The Princess Anne College is presently under the administrative control of the University of Maryland. Senator Kimble said many of the members favored the change.

However, they agreed to submit the recommendation for continued control by the University to enable a completely harmonious report for the legislative body. It is expected to receive considerable pro and con discussion when the General Assembly convenes.

The additional year's study of the negro institutions would be made by an Advisory Comittee that the Council recommends Governor William Preston Lane name to advise all educational institutions in the state.

Committee Opposed

The Marbury report also recommended an over-all committee but would give it broad powers. Under the Marbury report the committee would act as an administrative body for all state educational institutions with power that would include fixing of budgets. The Council opposed this.

The revised scholarship system which the Council members and Marbury report agree on, would take away from the senators and delegates scholarship allotments which they now control and place them in the hands of a special commission.

Under the present set up, state senators now are permitted to allocate 15 annual scholarships to Maryland colleges and House delegates are permitted one each specifically to the University of Maryland. The recommendation would continue the scholarships but turn them over to the special committee for allotment.

A system of junior colleges recommended by the Marbury report was also opposed by the Legislative Council members. Under the Marbury report a junior college would be established in each county.

There are presently five junior colleges operating in the state. The Council recommended continuation of these, but suggested that all additional monies available for education be used at the present time to bring elementary and high school education up to suggested levels.

Senator Kimble explained that at present several million dollars is needed for additional school buildings and enlargement of others. These matters should be cared for first, the Council agreed, before the state extends its education commitments to a college level.

The council body continued in meeting to a late hour last night and will resume the session today to receive numerous committee reports from the various sub-divisions of the Legislative Council.

Earlier, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., state superintendent of schools, had asked approval of a $139,800,000 five-year school building program.

Some 46,000 additional pupils will be enrolled in Maryland schools by 1950, he estimated.

Dr. Pullen said the state could increase its share of the expense by an outright grant or stepping up its incentive program. This apportions state aid in ratio with county allocations.

He also declared $8,500,000 is needed immediately for construction at the four State Teachers' Colleges, and another $3,000,000 "as soon as possible."

To improve libraries, Dr. Pullen proposed that counties raise their tax for this purpose from two to three cents and the state boost its contribution.
